Coastal welcomes Franken to campus

Lynn Franken has assumed the position of dean of the College of Humanities and Fine Arts and professor of English at Coastal Carolina University. She is responsible for all administrative aspects of the college, which comprises nine departments and has 65 full-time faculty members.

Franken comes to Coastal from Butler University in Indianapolis, Ind., where she has served as chair of the Department of English since 1994. She also served as associate dean of Butler's College of Liberal Arts and Sciences from 1992 to 1994. Franken earned a bachelor's degree and a master's degree in English from Texas Tech University and a Ph.D. in English from the University of Texas at Austin.

"I am happy to be here and most appreciative of the warm welcome I have received at Coastal," said Franken. "I look forward to an interesting and productive year with colleagues and students."

Departments within the College of Humanities and Fine Arts which report to the dean are: art, English, foreign languages, history, music, philosophy and religion, politics and geography and theater. The Waccamaw Center for Cultural and Historical Studies also reports to the dean.

Blank resigns to take AD position at Drake

Coastal President Ronald R. Ingle has announced that Director of Athletics Dave Blank has resigned, effective August 1. Blank has accepted the athletic director's position at Drake University, a member of the Missouri Valley Conference, in Des Moines, Iowa.

According to Ingle, a national search for a new director of athletics is under way. An interim director of athletics will be named in the coming weeks.

"Coastal is fortunate to have had Dave Blank as director of athletics and the strides that have been made under his leadership have been monumental for Coastal," said Ingle. "Coastal's student-athletes have excelled on the playing field and in the classroom, where they have achieved grade point averages consistently at or near the top of the Big South Conference.

"This progressive commitment to excellence is also reflected in the improvements in facilities and the addition of intercollegiate football to the NCAA Division I offerings at Coastal. Dave has guided the initial stages of the football program and design of the facility, including gaining support for the General Assembly's approval of $4 million for an athletic complex which will enhance the entire university," said Ingle.

In recent years, women's soccer and indoor track and field have been added as new sports; improvements have been made to Coastal's baseball stadium and softball field; permanent chairback seating and state-of-the-art lighting have been installed in Kimbel Arena; and many other physical improvements have been made throughout Coastal's athletic facilities. A Coastal alumnus and former Chanticleer baseball player recently made a sizeable gift that will be used to enhance the baseball facility, including a player clubhouse, improved dugouts and entrance plaza. Gifts to the CINO Club, the athletic booster organization of the university, have increased 450 percent since 1996 and several endowments have been created to provide athletic scholarships.

Williams appointed to Board of Trustees

George L. Williams Sr. has been appointed by Gov. Jim Hodges to serve as a member of Coastal Carolina University's Board of Trustees.

George L. Williams Sr.

Williams, a retired educator and civic leader, began his teaching career at Chestnut High School in Horry County in 1956 and was named assistant principal of Conway High School in 1969. He taught history part time at Coastal Carolina University (then USC Coastal Carolina College) from 1969 to 1974 and was the first African-American instructor at Coastal. He was principal of North Myrtle Beach High School from 1974 to 1986.

Williams serves on the board of trustees of many organizations in the region, including First Citizens Bank in Conway and Conway Hospital. He has served on the Horry County Higher Education Commission and was chairman of the Board of Trustees of Horry-Georgetown Technical College from 1977 to 1983. The Conway Area Chamber of Commerce awarded Williams the Laverne H. Creel Lifetime Achievement Award in 1992.

A native of Florence, Williams graduated from Wilson High School in Florence in 1949. He attended the Catholic University in Washington D.C. and earned a bachelor's degree and a master's degree from South Carolina State University.

Coastal's Board of Trustees has 17 members. Fifteen are elected by the General Assembly (two from each Congressional District and three from the state at large), one is appointed by the Governor, and one member is the Governor's designee.

Blank resigns

Blank was named Coastal's director of athletics on July 1, 1999. He joined Coastal in October 1996 as assistant director of athletics for development and marketing and was named associate director of athletics for development and administration in January 1999.

A native of Frostburg, Md., he was recruited to Duke University on a basketball scholarship. A knee injury ended his playing career and he began coaching basketball. Beginning in 1980 Blank assisted Bill Foster for five years at the University of South Carolina. In 1985, he went to Wofford College as assistant director of athletics and assistant basketball coach. He became head basketball coach at Lock Haven University in Pennsylvania in 1988 and led the team to 119 wins in eight seasons. He was twice named Pennsylvania Athletic Conference Coach of the Year.

Blank was preceded by George F. "Buddy" Sasser, whose long athletic career included six years as Coastal's athletic director, as well as seven years as commissioner of the Big South Conference. Sasser serves on the university's Football Advisory Committee.

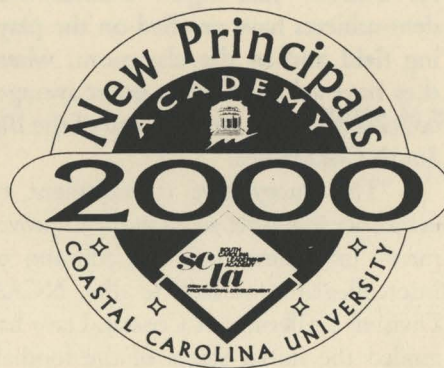

Coastal to host 15th annual New Principals' Academy

Approximately 80 new principals of South Carolina schools are expected to participate in the 15th Annual New Principals' Academy, which is scheduled for July 23 to 29 at Coastal Carolina University.

The New Principals' Academy is designed exclusively for first-year principals to help them develop and improve leadership and presentation skills.

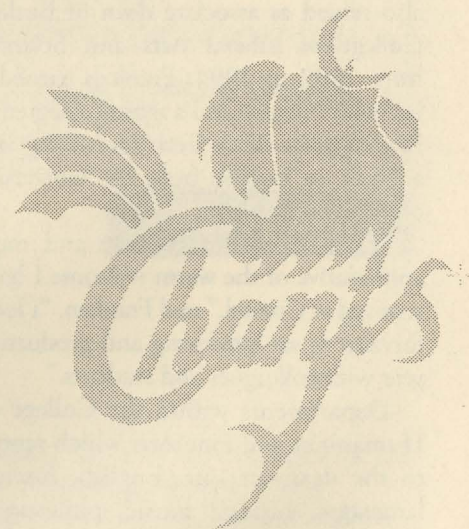

The academy gives participants an opportunity to discuss issues and concerns with other first-year principals, veteran principals and experts in the field. Each participant is paired with an experienced principal who serves as a mentor. Follow-up meetings throughout the year provide additional training in leadership and management skills and serve as a forum for exchanging ideas.

The five-day summer institute will include seminars conducted by state and local experts on such topics as team building, accountability, managing schools, finance, academic standards and safety.

The New Principals' Academy is sponsored by the South Carolina Department of Education's Office of Professional Development in response to State Regulation 43-167, which requires newly-appointed principals to attend a summer training institute to prepare for their positions.

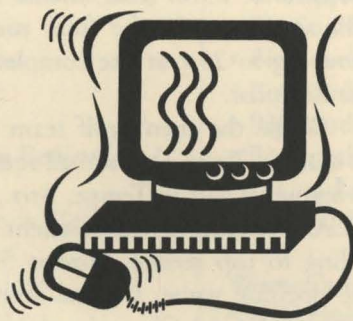

New course on computer information security to be offered this fall

As more and more reports surface regarding hackers who have penetrated, disrupted and compromised computer systems, Coastal Carolina University is offering a new course on computer information security practices and policies. "Introduction to Information Systems and Operations Security," (CSCI 499) scheduled for the fall 2000 semester, will address security concerns related to computers, telecommunications and operations.

"Very few universities are offering a course like this one," said Frank McCusker of Coastal's Department of Computer Science. "The class has been designed in response to an urgent industry need to know more about information-related attacks and defenses. Business professionals involved with any aspect of computer information will benefit by taking this class."

The course will be based on the 10 domains of Common Body of Knowledge for Certified Information Systems Security Professionals. It will examine the evolution and interpretation of national and international laws, policies, standards, guidelines and trends regarding information security. It will also cover the use of cryptography, public key infrastructure and the economic, industrial, military and political aspects of what is now known as Information Warfare. The course will provide students with a solid understanding of the terminology and tradecraft of information security, computer security and operations security.

For more information on the course, contact McCusker in Coastal's Department of Computer Science at 349-2144 or 497-0386, or by e-mail to mccusker@coastal.edu.

Division of Extended Learning names three to Board of Visitors

Coastal Carolina University's Division of Extended Learning and Public Services has added three members to its Board of Visitors for the 2000-2001 academic year.

The new members are: Teal Williamson Britton, coordinator of communications, Horry County Schools; Steve Robertson, publisher, Horry Independent; and Rachel Broadhurst, president, Century 21 Broadhurst, Myrtle Beach.

The Division of Extended Learning and Public Services offers credit and non-credit courses on computer applications, professional and career development, personal enrichment, foreign languages as well as such programs as the Bachelor of Arts in Interdisciplinary Studies degree, independent distance learning opportunities, travel programs and the Lifelong Learning Society, an academic enrichment program for adult learners.

Members of the board of visitors will provide guidance to the division as it develops programs which meet the increasing demand for specialized, professional continuing education in the area.

For more information about programs offered by Coastal's Division of Extended Learning and Public Services call 349-2665 or visit the Web site at www.coastal.edu/learn.

Jordan named to Wall College Board of Visitors

Charles B. Jordan has been named chair of the Board of Visitors of the E. Craig Wall Sr. College of Business Administration at Coastal Carolina University.

Charles B. Jordan

Jordan is owner and president of Chancel Construction Group, Inc. A native of Conway, he attended Coastal Carolina College in 1963 and 1964 and earned a bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering from the University of South Carolina in 1968.

Jordan is chairman of the Conway Rotary Foundation and director of the Conway High School Education Foundation. He is a past president of the Horry-Georgetown Homebuilders Association and the Conway Rotary Club and past chair of the Conway Planning and Zoning Commission. Jordan was named Small Businessman of the Year in 1984 and 1992 by the Conway Chamber of Commerce and Rotary Club. He received the 1992 Distinguished Service Award from the Conway Rotary Club.

The Wall College of Business Board of Visitors provides leadership and resources for the development of programs that address the academic needs of students as well as the business interests of the area. Forty-two area business and community leaders serve on the Board of Visitors.

Did You Know?

The Office of Career Services provided a record 4,502 student and employer contacts in 1999-2000, in which a record 1,623 full-time (up 62 percent) and 917 part-time (up 84 percent) jobs and 36 internships (up 58 percent) were processed.

Chanticleers impressive during 1999-2000 season

Coastal's 15 NCAA Division I sports concluded the 1999-2000 season with the men's golf team earning the program's first-ever trip to the NCAA Golf Regionals, while the Lady Chanticleers softball team earned the program's second trip to the NCAA Softball Championships.

The men's golf team won the Big South Conference Championship for the fourth consecutive year and earned the Conference's first-ever automatic bid to the NCAA Regionals. The squad, led by senior Brad Hastings, got off to a great start in the first round of the Central Regional in Victoria, Texas, as the Chanticleers held first place through 18 holes. An afternoon start and deteriorating weather affected Coastal's play in round two as the squad dropped to 23rd. The Chants fired a 289 as a team in the final round to move up to 21st at the completion of the Regional.

While the men's golf team swung its clubs in Texas, the softball squad was swinging its bats in Tempe, Ariz., at the NCAA Region 5 Tournament. After falling to top seeded Arizona State in the opening game, Coastal scored the first-ever NCAA Championship victory for a women's team in any sport in the Big South Conference with a 4-2 victory over 21st ranked Florida Atlantic. The Lady Chants then eliminated Penn State 3-1 to move into the final game in the loser's bracket and again face Arizona State. Freshman Holly Lee's two-out single in the first inning scored Sara Thompson to give Coastal a 1-0 advantage. Sophomore pitcher Lauren Yates held Arizona State scoreless through 6.2 innings, but a single with two outs in the top of the seventh inning scored two runs to end Coastal's season 2-1.

Overall, Coastal's student-athletes earned 75 Big South All-Conference honors, seven Big South Scholar Athlete of the Year honors, four Big South Player of the Year awards, and five Big South Rookie of the Year awards. The outstanding performances by the student-athletes during the 1999-2000 seasons led the way to six Big South Conference Coach of the Year awards.

Coastal Carolina People

Faculty and staff are encouraged to submit information to be included in the "Coastal Carolina People" section of this newsletter. Information will be published following the presentation or activity.

- Olcay Akman and Prashant Sansgiry's, article "Transformation for the Lognormal Distribution as a Selection Model" has been accepted for publication in The American Statistician.

- Lee Bollinger and Paul Olsen assisted Coastal students who provided the text and layout for the recent newsletter of SOS Health Care of Myrtle Beach.

- Matt Morrin recently served as a facilitator and educational session presenter at the 2000 National Student Government East Workshop sponsored by the National Association for Campus Activities at Towson University. The workshop is designed to give student government officers and advisers the skills, resources and networks they need to facilitate an effective student government. Coastal's 2000-2001 SGA officers, David Woodley, Brent Hysinger, Michel Ward and Eric Sauthoff, also attended the workshop.

- Phil Schneider paper "The Demise of Ethical Monism," has been published at the On-Line Journal of Ethics (<http://www.stthom.edu/cbes/volumethreeone.html>). The journal's referees considered the paper to be "a lively and important contribution to applied ethics."

- Susan M. Libes was one of more than 70 scientists who participated in a national summit recently to chart the future of ocean science education. Participants in the summit, held at the University of Southern Mississippi May 23 to 26, identified needs and strategies for improving ocean science education and explored the feasibility of establishing national or regional centers for ocean science education excellence. Proposals developed during the summit were recommended to the National Science Foundation (NSF).
