Kimbel Lecture Series presents political analyst

Ed Rollins, political analyst and former H. Ross Perot adviser, will speak in Wheelwright Auditorium on Thursday, Oct. 29 at 7:30 p.m. Part of the Kimbel Distinguished Lecture Series, the lecture is free and open to the public. Seating is on a first-come, first-served basis, and tickets are available in Wheelwright Box Office, open weekdays from noon to 5 p.m.

Rollins will speak on the role of media and politics.

Prior to serving as one of H. Ross Perot's two national campaign managers until summer 1992, Rollins was a Republican strategist in the administrations of three presidents — Richard Nixon, Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan. During Reagan's first term, Rollins served as assistant to the president for political affairs before taking over as national campaign director of the Reagan/Bush re-election bid, during which he guided the largest electoral landslide in American history. Following the campaign, he rejoined the Reagan administration, returning to his post at the president's top political adviser.

In addition to Rollins' success in the 1984 Reagan/Bush campaign, Rollins has managed numerous political campaigns throughout the nation and has managerial roles in earlier Nixon and Reagan presidential campaigns. In 1988, he also served as national chairman for Jack Kemp's presidential campaign.

In 1989 and 1990, Rollins served as co-chair of the National Republican Congressional Committee, and was the only non-member of Congress to serve in this position.

Rollins also has held numerous positions in the California Legislature.

A graduate of the California State University System, Rollins was a nationally-ranked boxer, winning the Golden Glove and the A.A.U. championships. He also has been a varsity boxing coach, professor and university administrator in California

Coastal professor chairs international wetlands conference

Richard Dame recently was the senior chair and co-organizer of the International Ecological Society (INTECOL) Wetlands Conference held in Columbus, Ohio.

The conference attracted participants from North America and Europe.

At the conference, Dame presented a paper titled, "Inwelling and Outwelling of Materials in Marsh-estuarine Ecosystems Along the Atlantic Coast of the United States."

A follow-up workshop to the conference will be sponsored by the European Economic Community and will be held in Paris in 1994. Dame and Jean Claud Lefeuve of the University of Rennes in France will co-organize the event.

Dame has been on temporary leave from the college since summer 1992 when he was named director of the Ecosystems Studies Program at the National Science Foundation in Washington, D.C. Dame was recently named the NSF representative to the National Wetlands Committee.

Dame earned a bachelor's degree in biology from the College of Charleston, a master's degree in zoology and ecology from the University of North Carolina, and a Ph.D. in biology and marine studies from the University of South Carolina. He joined the Coastal faculty in 1971 and served as chair of the Marine Science Department until 1991, when he was named the first Palmetto Professor in the state. ~

A message from the chancellor . . .

Judy and I express our thanks for the many calls and expressions of support we received during her recent illness and successful surgery at Duke. Your support and concern is yet another example of the close relationship we share with each other in the Coastal family. Again, thanks. Ron Ingle

Family Weekend to be held Oct. 23 and 24

Coastal's first Family Weekend will be held Friday, Oct. 23 and Saturday, Oct. 24 with activities designed to involve the family members of students. In addition to parents, several grandparents and spouses have registered for the weekend program.

The schedule of activities on Friday includes private faculty appointments and a barbecue at the P. E. Center pool patio, with entertainment by Coastal Carolina Jazz Ensemble.

Saturday's program begins with registration and continental breakfast. A Hospitality Center to assist visitors will be open in the Student Center from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. During the General Session, participants will receive overviews with information about student life, academic services, and financial aid. Entertainment will be provided by the Coastal Carolina Jazz Ensemble.

Concurrent sessions will be presented with topics to include: The Student Perspective: Students Tell It Like It Is with a panel of Coastal students talking about life on campus – inside and outside the classroom; The Faculty Perspective, with discussion topics including the Honors Program, International Program, academic advisement, and Academic Center services; Financial Aid; The Waccamaw Center and How It Works where Charles Joyner will present a mini lecture; and Survival: How You Can Survive Your Student's College Experience, with Wade "Sandy" Baird offering important survival tips for parents.

After lunch in Spadoni Park, Coastal: The Next Year and The Next Decade will be presented by Chancellor Ingle who will give an update on current issues and plans for the future.

The activities will continue with a sightseeing cruise on the Intracoastal Waterway Aboard the Southern Star.

The final group activity planned will conclude with the Coastal vs. Davidson soccer match at 7 p.m.

Various campus offices and the Bookstore will be open limited hours on Saturday to assist parents and visitors.

The registration fee for Family Weekend is $20 per person. Coastal students may attend the on-campus activities at no charge if accompanied by a registered family member. Everyone who plans to attend the sightseeing cruise along the Intracoastal Waterway, aboard the Southern Star, must purchase a $10 boarding pass – Coastal students are not exempt from this charge.

Faculty and staff who would like to participate in the waterway cruise may do so by submitting the $10 fee, made payable to Family Weekend, to Sue Colvard by Wednesday, Oct. 21.

For more information, contact Sue Colvard. ~

Collegiate fishing rivalry to be held Oct. 30

When the first Coastal Carolina Invitational Sportfishing Match was held 19 years ago, it was Coastal versus Francis Marion in a one-day deep sea competition. Through the years, teams from New England (Yale), Canada (Western Ontario), and even Japan were added. Clemson, Pembroke State and UNC-Wilmington fished for grouper, snapper and king mackerel with Coastal hosting a two-day competition out of Little River and Murrells Inlet.

It is back to basics Friday, Oct. 30 with a less expensive one-day bottom fishing and live-lining trip for king mackerel, cobia and dolphin, with only three teams fishing. The sportfishing seminar, conducted by members of the Grand Strand Saltwater Anglers Club, will be held on the boat. The end-of-the tournament banquet will be at Captain Dick's Marina in Murrells Inlet.

In 1991, the tournament was moved from late September, near National Hunting and Fishing Day, to the end of October. Local observance of National Hunting and Fishing Day had declined in recent years, but the weather was more of a factor in the changed date of the tournament. "We thought we might get cooler and less stormy weather in October – and we did last year," said tournament director and founder, Donald Millus. "We hope the windy and rainy weather along the coast in September was clearing the decks for good weather at the end of this month," he said.

Competing teams – Coastal, Clemson, and Francis Marion – will fish on the "New Capt. Bill" out of Captain Dick's Marina. Tom Swatzel is donating his service to captain the boat. Weigh-in will be at 5 p.m. and will be open to the public. Prizes have been donated by major tackle companies including Abu-Garcia, Buck Knives, Shimano, Dupont, Shakespeare, Berkley, Plano, Ande, Eagle Claw and Zebco.

Judges for the tournament include Richard Moore, who has been chief judge for the Invitational since 1974; noted angler Richard Lee; and Jim Godfrey, fishing columnist for The Sun News. ~

Area artist's work to be exhibited at Coastal

An exhibit of sculpture and mixed media paintings by North Myrtle Beach artist Mike Todd will be on display in the gallery of the Graduate and Continuing Education Building from Thursday, Oct. 22 through Tuesday, Nov. 17. The exhibit will be open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and is free and open to the public. In conjunction, an opening reception will be held Thursday, Oct. 22 from 2 to 5 p.m. in the gallery. The reception also is open to the public.

Todd named his project, "The Myth," portraying his experiences and confrontations on personal, political and religious levels. "The Myth" is a follow-up to the artist's original project, "The Specialization of Man," which, according to Todd, "integrated technique and that process with my philosophical views of existentialism expressed with the universal expression of symbols."

For information, call Charles Wright.~

Art professor to demonstrate watercolor printing

Maura Kenny will demonstrate water-based mono-printing on Friday, Oct. 30 from 4 to 6 p.m. in the Art Center, room 112. The demonstration is free and open to the public. A reception follows the demonstration.

The demonstration is part of a series of regional gatherings of the South Carolina Watercolor Society and is funded, in part, by the South Carolina Arts Commission and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Note to faculty from academic affairs

The following students will be participating in the college sponsored Industry Field Study held in Atlanta, Monday, Oct. 19 through Friday, Oct. 23. I would appreciate your making allowances for classes missed during this time.

The students are: Sherry Allen, Donna Cooke, Richard De Lillo, Lorrie de Roche, Laurie Edwards, Laurel Eggart, Lee Floyd, Jennifer Flynn, Chrystal Greene, Dawn Haney, Eric Hartner, Jeanna Johnson, Chrystal Richardson, and Kelly Woodward.

Passport series presents Shakespeare's "The Two Gentlemen of Verona"

The Wheelwright Council for the Arts presents the North Carolina Shakespeare Festival (NCSF) OutReach Tour production of William Shakespeare's "The Two Gentlemen of Verona" on Tuesday, Oct. 20 at 7:30 p.m. in Wheelwright Auditorium. The performance is part of the 1992-1993 Wheelwright Passport series and is open to the public. Tickets are $12 and $9 for students.

One of Shakespeare's earliest plays, "The Two Gentlemen of Verona" is thought to be the bard's first romantic comedy.

NCSF's production of "The Two Gentlemen of Verona" is set in Italy - in the 1920s. According to Louis Rackoff, the director of the play, "Instead of setting the action against the formality of a Renaissance court, we're allowing our Duke of Milan to hold 'court' in a 1920s cafe at the base of a 400-year-old Renaissance building. In looking for a more modern context for the romantic entanglements of the play, we chose a cafe where politicians and artists could mingle, and in which the various young people in the story could fall in love. We're being playful in our setting for 'The Two Gentlemen of Verona' in a effort to make this buoyant comedy as accessible and happy as possible."

The two major themes of the play are

Truffaut film shown as part of Passport series

The 1975 French film, The Story of Adele H, will be shown on Sunday, Nov. 1 at 3 p.m. in Wheelwright Auditorium. The film is the third in the six-part international film series of the 1992-1993 Wheelwright Passport season. Tickets for The Story of Adele H are $3, or $1 for students, and are available in advance or at the door.

This Francois Truffaut film is a haunting true tale of obsession. Acclaimed French actress Isabelle Adjani portrays Adele, the daughter of French author Victor Hugo. When Adele's fiance breaks their engagement, she refuses to listen and becomes consumed with spying the question of fidelity in love and the conflict between friendship and romantic love. The action centers around Proteus, the inconstant lover, and Valentine, the romantic, who slip in and out of love's fortune in this play filled with deception and disguise. Included in the comedy are Julia, the faithful; Silvia, the sophisticate; Lance and Speed, the irresistible servants; and Crab, the dog.

The North Carolina Shakespeare Festival was founded in 1977. Its mission is to entertain students and citizens with professional theater productions which spark imagination, stimulate intellect, educate emotions and foster creativity. In its first 15 years, the company has produced more than 80 of the world's classics, visited more than 225 communities in the Southeast, and has served more than 1.1 million theatergoers. The company is based in High Point, N.C.

"The Two Gentlemen of Verona" is sponsored, in part, by NationsBank, as well as by the Horry Cultural Arts Council and the South Carolina Commission which receive support from the National Endowment for the Arts.

on him. When he is transferred, she follows him to Barbados. Without friends or money and estranged from her family, she ends up living on the streets.

The film evolved when Truffaut became interested in Adele's diaries, which were discovered and published in the 1950s. Hugo's estate allowed the filming with the condition that the author not be physically portrayed on screen.

Other films in the international film series are: Way Down East, Jour De Fete and Cane Toads.

Octoberfest planned for faculty/staff

Singleton House members are invited to attend an Octoberfest celebration Wednesday, Oct. 21, beginning at 4:30 p.m. at the Singleton House, formerly the Faculty House.

Faculty and staff who have not joined Singleton House are invited to become members for $25 per academic year or $15 per semester. Many fun-filled activities are planned for the year, so now is the time to become a member if you haven't joined.

For more information or to join, call Joan Piroch or John Eberwein. ~

Teacher Cadets on campus for Fall Bash

More than 100 Teacher Cadets from 11 high schools in Georgetown, Horry, Marion, and Williamsburg counties were on campus Monday, Sept. 21 for the annual Fall Bash, sponsored by the School of Education.

Campus tours were available prior to the event. Cadets then participated in several "ice breaker" activities to provide introductions and give the students an opportunity to form new friendships among schools.

Speakers for the event were Carolyn Floyd, Coastal's 1991-1992 Teach-in-Residence, and Sonny Clardy, teacher at Aynor Conway Career Center. The speakers talked to the students about why they enjoy teaching, why they chose to become a teacher, teaching as a profession, and the rewards of teaching, according to Sharon Thompson, special events coordinator for the Teacher Cadet program at Coastal.

Later in the evening, cadets enjoyed pizza and practiced their performing skills through karaoke.

The Teacher Cadet program is considered an introduction or orientation to the teaching profession. Its main purpose is to encourage students who possess a high level of academic achievement and the personality traits found in good teachers to consider teaching as a career. Although the course is taught at a college freshman level, the curriculum includes simulations and other "hands-on" activities designed to excite high school students about teaching.

Coastal's School of Education serves as the college partner for 11 sites, which include Socastee High School, Conway High School, North Myrtle Beach High School, Myrtle Beach High School, Loris High School, Green Sea Floyds High School, Kingstree High School, Pleasant Hill High School, Georgetown High School, Waccamaw High School, and Terrell's Bay High School. ~

On Campus is published biweekly on Monday by the Public Relations Office. Information to be included should be submitted by noon the Tuesday before publication.

Professor leads search for rice planter's plantation in Waccamaw Neck

Jim Michie is leading a search for ruins of The Oaks, the plantation home of wealthy rice planters who lived in the Waccamaw Neck in the 1700s and 1800s. The dig is funded by private gifts to Brookgreen Gardens.

Beginning Monday, Oct. 19 the group will begin work to find the house and other structures believed to be part of the plantation. Today, the only reminder of The Oaks is the Alston cemetery and the property is the southern portion of Brookgreen Gardens. The team will continue to work through Friday, Dec. 4.

Michie said the project is significant in that the property relates to state and nationally-know people, and the archaeological data will be important since it represents life on an affluent plantation and will provide information in contrast to other plantation studies conducted in the Waccamaw region.

He said the team will try to establish the layout of the entire plantation including the location of the plantation home, overseer's and driver's homes, slave cabins, barn and service buildings. He said he is hopeful that a later project can be dedicated to the excavation of the plantation house.

From historical writings and documentation, Michie said certain things are known of the former inhabitants of the plantation house. For example, Theodosia Burr, the daughter of Aaron Burr, married Joseph Alston and moved to the Waccamaw Neck in 1802. The son of a wealthy rice planter, Alston had acquired considerable wealth and had inherited The Oaks from his grandfather.

Two years later, Theodosia gave birth to a son, Aaron Burr Alston, during the same year her father shot and killed Alexander Hamilton. Although acquitted of murder charges, Burr left the country in self-imposed exile and did not return until 1812. Diaries reveal that Theodosia's life was filled with embarrassment and even though she had her child, she longed for the love and support of her father. When Burr finally returned, he was in New York for only a short time when he received a letter from Theodosia explaining that her son had died.

In December 1812, she decided to visit her father. She boarded the Patriot in Georgetown and sailed on the last day of the year. She was never heard from again. Historical writings contain conflicting reports of the ship's disappearance - attributable to a pirate attack or a storm.

Four years later, her husband, who was elected governor of South Carolina in 1812, died at The Oaks.

The Oaks passed to Joseph's nephew, also named Joseph, and even though the plantation was active in terms of rice production, it had no permanent planter. The house burned to the ground sometime between 1816 and 1854 and after emancipation, the plantation fell into ruin and collapsed. In 1930, Archer Huntington purchased the property, which was covered with a thick forest of oaks and undergrowth.

Michie has 17 years of professional archaeological experience; he has led excavations at Richmond Hill and Wachesaw plantations, among others. He joined the Coastal faculty in 1990 and is associate director of the Waccamaw Center for Cultural and Historical Studies. ~

South Texas birding trip offered

A birding trip to the South Texas Wildlife Corridor is being offered through Graduate and Continuing Education for spring 1993. Participants will leave from Myrtle Beach Jetport on Saturday, March 13 and will return from Corpus Christi, Texas on Saturday, March 20.

While in Texas for six days, trip participants will visit the Lower Rio Grande Corridor as well as the Aransas NWR and Rockport area. The trip also includes a half-day boat tour. Participants can expect to see more than 150 species, including Whooping Cranes, White Pelicans, Chachalacas, and Green Jays.

Trip directors are Chris Marsh, who specializes in ornithology and wildlife ecology, and Reg Daves, an area physician, past president of the Waccamaw Audubon chapter, and wildlife photographer. Marsh has led birding trips for more than 20 years.

The cost of the trip is $1,195 and includes all transportation to and from Myrtle Beach, and lodging in Texas. Picnic lunches, entrance fees to parks and natural areas, and guide service are also included in the fee. The fee is based upon double occupancy and is subject to unexpected airfare increases.

To register for the trip, a $300 deposit is necessary by Nov. 30; the remaining $895 is due by Jan. 15. Special rates for senior citizens are available.

For information, call Graduate and Continuing Education or Chris Marsh. ~
