Volume 10, Number 6

Endowed Business Chair established in memory of Colonel Lindsey H. Vereen

Vivian Vereen, wife of the late Colonel Lindsey H. Vereen, has made a significant donation to Coastal's E. Craig Wall Sr. School of Business Administration to fund the Colonel Lindsey H. Vereen Endowed Business Chair. This is the first endowed chair established at Coastal named in honor of a former faculty member.

The business chair will work closely with the dean of the School and the Board of Visitors to further the mission of the Wall School of Business and Coastal.

Vereen, who died in June 1995, was a member of the Coastal faculty, serving as assistant professor of business administration from 1966 to 1977.

Born in Wauchula, Fla., Vereen was raised on a farm just outside Little River, S.C. He graduated from Wampee High School where he excelled in academics and basketball. He received a scholarship to The Citadel where he earned a bachelor's degree in civil engineering in 1936.

Following graduation, Vereen was commissioned a second lieutenant and served as assistant commandant for The Citadel. He attended flying school in San Antonio, Texas, and in 1940 was awarded a regular commission in the Army Air Corps. During World War II he led bombing runs over Japan from the island of Guam. Vereen earned the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Air Medal, the Bronze Star and other medals.

Vereen remained with the Army Air Corps (later the U.S. Air Force) following World War II as a career officer. In 1951 the Air Force sent him to the University of Pittsburgh where he received a master's degree in industrial management. In the late 1950s he was transferred to the U.S. Air Force Headquarters in Europe where he assumed the role of director of War Plans. His career included two stints in the Strategic Air Command. Vereen also was base commander at Chennault Air Force Base in Lake Charles, La., for two years.

President. As deputy director for management of the Office of Management and Budget, he worked closely with Vice President Gore on the Clinton Administration's "reinventing government" initiatives.

Before entering government service, Lader was president of Sea Pines Company in Hilton Head Island, S.C., and executive vice president of the late Sir James Goldsmith's U.S. holding company. He also served as president of Winthrop University in Rock Hill, S.C., and Bond University in Australia. Lader received an honorary degree from Coastal in 1993.

Lader, who resides in Hilton Head Island, was chairman of the South Carolina Governor's Small and Minority Business Council, a director of the South Carolina Chamber of Commerce, and a director of First Union National Bank (S.C.) and First Carolina Bank. He was also a candidate for South Carolina Governor in 1986, having chaired and served on the boards of numerous economic development and education institutions and projects.

Lader is a member of the Council on Foreign Relations and the Chief Executives Organization, and is an Honorary Fellow of Pembroke College, Oxford University. He formerly served on the boards of the American Red Cross, Duke University's Public Policy Institute, and several banks and universities, as well as president of Business Executives for National Security.

A native of Jackson Heights, N.Y., Lader earned a bachelor's degree from Duke University in 1966 and a master's degree in history from the University of Michigan. He completed graduate studies in juris prudence at Oxford University in 1968 and earned a juris doctor degree from Harvard Law School in 1972.

Famed Martha Graham Dance troupe to perform at Coastal Carolina

The Martha Graham Dance Ensemble, the professional performing company of the legendary Martha Graham School of Contemporary Dance, will perform at Coastal on Saturday, April 1 at 7:30 p.m. in Wheelwright Auditorium. Admission is $20; $10 for students under age 18.

The company will perform a selection of short works choreographed by the late Martha Graham (1894-1991), recognized as one of the most influential American artists of the 20th century. Graham created 181 ballets which revolutionized the art of dance. Her company has been a training ground for many of the world's finest choreographers, dancers and actors. Graham's creative genius earned her many honors and awards, including the Medal of Freedom and the National Medal of Arts.

The program will include pieces from such Graham masterworks as Night Journey (1947), Diversion of Angels (1948), Temptations of the Moon (1986) as well as new works such as Conversation of Lovers.

The performance is part of Coastal's Wheelwright Gala, an annual event which raises funds for an endowment to benefit the university's cultural programming mission.

For more information, contact the Wheelwright Box Office at 349-2502.

Sankofa African-American Museum on Wheels to be displayed at Coastal

The Sankofa African-American Museum on Wheels will be displayed at Coastal on March 29 and 30 in Wall Auditorium. The museum, which is free and open to the public, will be available Wednesday, March 29 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Thursday, March 30 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The exhibit of collector Angela Jennings-Small traces African-American history from 1860 to the present. Included in the exhibit are items such as sweet grass baskets, a Martin Luther King Jr. stamp collection, a doll commemorating Duke Ellington, African masks and headdresses and items invented by African-Americans.

For more information, contact Pat Singleton-Young in Coastal's Office of Multicultural Student Services at 349-2304.

Coastal Carolina's Academic Schools to be renamed Colleges

Effective with the beginning of the 2000-2001 academic year, Coastal's academic "Schools" will be renamed as "Colleges."

- E. Craig Wall Sr. School of Business Administration will be the E. Craig Wall Sr. College of Business Administration,
- School of Education will be the College of Education,

- School of Humanities and Fine Arts will be the College of Humanities and Fine Arts, and

- School of Natural and Applied Sciences will be the College of Natural and Applied Sciences.

This change appropriately represents the growth of academic programs, the maturity of the institution and is consistent with the academic unit designations in similar higher education institutions.

Coastal hosts roundtable discussion on First Amendment issues

Harvard law professor Arthur R. Miller will moderate a roundtable discussion on the subject of "First Amendment Conflicts Between the Right of a Fair Trial and a Free Press" on Friday, March 24 at 7:30 p.m. in Coastal's Wall Auditorium. The event is free and open to the public.

The dialogue will feature a panel of practitioners from the legal and journalism professions who will argue various viewpoints according to the Socratic method. The panelists include: Jerry Ausband, editorial page editor of The Sun News; Jay Bender, attorney for the South Carolina Press Association and South Carolina Broadcasters Association; Claudia Brinson, associate editorial page editor for The State; Myrtle Beach defense attorney Thomas C. Brittain; Reuben Greenberg, Charleston, S.C., chief of police; David W. Harwell, former chief justice of the South Carolina Supreme Court; attorney Ralph Wilson, former Horry County solicitor and Lee Bollinger, Coastal assistant professor of English.

Miller is the Bruce Bromley Professor of Law at Harvard Law School, where he has taught since 1971. He has moderated numerous Socratic dialogues for several PBS series including The Constitution: That Delicate Balance, The Presidency, and Managing Our Miracles: Health Care in America. For many years Miller was legal editor of ABC's Good Morning America and he hosted a weekly program on the Courtroom Television Network. He is nationally known for his work on court procedure, a subject on which he has written or co-written more than 25 books. He also is a recognized authority on the subject of right of privacy. Before joining the Harvard faculty, Miller practiced law in New York City.

The event is being sponsored by Coastal's Waccamaw Center for Cultural and Historical Studies. For more information, call 349-2568.

Did You Know?

Coastal art studio seniors Beth Dambman, Tonya Gore and Beth Perry will display their works in the art gallery through March 27 as part of the Senior Art Shows.

Officers gain certification

Lt. Charles Turner, Cpl. Thomas Mezzapelle and Officer Janice Schwartz of Coastal's Office of Law Enforcement and Safety recently completed training to be certified as marijuana analysts. The training, held at the State Law Enforcement Division (SLED) headquarters in Columbia, included how to identify marijuana microscopically and chemically. The officers were required to correctly identify 100 samples with complete accuracy. The certification allows the officers to verify a sample as being marijuana and testify as to its authenticity without the sample having to be analyzed by SLED.

Coastal adult students inducted into Alpha Sigma Lambda

Nineteen students were inducted into Coastal's Alpha Pi chapter of Alpha Sigma Lambda, an honor society for continuing students age 25 and older, in a ceremony on March 7. The program, in its second year, is sponsored by Coastal's Division of Extended Learning and Public Services.

To be eligible for membership, students must be matriculated in an undergraduate degree program and have a minimum of 24 graded semester hours at Coastal. Members are selected only from the highest 10 percent of the class, and must have a grade point average of at least 3.2 on a 4.0 scale.

Coastal offers Certificate in Effective Management Practices

Coastal is offering a non-credit program which will allow adults to earn a Certificate in Effective Management Practices. The program is designed for people who are entering a management or supervisory-level position or who want to upgrade their present skills.

The program consists of six seminars, each presented in two parts on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 6 to 9 p.m., beginning March 21. Participants will learn to analyze information for decision making; supervise, lead and develop employees; communicate effectively inside and outside the organization; and how to manage a growing multicultural work force.

Certification requires the completion of six courses. Four of the six courses are offered each semester. Courses may be taken in any order or may be taken individually (not for certification). The registration fee for each seminar is $139, or $699 for the entire certificate program. Take the entire certificate program and save more than $200. College credits may not be earned nor is a college degree required for participation.

Classes will meet in the Burroughs and Chapin Center for Excellence at Myrtle Square Mall in Myrtle Beach. The program is offered through Coastal's Division of Extended

Learning and Public Services

The following seminars will be offered as part of the spring 2000 program:

- Making Management Decisions
– March 21 and 23
- Supervising Successfully
– March 29 and 30
- Business Communication Skills
– April 4 and 6
- Information Technology and the Manager – April 11 and 13

To register, or to receive more information, contact Coastal's Division of Extended Learning and Public Services at 349-2665 or visit the Web site at www.coastal.edu/learn.

2000 Faculty's Academic Excellence Award

The Office of the Provost is receiving applications for the University Faculty's Academic Excellence Award until 4:30 p.m., Monday, April 3. This Academic Excellence Award recognizes graduating students who have accumulated a record of outstanding academic achievement.

The award will be presented at the University's Annual Honors Convocation on Monday, April 24 at 7 p.m. Students eligible for this award must satisfy the following criteria: graduating in spring, summer or fall 2000; having earned a 3.5 or above overall, cumulative grade point average; and submitting a completed application form (and a copy of transcript from Registrar's Office) endorsed by a faculty member certifying academic excellence reflected by a "discipline-related activity."

Applications will be reviewed, and a selection made, by a faculty committee representing the schools of the university and the Office of the Provost.

Eligible students may obtain the application forms in the Office of the Provost, SNGL 121. The application deadline is 4:30 p.m., Monday, April 3. Students or faculty having questions regarding this award should contact Chris Martin in the Office of the Provost, 349-2086.

Advanced Registration

Advanced registration for 2000 summer sessions and 2000 fall semester will be held April 3 and 4. Registration will be limited to the following schedule: Monday, April 3, seniors with 90 or more credit hours from 8:30 a.m. to noon; juniors with 60 to 90 credit hours from 1 to 5 p.m.; Tuesday, April 4, sophomores with 30 to 59 credit hours from 8:30 to noon; and freshmen with up to 29 credit hours from 1 to 5 p.m. Eligibility for regis-
