Student Body Elects Hawks President Of Student Council

On Wednesday night, the students of Coastal Carolina elected Student Council Officers for the 1963-64 term, choosing Richard N. Harmon of Ayer as the new president. The election followed a spirited campaign by the office seekers.

President: Hawks won over Bill Singleton, both of Conway, and will succeed Ed Carter, second runner-up in last year's election. Hawks majoring in education, is a senior and has served as president of the Student Council for two years. Both of Conway, Hawks was unopposed for the office of secretary, was Trisha Cummings for treasurer. Both are of Conway, Hawks.

Sophomore Representative: Promised to be a popular, much-sought-after role for the new term, was Bill Floyd and Merle Kirkland, both of Aynor. Hawks and Aynor are the two top vote-getters, with those of President, and Merle Kirkland, at the early days of the campaign, want to avoid a write-in campaign. When his opponent were Meredith Carter and Charles Austin, who were running together.

Baker, Mel Akin, Gordon Hartland, Diane Ford, and Reatha Baker were not present:

Awards were given to the following participants: Penny Miller, Larry Woodley, Austin Carter, and Lettie Singleton, for their work in the team.

The Fledgling Inquirer was created by Mr. Singleton, who is turning his job over to Mr. Singleton for a first year. Mr. Singleton: I think that will have a fine year.

INQ: How do you feel about taking over as director?
Mr. Singleton: Probably not entirely. I think that will have a fine year.

Singleton: Nothing definite as yet. When I receive a list, I'll send you a copy.
INQ: There have been rumors that the building will not be completed by the fall semester. Is that true?
Mr. Singleton: Not entirely true. Even if the whole building is not completed there will be enough classrooms to have classes. We will not go there or in a church.
INQ: What about the food problem? Will the student union build it?
Mr. Singleton: Both are of Coastal Carolina offices.

Mr. Edward M. Singleton

For this edition of the paper the Fledgling Inquirer was created. It is a well meaning never-at-the-ball cub reporter who will be well received by the students.

Singleton: July 1, I will not be director of the summer school, but I will be setting up for classes.
INQ: How do you feel about taking over as director?
Mr. Singleton: I think I will like it very much even though I have to leave this job after four years in public education.
INQ: Have you made any plans as to class schedules?
Mr. Singleton: Nothing definite yet, there will be predominantly morning classes, but there will be afternoon classes also.
INQ: Will you be teaching anything next year?
Mr. Singleton: Yes, Education 21 if there are enough students who want it.
INQ: What is Education 21?
Mr. Singleton: It is called Introduction to Education. It is a sophomore course for those who plan to major in education.
INQ: Do you know who will be on your faculty and staff next year?
Mr. Singleton: No, probably the student council or the Circle K Club will be in charge.
INQ: You have a reputa­tion as a fine coach. Will you coach the basketball and baseball teams next year?
Mr. Singleton: I have heard that some of the other directors coach the teams. I would like to.
INQ: Will you be setting up a new school?

Editor's Scratch Pad

The editor would first of all like to remember two people that have meant very much to our school. Mr. C. R. Kirkland and Mr. W. C. Casper came to this school as teachers in the first year of its existence. When the school, in 1925, was taken under the wing of the university he became acting director. I will remember him as a very dedicated man, both to his job and to his students. He is one of those rare educators who keeps up his work, his school, and the students were his true love.

Mr. Kirkland served as acting director this year. He is very much liked by the student body and interest in (the students) problems and his advice have been most valuable to them. These men have been an inspiration to me, too.

With a small student body and a sense of realism, all our own, our student body this year has been somewhat handicapped in planning school activities. However, the establishing procedure which will be followed by successors, we hope that a newspaper will be continued. The staff has already been elected by an editor and business manager who are tried and true. The student budget is another affair that we hope will be an annual one. We all hope for a spectacular student government and a good Circle K Club.

All sophomores seem to be getting a little sentimental at the idea of leaving. However, it will be very rewarding to be able to look back and see that we might be remembered a bit through our help in establishing these worthwhile things.

To supplement what our esteemed editor has written in his "Scratch Pad" there are two other things that should be said. First of all Brenda Martin deserves much thanks for the wonderful work her typists did. Miss Spears has been a valuable asset to The Fledgling staff this year. Mr. Donald Bowers is presently doing his graduate work in the field of Biology at U.C. He is liked by everyone, especially those passing Biology. His labs are very entertaining; if you happen to know what is going on, unfortunately, those who had a nickname for him, wouldn't tell us.

Mr. Russell Earl Benton, a graduate of Erskine College, received his M.A. degree from Long Beach State University, and is in the process of getting his Ph.D. in the field of Biological Sciences. He is very interested in people and the well-being of his students. His lab is very interesting; if someone doesn't have a comment, they just buy a box of his Peanut Brittle which he is still trying to sell. The Circle K Club was very fortunate to have him as his assistance this year.

Mr. Benton will not be teaching in the classrooms of Coastal Carolina this year, but will be harrasing the History 11 and 12 students at the Lancaster Branch with his weekly pop quizzes.
Reatha Baker, being concerned about the future of Coastal Carolina teachers, looked into her crystal ball to determine how they would look twenty years from now.

She was shocked by some of the changes in our present faculty. Mr. Benton has taken on a Napoleonic appearance mixed with a little Indian. Mr. Bowers has taken on the appearance of a prehistoric form. Miss Spears was the only one of the faculty that hadn't changed. Mr. Stafford and Mrs. Hilday had taken on a more businesslike appearance. Mr. Kirkland has become more scientific. Miss Summers has taken on a militaristic appearance. Mrs. Hopson has a split personality and Mr. Brown has become more numerically minded than ever.

Reatha now expounds the theory that the more a person becomes associated with something the more they tend to look like it. After this short discourse some of you may change your mind about your major. Can't you imagine someone majoring in botany or in geology?

Good evening, ladies and gents. It’s a fine day out here at the ballpark. How is it where you are? I hope it’s as nice a day as it is here. I’m sure that the players feel the same way. They want to get out there and practice. I hope it’s fine because I don’t want any of your bad weather to spoil the fun. While the Conway girls are practicing for two weeks and the Florence girls have practiced just about as long. So that shows you that they are equal in practice. However, they are not equal in number. The Conway girls are short one player. I wonder how they will work that out. Out yes, Florence is giving its extras to Conway. How generous! Now how is that for rivalry? They want to get each other so much they are willing to share players.

Ah, the game is about to start. The pitcher and the catcher are getting warmed up. Ah, any minute now the pitcher may get the ball to home plate. There, now she has it and she’s rolling it along to the pitcher. The pitcher is running out to get it where it stopped. Woohoo! She tripped! Is she all right? Yeah! She’s fine! Only one stride out. That got out of place! Ain’t those Conway girls great!

Now here comes the Florence pitcher and catcher. They want to get a little practice too. While the Conway girls are holding a conference and the Florence girls are practicing let me give you the lineup. Pitching we have Trisha Cummings, famous for her low pitches, real dirt catchers; catching we have Reeths Oxner, famous for her great ability in missing the ball; as shortstop, we have Jane Jordan, famous for her great dodging ability; as first baseman we have Bernice Strickland, famous for losing first base; as second baseman we have Brenda Martinez. The other two are

Club Sells Candy
For Fun And Profit

The members of the Circle K Club took a look at the activities of the club for the last semester at the last meeting of the club for the year. The meeting was held on May 13.

The club entered into three projects this semester, one of which was to try to fill the club treasury. The other two were summer service projects to the community.

On May 15 the club decided to sell peanut brittle candy as their first money making project. This candy was ordered for the club by the Kiwanis International in Conway. The candy was sold in a matter of a few weeks and the club ended the year with a good profit. The profits from the work of the club will be used for the benefit of the club projects committee.

During the National Library week the club and the Horry County Library worked together on a book hunt. This com-

Trojans Trounced

The Conway Extension has put together a two game loosing streak at the time of this article and hopes to salvage what’s left of a season with good games against the Clearwater Mill Team of Aiken and a rematch with Florence.

In losing to Clearwater 24-15, the Trojans used three pitchers and a total of 31 baserunners on balls and errors. The team is not to much to blame as the managerial oversight of not practicing on a suitable field. The team is much better than it shows at game time.

Then the team traveled to Aiken to be beaten 14-3. The Aikenites rode to victory on Mel McCall’s pitching and with a late double and two bases on balls.

The Trojans are now 2-8-1 for the season.
