Ingle named interim chancellor

Ronald R. Ingle has been named interim chancellor at Coastal effective April 1.

USC President John M. Palms announced the appointment Tuesday, March 24, in a letter to Coastal’s faculty, students, and staff.

Ingle, who has served as Coastal’s vice chancellor for academic affairs since August 1988, will replace Chancellor Ron Eaglin who leaves June 30 to become president of Morehead State University in Kentucky.

Eaglin will preside over Coastal’s commencement ceremonies and serve as special assistant to Palms until his departure.

“Chancellor Eaglin has given dedicated service to the campus and to the university, and I thank him and wish him well,” Palms said in making the announcement. “I appreciate his willingness to assist Dr. Ingle in this transition to his role as interim chancellor.”

“Open, collegial communication is essential to the proper operation of a university, especially when a system and a campus face major changes at such an unsettled time,” Palms said.

He added that in making his decision he sought “the collective wisdom of the campus and to learn more about its particular concerns and interests.

“During several visits,” Palms said, “we explored, frankly and openly, the future and what was best for Coastal Carolina College. I benefitted greatly from the insights of the faculty, staff, and students, and I appreciate the considered judgement they gave to our meetings.”

Having reflected carefully on the ideas and goals shared by representatives of the State government reform topic of forum

We The People: Reclaiming South Carolina’s Future, a forum on the reform of state government, will be televised live from Wheelwright Auditorium on Wednesday, April 8 at 7 p.m. on WBTW-TV 13 of Florence and South Carolina Educational Television. The event is free and open to the public.

USC Coastal Carolina College, The Sun News, WBTW-TV 13, and SCETV have joined forces with The State newspaper, WIS-TV 10 in Columbia and the University of South Carolina to provide opportunities for South Carolinians to learn the facts and arguments about the reform of state government.

The forum is the fifth in a five-part series that have been held across the state since Jan. 28.

Chief Judge Alex Sanders of the South Carolina Appeals Court and incoming president of The College of Charleston is moderator of the series. Eight panelists will share their views on structural problems in South Carolina state government and how best to remedy these problems. Panelists include: Coastal government and international studies professor Eddie Dyer; Neal Thigpen, professor and chair of the Political Science Department at Francis Marion College; Erick Ficken, financial consultant, Merrill Lynch Pierce Fenner and Smith; State Sen. Doug Hinds; Clyde Port, retired vice president of marketing for Mobil East, Inc.; David Beasley, speaker pro tempore in the South Carolina House of Representatives; and Georgetown attorney Linda Grice. Questions and comments from the audience will be encouraged. For more information, contact the Chancellor’s Office.

German classic featured as part of international film series

The German film Pandora's Box will be featured Sunday, April 5 at 3 p.m. in Wheelwright Auditorium. The film is the last in the seven-part international film segment of the 1991-1992 Wheelwright Passport. Tickets for Pandora's Box are $3, or $2 for students, and are available in advance or at the door.

When G.W. Pabst's film was released in 1929, it caused endless controversy due to its depiction of a woman who enjoyed her erotic pleasures. Pandora's Box made Louise Brooks an overnight sensation. Brooks stars as Lulu, a woman who uses everyone she meets for her pleasure and convenience. She takes what she wants without regard to society's rules. As Lulu descends into a life of degradation and crime, she ends up in the arms of Jack the Ripper. Pandora's Box has been called a compelling and fascinating film.

For more information on Wheelwright Passport events, contact the Wheelwright Box Office.

Coastal named in national magazine

The following article is reprinted from Readers Digest, April 1992 edition, page 40. (We thought you would like to know.)

Name Game

When the lightly regarded Coastal Carolina Chanticleers made it into the NCAA basketball tournament last year, the school's nickname may have raised as many eyebrows as its presence in the playoff. But numerous other college teams have equally unusual nicknames. Here are just a few:

California-Santa Cruz Banana Slugs
Colby College (Maine) White Mules
Florida A&M Rattlers
Kent State Golden Flashes
Pace University Setters
University of Richmond Spiders
St. Ambrose University Fighting Bees
Southwestern Louisiana Ragin' Cajuns
University of Utah Utes
Virginia Tech Hokies
Wake Forest Demon Deacons
Western Illinois Leathernecks
Western Kentucky Hilltoppers
And what is a chanticleer? As all Coastal Carolinians know, it's a rooster.

Coastal Carolina People

Richard Collin and Roy Talbert will appear on The Writers Circle, a production of South Carolina Educational Television, Sunday, April 5 at midnight. Colin and Talbert were interviewed by Patti Just, host for the program. Collin discussed his latest book Winter of Fire: The Abduction of General Dozier and the Fall of the Red Brigades. Talbert discussed his books FDR’s Utopian: Arthur Morgan of the Tennessee Valley Authority and Negative Intelligence.

Sandy Mishoe recently officiated at the Regional Citizen’s Bee held for high school students from the Pee Dee Region. The Citizen’s Bee, patterned after the traditional Spelling Bee, is sponsored by the Close Up Foundation and was coordinated in South Carolina by the Secretary of State’s office. Following state competition, the state winner will advance to national competition. The purpose of the Citizen’s Bee is to enhance student interest and awareness in those areas of academics which touch every private citizen’s life, and to encourage increased involvement by our future leaders in their government.

Vicki Gardner recently received training in the TIPS program sponsored by Better Brands, Inc. of Myrtle Beach. TIPS (Training for Intervention Procedures by Servers of Alcohol) procedures will be used on campus to train clubs and groups in alcohol risk management.

Veronica Gerald, Susan Meyers, Sally Purcell, Jill Sessions and Glenda Sweet recently attended the North Carolina Women Writers Conference held in Winston-Salem.

David Barnwell and Jim Blackburn have been named delegates to the South Carolina Curriculum Congress. Both attended the foreign language sessions at the spring meeting of the Congress held recently in Cayce.

Sha-Ron E. Jones was a session presenter at the regional conference of the Southern Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers recently held in Birmingham, Alabama. Zenobia Hikes of Louisiana State University at Shreveport was a co-presenter. Their topic was Concerns of First-Generation College Bound Students and Their Families. The session included college costs, career placement, typical social and academic activities, and financial aid information needed by first-generation families. The presentation was supported by a videotape of interviews involving students, parents, counselors and two Coastal administrators. The videotape is available for preview in the Admissions Office.

Jim Michie presented a special seminar for the public for the Bellefield Nature Center, Belle W. Baruch Foundation. His lecture was entitled The Search for San Miguel de Guadalupe. He also presented the lecture to the Men of the Church group at Trinity Presbyterian Church in Surfside Beach.

Ed Cerny recently attended the American Academy of Advertising Conference in San Antonio, Texas, where he presented Advertising in Central Europe. He was also chosen to chair the International Advertising Education Committee for the 1992-1993 year.
