Coastal to celebrate Founders Day, honor Eldred E. Prince, Elizabeth Shaw

Coastal Carolina College will induct two honorary founders during its seventh Founders Day convocation Tuesday, Feb. 9 at 3 p.m. in Wheelwright Auditorium. The ceremony is open to the public.

Eldred E. Prince of Loris and Mrs. Elizabeth Shaw of Conway will be named honorary founders of the college. The 1993 recipients of the Founders Medallion join 32 other founders and honorary founders who have played instrumental roles in the development of Coastal Carolina College as well as in higher education and in the positive growth of Horry County.

Eldred E. Prince was a member of the Horry County Higher Education Commission (HCHCEC) from 1959 to 1964. While serving as HCHCEC chairman from 1961 to 1964, Prince directed a major fund-raising campaign for construction of the first building on the college campus. Ground was broken Oct. 12, 1962, for the Edward M. Singleton Building, and less than one year later, the college's 110 students were moved into the new building. Prince also served on the Coastal Educational Foundation from 1959 to 1976, serving on numerous committees and as chairman. In 1978, Prince received a special citation from the University of South Carolina for outstanding service to Coastal and higher education in Horry County, and in 1982, the University of South Carolina conferred upon Prince an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters.

Prince was educated in the public schools of Horry County and graduated from Wake Forest University in 1933. Prince then returned to Loris and established Prince Chevrolet, and served as president and chairman of the board for 44 years. In 1963, Prince was a principal organizer of Horry County National Bank

Live videoconference offered for educators and business leaders

A live, interactive videoconference for educators and business leaders, entitled "Creating Learning Organizations: Growth Through Quality," will be offered Friday, Feb. 26 from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. in GCEC 003. Pre-registration is recommended. The videoconference is $50, or $25 for Coastal faculty and staff, and includes lunch to be served at 11:30 a.m. Check-in will begin at 11 a.m.

"Creating Learning Organizations: Growth Through Quality" tackles the needs of businesses and schools to ensure the long-term survival, improvement, and growth of each. Topics include: how to increase motivation and productivity among students or employees, management principles, team learning, restructuring, achieving success, and business and education partnerships.

Peter Senge, director of the Organizational Learning Center at MIT's Sloan School of Management and author of "The Fifth Discipline: The Art and Practice of the Learning Organization" and W. Edwards Deming, founder of the "quality movement" in Japan and the United States, will be joined by the following panelists: Linda Darling Hammond, professor and director of the National Teaching Center for Restructuring Teaching and Learning at Teachers College at Columbia University;

Golf scholarship benefit dinners to be held

The fifth annual Coastal Carolina Golf Scholarship Benefit will be held Thursday, Feb. 4 through Saturday, Feb. 6 at Tony's Italian Restaurant in North Myrtle Beach. Four-course dinners, with a choice of three entries, will be served in two seatings each evening: at 5:30 and 8 p.m. The dinners are open to the public. Tickets are $30.

The event raises money for the men's and women's golf programs at Coastal. The dinners are sponsored by Jack Springs, owner of Tony's Restaurant, who initiated the fund-raising event in 1988. According to Tom Brennan, the golf program relies heavily on this event to raise money for scholarships and operational needs.

For tickets or more information, call the Athletic Office at extension 2820. ~

Swing Era jazz of Brooks Tegler Quartet to be presented

The Swing Era jazz of the late-1920s to the mid-1940s with the Brooks Tegler Quartet will be presented Saturday, Jan. 30 at 7:30 p.m. in Wheelwright Auditorium. The performance is part of the 1992-1993 Wheelwright Passport series and is open to the public. Tickets are $12 and $9 for students.

The quartet features Brooks Tegler on drums, John Colciani on piano, Chuck Redd on vibraharp, and Joe Midiri on clarinet. Although Tegler professes to be a disciple of the late drummer Gene Krupa and greatly influenced by the Benny Goodman combos, the group also performs the swing tunes of Artie Shaw's Gramercy Five, John Kirby's Sextet, Louis Jordan, Al Jolson, Edgar Sampson, and Nat King Cole.

Based in Washington, D.C., Tegler has been performing with the quartet or the eight-piece "Hot Jazz" for 11 years and has appeared as part of numerous festivals in the United States and Europe. The quartet's sounds have been featured in soundtracks for television and film, earning the group the Washington Area Music Award (WAMMIE) for jazz in 1986 and 1988.

Critics have described Tegler and his group as being well-knit, precise, idiomatic, and upbeat. A reviewer described the group as "the hottest band on the jazz circuit."

Tegler attributes the group's success to a commitment to capture the energy and fire of the Goodman sound. "There was a lot of fire in the original groups," Tegler said. "It is vitally important that a lot of the energy is there - we try to have the zip that they had when we play."

and served as chairman of the board for 11 years. As chairman of the Building Committee of Loris Community Hospital, Prince led efforts for construction of the hospital in 1950; he served as chairman of the hospital's board of commissioners for 33 years.

Elizabeth Shaw of Conway has been a member of the Horry County Higher Education Commission since 1985, served as chairman in 1990, treasurer since 1990, and chairman the Finance/Budget/Audit Committee since 1988. Shaw also has been active in the college's Coastal Council for Internationals and served as vice chairman and finance chairman of the Wheelwright Council for the Arts.

Shaw was employed at Canal Industries, Inc., for 43 years and held the positions of corporate treasurer, corporate secretary and secretary. She is part-owner of the accounting firm Ca-Wins, Inc. Shaw is a graduate of Conway High School and Motte's Business College in Wilmington, N.C. She has been active with the American Heart Association, American Cancer Society, United Way, March of Dimes, Salvation Army and Pilot Club of Conway, among others. In 1990, Shaw was awarded the American Legion Outstanding Community Service Award. In 1985, she received a commendation from the Horry County Delegation for service to the people of Horry County.

John M. Palms, president of the University of South Carolina, will deliver the keynote address. ~

According to Tegler, the works the group will perform "depend on our feelings," and may include numbers such as: Goodman's "Opus 1/2" and "Slipped Disc," Al Jolson's "Avalon," and Edgar Sampson's "Stompin' at the Savoy."

This performance is funded, in part, by the Horry Cultural Arts Council, an umbrella organization that provides assistance, support resource information and funding to individuals and organizations involved with the cultural, performing and visual arts in Horry County.

Also included in the Wheelwright Passport are: "Ain't Got Long to Stay Here," a gospel tribute to Martin Luther King Jr. on Feb. 14; "The Actor and The Assassin," based on Abraham Lincoln's assassination, on March 31; college theater productions of "The Homecoming" March 3 through 7 and the musical "1776" April 23 through 25; the second part of the Young Artist Showcase on April 1; and "Dear Liar," the theatrical portrayal of the relationship between Irish playwright George Bernard Shaw and British actress Stella Campbell, on April 29. All events will be held in Wheelwright Auditorium.

Groups of 20 or more purchasing single tickets for Passport events are offered special savings. Tickets also are available in packages for the professional events, college theater, and international films. Tickets may be purchased by telephone and charged to MasterCard or VISA.

For more information on Wheelwright Passport events or ticket information, call the Wheelwright Box Office, weekdays from noon to 5 p.m. ~

Back by popular demand

Recycling containers have been placed at three locations on campus. Containers for newspapers, plastic bottles including water, milk and soft drinks, and aluminum cans are located at the back of the Bookstore parking lot, the back of the Arts Center near annex 109, and at the parking lot of Residence Halls near building A.

The containers are divided into three compartments and are labeled for the appropriate recycling material. Plastic or paper bags should not be put in the containers nor should materials for recycling be placed on the ground around the containers. Plastic bottle tops/caps should be removed before recycling since this material is not recyclable.

The containers will be emptied weekly; however, cooperation is needed to keep the bins and the area surrounding the bins as clean as possible.

For more information, contact the Physical Plant Department. ~

African-American Celebration features eight events

The sixth annual African-American captures the art, history, music, and theater of the African-American culture in eight events to be held from Jan. 19 through April 20 on the college campus. All events are open to the public.

To open the semester-long celebration, "A Peace Circle" was held Tuesday, Jan. 19 at noon in Wheelwright Auditorium. The African-American Student Association and Student Government Association presented this hands-on tribute to Martin Luther King Jr. Terita Gusby-McCauley was the guest speaker. A reception followed the event.

"Educational Forum," a panel discussion about diversifying the college curriculum, will be held Wednesday, Feb. 10 at 12:30 p.m. in the Student Center, room 205. The panel includes college faculty and the students of Leadership Challenge, a program to recognize academic and leadership potential in minority students.

"Ain't Got Long to Stay Here," a play with music on the life and times of Martin Luther King Jr., will be performed by the Tennessee Repertory Theatre on Sunday, Feb. 14 at 7:30 p.m. in Wheelwright Auditorium. The play recreates the era of the civil rights movement through a series of dramatic vignettes from Montgomery, Ala., in 1955 when Rosa Parks refused to give up her seat on a bus, through the assassination of King in Memphis, Tenn., in 1968. The production is funded, in part, by the Campus Programming Board, Student Government Association, and the Horry Cultural Arts Council and the South Carolina Arts Commission which receive support from the National Endowment for the Arts. Tickets are $12 and $8 for students. For more information, call the Wheelwright Box Office, open weekdays from noon to 5 p.m.

"Do You Know," a program to introduce the contributions of African-Americans to society, will be held Wednesday, Feb. 24 at 6 p.m. in the Little Theater, located in the Graduate and Continuing Education Building. The program is presented by the African-American Student Association.

The "Greater Gospel Sing Out" will be held Sunday, March 7 at 7:30 p.m. in Wheelwright Auditorium. This annual event features the Coastal Carolina Gospel Choir and the Morris College Gospel Choir as well as guest groups from the area.

African-American poetry is the subject for readings to be held Thursday, April 1 at noon in SC 205. Students will read from the works of African-American poets, and faculty and community members will read original poetry. This program is held in conjunction with the college's annual Spring Arts Festival.

"A Cultural Explosion" will be held Saturday, April 3 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. in Spadoni Park. The event is a day-long celebration of cultural diversity through music, art, food and much more.

"Salute to Education" will be held Tuesday, April 20 at 7:30 p.m. in the Little Theater, located in the Graduate and Continuing Education Building. This annual program recognizes area teachers, school administrators and friends of education for their contributions to minority education. "Salute to Education" is celebrated in conjunction with the School of Education's "National Week of the Young Child."

Admission will be charged for "Ain't Got Long to Stay Here;" all other events in the African-American Celebration are free.

For more information, contact Pat Singleton-Young. ~

Wellness Committee alive and active

The Wellness Committee reports the group is active again this semester and invites faculty and staff to attend the next meeting on Monday, Feb. 8 at 1:30 p.m. in private dining room "C" of the cafeteria. Participants may bring their lunch and join the fellowship and wellness planning.

Due to budgetary constraints last semester, the Wellness Committee was unable to offer incentive prizes; however, the group will reinstitute the drawings this semester.

Faculty and staff who recorded their wellness activities for the fall semester on the wellness activity form, should send a copy to Kay Alford to be included in a special drawing for a $25 gift certificate to be held at the next meeting.

The Personal Wellness Record is a way to record participants aerobic exercises each month. A designated number of points will be awarded for each 30-minutes of exercise. Prizes will be awarded each month according to instructions given on the form.

The Wellness Committee suggests faculty and staff get involved in exercise by walking, jogging, bowling, tennis, golf, swimming, or even yoga.

For more information or to receive a Personal Wellness Record Sheet, contact Kay Alford or Patti Loeb. ~

Health information/ medical referral service available on campus

The Health Information/Medical Referral Service is open from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, in SC 206-I. A registered nurse is available to students, faculty, and staff to provide general health information, nursing physical assessment of illness, blood pressure checks, basic minor first-aid treatment, and referrals to local physicians and health-care providers.

This service is free of charge, however, any payment to physicians or hospitals is the responsibility of the patient.

For more information, contact Patti Loeb, R.N., at extension 2329. ~

Local facility added to state health plan mammography program

Women's Mammography and Breast Center has been added to the list of participating facilities in the State Health Mammography testing program. The facility is located at Ocean Lakes Plaza, Suite 6, Business Hwy. 17 in Surfside Beach and the telephone number is 238-5518.

Loris Community Hospital also is a local participating facility in the program.

Mammography testing is available to all enrolled in the State Health Plan. A current listing of all participating facilities can be found in the State Health Plan Provider Directory which was distributed during December.

For more information, contact Barbara Jackson. ~

On Campus is published biweekly on Monday by the Public Relations Office. Information to be included should be submitted by noon the Tuesday before publication.

Coastal students experience education through TARGET program

The TARGET program at Coastal provides hands-on experience for students interested in the field of education by placing trained volunteers in more than 22 community locations – from public elementary schools to a shelter home for homeless children and families. More than 175 Coastal students participated in the program during the fall 1992 semester, accumulating more than 1,500 volunteer hours. Since the program's inception in September 1991, more than 400 students have logged approximately 4,500 volunteer hours.

TARGET, or Teaching and Reaching Goals in Education Today, is an innovative program funded with a $29,998 federal grant to the School of Education. Funding for the program is renewable through May 1994.

According to Sharon Thompson, program coordinator, TARGET has provided an opportunity for Coastal students to become involved in a community service project that promotes volunteerism and encourages responsibility and community leadership. Thompson said the goal of TARGET is to enhance the academic program of students in kindergarten through 12th-grade by targeting areas of need and providing tutors at designated sites in Horry and Georgetown counties.

"The experience has given me the opportunity for hands-on work in the school environment and allows me to assist students who can use the help," said Sandi Watkins, who completed her 10-hour internship at Myrtle Beach Primary School where she helped students with reading and homework. Watkins is a Coastal freshman who is majoring in education.

Once on-site, Coastal students may assist students with homework, play educational games, read or listen to a child read, check homework assignments, tutor in special areas of need, assist with group games or activities, or simply listen or be a friend to a child. But the TARGET experience often is coupled with fringe realizations and perspectives. "Having gone to a small, private school, I was overwhelmed when I realized the size and number of classes for each grade level," Watkins said.

Human Resources workshop scheduled

Wills, Estate Planning, and Beneficiary Naming, a workshop to teach employees the basics of estate planning, will be held Wednesday, Jan. 27 from 9 a.m. to noon in SC 204. The workshop,

Melissa Pierce was placed in Myrtle Beach Primary School to tutor a second-grader in reading. "I have been helping a boy with his reading and helping him build self-esteem – I've seen quite a bit of improvement," she said. Pierce is a Coastal sophomore who is majoring in education. According to Pierce, TARGET and other practicums offer an important complement to the educational process, and experience at as many schools as possible will benefit her in the long run.

Carl Anderson completed his TARGET experience at Socastee Middle School in the art classes of Werna Pierce. Anderson said of his experience with Pierce, "TARGET is a great way to be introduced to the art of teaching. I'm sure I'll take with me a lot of invaluable information from the experience." Anderson is a freshman who hopes to double major in education and art.

"Carl will make a good teacher – he already shows some good traits," Pierce said. A 1982 Coastal graduate, Pierce has been teaching for 11 years. She said every year she tries to have Coastal education students gain teaching experience in her classroom. "That's how I learned," she said.

Sites for TARGET volunteers include: Horry County Shelter Home, Tara Hall Boys Home, Bucksport Community Center, Pepper Geddings Recreation Department, Promise Land, Aynor Conway Career Center, Myrtle Beach Primary School, Conway Elementary School, Daisy Elementary School, Forestbrook Elementary School, Green Sea Floyds Elementary School, Homewood Elementary School, Loris Elementary School, Myrtle Beach Elementary School, Pee Dee Elementary School, Waccamaw Elementary School, Conway Middle School, Myrtle Beach Middle School, Socastee Middle School, Whittemore Park Middle School and North Myrtle Beach High School.

The funding breakdown for the TARGET grant is $19,998 in federal sources, or 67 percent of the total monies, and $10,000, or 33 percent, in matching funds from Coastal.

Coastal center is part of mega-task force charged with evaluation of offshore resources

The Center for Marine and Wetland Studies is one of 11 state and federal agencies and institutions of higher education involved in a five-year study to evaluate sand for renourishment and biological resources in the waters off the South Carolina coast. The center is part of the group called the INTERMAR Task Force on Beach Renourishment and Critical Habitats.

Funding for the first year of the project was provided by the federal offices of International Activities and Marine Minerals (INTERMAR) of the Mineral Management Service. Coastal received $49,979 from the U.S. Department of the Interior through the S.C. Wildlife and Marine Resources Department for October 1992 through September 1993. The college provided $11,995 in matching funds for the project.

The primary goal of the project is to identify sand deposits off the South Carolina coast that could be used for renourishment projects for the state's eroding beaches. In addition, the research will identify and map natural areas such as live bottom reef habitats that are critical for fishery resources, to assure the protection and management of these areas.

According to Paul Gayes, the college is the main geological constituent in the project. Under Gayes' direction, an analysis of the location and extent of known sand and mineral resources out to 10 miles offshore is underway. The results of the analysis will produce a comprehensive database of existing information on beach renourishment resources and critical habitats on the state's continental shelf and will target areas for detailed assessment in subsequent years of the project.

In January 1993, the college hired research specialist Patricia Donovan Ealy to coordinate the center's involvement with the INTERMAR project.

In addition to the work completed by the college, the first year of the project included an evaluation and location of critical biological resources in the survey area and an evaluation of historical trends of coastline including erosion, accretion and stability of shoals. In future years, a computerized system will map potential sand and mineral deposits as well as biologically sensitive areas. The Marine Resources Division of the S.C. Wildlife and Marine Resources Department is the lead agency of the task force which includes representatives from the S.C. Geological Survey, S.C. Land Resources Conservation Commission, S.C. Water Resources Commission, S.C. Coastal Council, S.C. Sea Grant Consortium, Coastal Carolina College, College of Charleston, South Atlantic Fishery Management Council, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. ~

Area Agency on Aging sets annual meeting

The annual meeting of the Waccamaw Area Agency on Aging at Coastal will be held Wednesday, Feb. 3 at 10 a.m. in GCEC 003. The meeting is free and open to the public.

Judy Bode Elder, director of Williamsburg County's Santee Senior Services, is the featured speaker. Elder also is the former director of the retired Senior Volunteer Program in Sumter County.

Elder will discuss oral history, an interest she developed while working with South Carolina's older citizens. She will address steps in documenting family histories. Elder asks those who plan to attend the meeting to bring an item of their family history with them.

For special assistance or more information, contact the Waccamaw Area Agency on Aging, weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., at 349-2130. ~
