COASTAL LAUNCHES COMBINED CAMPAIGN

USC-Coastal Carolina College has launched its 1980-81 Combined Campaign, in which faculty and staff have an opportunity to support the Coastal Educational Foundation, USC programs and the United Way.

"This campaign will benefit every member of the campus community," says Chancellor Edward M. Singleton. "It is especially important this year because of the restrictions placed on Coastal Carolina College by the Budget and Control Board's order to cut back seven per cent on personnel and other services. The campaign is not seeking a dollar amount as a goal, but instead is seeking to reach a goal of 100% participation by faculty and staff."

Each faculty and staff member will soon be contacted with information about the campaign. Questions should be directed to the Office of College Relations (ext. 119, 120, 121). The Chancellor's Council will hold the first of three campaign report meetings on Monday, Nov. 11 at 3 p.m. in the AD Conference Room.

WHEELWRIGHT SITE RESTRICTED

Officials of the construction firm erecting Coastal's Wheelwright Auditorium have placed the site on restriction while construction is at a stage hazardous to visitors. The facility is going up on schedule and is attracting significant attention in the community. Faculty or staff members who wish to visit the facility should contact the Office of College Relations for assistance.

FACULTY SENATE REPORT

Coastal

The Coastal Carolina Faculty Senate met Oct. 2. The minutes of the Sept. 4 meeting were approved as distributed. Reports from the Promotion and Tenure Committee and the Faculty Welfare and Grievance Committee were heard. A revision of the Class Attendance Policy was discussed and approved as submitted. In new business, the Senate suggested a revision of the final sentence in Step 3 of the approved Faculty Grievance Procedure; discussed problems in communication between the faculty and the administration and the role and power of faculty committees; and unavailability of campus security to faculty members and students needing access to classrooms and offices after hours and on weekends. The Senate approved a motion to formally request that the administration look into the feasibility of making it possible for faculty to have access to their offices after normal hours without looking up the security guard.

FACULTY, STAFF, ADMINISTRATION HOLIDAY PARTY

The annual holiday party will be held in the College Center on December 5, 1980. For those who are interested, drinks (liquor, beer, wine) may be had between the hours of 6:00 and 8:00 p.m. A buffet dinner will be served at 8:00. The price per person is $6.00. However, the Administration has agreed to underwrite the cost of the bar and to pay $2.00 per person for the cost of the buffet. Therefore, the total cost per person for the evening will be $4.00.

If you plan to participate, please purchase tickets at the rate of $4.00 per person from Dr. Singleton's secretary. Tickets will be available through November 26 and your commitment must be made by that time. A ticket will be required for entry to the College Center the night of the party.

APPALACHIAN GROUP TO PERFORM IN COASTAL SERIES NOV. 11

Roadside Theater, a song and storytelling group from the Appalachian Mountains of Kentucky, will bring its unique performance to the Waccamaw-Grand Strand area on Nov. 11 as part of the Cultural Arts Series at USC-Coastal Carolina College.

The performance is scheduled for 8 p.m., Tuesday, Nov. 11th, at the Conway High School auditorium on U.S. 501 west of Conway. Admission is $3 at the door, less with a season ticket.

Roadside Theater has toured extensively in the South and has performed at the Smithsonian Institution's Folklife Festival in Washington. The group combines mountain music with old-time Appalachian story-telling.

"There's a strong theatrical heritage in Appalachia - in the church services, in the music and in storytelling," says Roadside performer Don Baker. "We try to deliver performances which will fascinate the schooled and the unschooled, sophisticated and unsophisticated, country folks and city dwellers."

The group's performance includes music, story telling and acting. The performers don't use costumes, make-up or props and they perform a few feet from the audience. Their mountain tales have been passed down from generation to generation in the mountains and their language, like that of many remote mountain communities, sounds much like Chaucer's English.

PIANIST PERFORMS FREE CONCERT ON NOV. 10

Noted pianist John Kenneth Adams will perform a survey of musical works by Ludwig Van Beethoven in a free concert at 7:30 p.m., Monday, Nov. 10th, in the Lecture Hall at USC-Coastal Carolina College.

Adams has performed widely in the U.S. and Europe, including concerts in Carnegie Hall and in London's Wigmore Hall. His performance at Coastal will depict brief but crucial periods in the life of Beethoven.

USC-COASTAL SPONSORS PERSONAL DEVELOPMENT SEMINAR

USC-Coastal Carolina College will sponsor Dr. Ira Progoff's "Intensive Journal" workshop on Nov. 21-22 at the Holiday Inn in Surfside Beach. The purpose of the workshop, its originators say, is to develop the individual's spiritual, mental and physical resources through the process of keeping a journal. The program is open to the public and advance registration is required by November 10th.

Tuition for the workshop is $85 and includes dinner Friday, lunch on Saturday and all materials needed in the workshop.

Dr. Ron Gestwicki, a program leader, will guide participants through the workshop, which is sponsored by the Office of Continuing Education at USC-Coastal Carolina College.

"The program," says creator Progoff, "enables individuals, regardless of age and level of education, to draw their lives into focus and enlarge their capacities. It is non-judgmental, non-diagnostic. It is a way of clarifying where you are now in your life, determining what your resources are, and deciding on new directions. It has a strong spiritual and creative quality."

The workshop guides participants through written exercises in the Journal, a workbook organized into sections that reportedly help participants understand the structure and patterns of their inner and out life.

COASTAL TO OFFER LOW-COST NUTRITION PROGRAM

A federal grant to the USC Department of Health will enable residents of the Waccamaw-Grand Strand area to participate in a special nutrition program at USC-Coastal Carolina College for only $10, college officials have announced.

"South Carolinians may not realize it, but our state has one of the nation's highest rates of diet-disease, with unusually high rates of hypertension, cardiovascular disease, stroke, diabetes, anemia and cirrhosis of the liver," says Dr. Sally Z. Hare, Director of Continuing Education at Coastal Carolina College. "To help eliminate these threats, Coastal is sponsoring a non-credit, short-course entitled "Nutrition in the Life Cycle," she says.

The course will be taught on Tuesday evenings, 6:30-9:30, Nov. 11-Dec. 30th in room 104 of Coastal's Academic Building. The course is sponsored by the college and the S.C. Nutrition Council and consists of eight three-hour course modules which will present information vital to good nutrition, Hare says.

The course is designed for human services personnel or for the individual. More information may be obtained from the Office of Continuing Education at Coastal.
