Tournament "72" To Begin Soon

by pat singleton

Tournament "72" is the talk at Coastal Carolina and most likely is the talk at the other eight (8) regional campuses that will take part.

The tournament consists of many different types of games such as volleyball, tennis, golf, wacky golf, bowling and, of course, basketball. During the tournaments there are usually lots of parties and parties and parties.

The activity that gets just about all the publicity is basketball. Along with Coastal competing for the Palmetto Athletic Conference title are Alien, Beaufort, Lancaster, Union, Clemson/Greenville, Clemson/Sumter, Salkehatchie and Spartanburg. The team with the best record wins the conference title and the team who comes out on top in the tournament wins the tournament title.

The Coastal Carolina squad compiled a 12 and 11 overall record last season and also won the tournament championship title last season, a first for USC Coastal Carolina Branch. Coastal squad should be a top contender in the new conference. The 1971-72 Coastal Cocks boast four lettermen from last year's tournament championship squad. They are Herbie Hucks, Carlisle Watson, Jim Spann and Durwood Owens. 6'6" Basil King of Conway and 6'4" Paul Clark of Myrtle Beach have led the frosh stalwarts during the 71-72 season and will most likely contribute highly to the tournaments.

The Palmetto Athletic Conference Basketball tournament will be held on March 9, 10, and 11 at the Myrtle Beach Air Force Base Gymnasium. The tournament title will be chosen through single elimination.

Coastal Carolina has rented the Fountain Motor Inn in Myrtle Beach for the players, the coach, and anyone who wants to stay there. Reservations should be made as soon as possible.

After all of the eliminations, the championship game will be played Saturday, March 11 at 5:00 p.m.

is ARCHARIOS dead?

by vickie powell

Last semester a group of students under the direction of Dr. John Durrell undertook to establish a literary magazine. Editor-in-chief was John Kosko, and the editorial board consisted of Naomi Green, Renee Jackson, and Patricia Gaineys. The Student Government Association allotted them about $500 for their expenses.

The object of this magazine was to encourage the students of Coastal Carolina to write creatively. The magazine was willing to publish anyone's work, without censorship to the degree of decency. The members constantly called for materials. The literary magazine was beginning to take form.

At last in December, they came out with the first issue of Archarios. This issue cost them $185 to publish. It consisted of about twenty works, with one half of these coming from one source. This was only a beginning, though.
Second Medical College

by joey hatchell

On Monday, January 31, Mike Spears, past President of the Student Government of the University of South Carolina, spoke to the Coastal Carolina Student Government Association. Mike formulated the first faculty evaluation program at Carolina. He is a present member of the Carolina Speakers Bureau and employed with the information office at Carolina in Student Government. Mike is now trying to proselytize the regional campuses of USC and other South Carolina Colleges to support a second medical school in S.C., located at the University.

A few points that Mike mentioned was that the most critical physician shortage was in the entire South, but more specifically, in South Carolina; with only Alaska and Mississippi in worse conditions. Once again, thank goodness for Mississippi. South Carolina is adversely affected by this physician shortage as we rank last in the nation in the life expectancy of its citizens. We also rank second in the number of infant deaths and fifth in the number of maternal deaths. We are third highest in venereal disease, highest in cancer and heart disease.

There are 413 towns in South Carolina without a General Practitioner and in all McCormick County there is only one physician. In fact 4 counties in S.C. have a total of only 8 doctors to care for over 400,000 people.

There are a few states trying to improve their situation. From 1951 to 1971, twenty-six new medical schools have opened. Out of the twenty-six medical schools twenty-two were built in states where there were already 1, 2, 3, or 4 pre-existing medical schools. Mike pointed out that if the Medical College of Charleston is expanded it will be in the year 2000 before S.C. reaches the national medium of physicians. But by building a new medical school in Columbia we will reach the medium in 13 years.

The building of a new medical school to be associated with the University, as some of you may think, will not hamper the chance of Coastal Carolina to become a four-year college. The reason for this is that the new school will be built only if the federal government will subsidize 80% of the cost of construction and the first brick not to be laid until 1981 or 1982. During the next ten years the Columbia Hospital will be used as the second medical college. If the Medical College of Charleston were to be expanded, all construction cost would come from state apportionment and the chances of Coastal Carolina becoming a four-year institution would be nil.

There is every reason to be optimistic that if a new medical school is created, significant support could be obtained from federal sources.

The Student Government Association of Coastal Carolina passed a resolution endorsing a second medical school in Columbia associated with the University of South Carolina. David Vaught, SGA President, said, "We feel a second medical school in South Carolina to be economically feasible and in the best interest of the state."

MEHER BABA on LSD and the HIGH ROADS

SECOND IN A SERIES from GOD IN A PILL?

"No drug, whatever its great promise, can help one to attain the spiritual goal. There is no short-cut to the goal except through the grace of the Perfect Master," and drugs, LSD more than others, give only a semblance of 'spiritual experience,' a glimpse of a false Reality.

"The Perfect Master is the God-realized being who has completed the cycle of evolution and involution through which consciousness is developed, matured, and perfected, and who subsequently elects to return to active participation in creation in order to help other souls perfect consciousness.

"The experience of a semblance of freedom that these drugs may temporarily give one is in actuality a millstone round the aspirant's neck in his efforts towards emancipation from the rounds of birth and death.

"The experience is as far removed from Reality as is a mirage from water. No matter how much one pursues the mirage one will never reach water and the search for God through drugs must end in disillusionment. One who knows the Way, who is the Way, cannot approve the continued pursuance of a method that not only must prove fruitless but leads away from the Path that leads to Reality.

"Experiences gained through LSD are, in some cases, experiences of the shadows of the subtle (emotion, energy) plane in the gross (physical) world. These experiences have nothing at all to do with spiritual advancement.

"The user of LSD can never reach subtle consciousness in this incarnation despite its repeated use. To experience real spiritual consciousness, surrenderance to a Perfect Master is necessary.

"It is human, and therefore necessarily wrongsighted, to view the result of the drug by its immediate relative effects - to calculate its end result is beyond human knowledge, and only the True Guide can point the way."

Meher Baba makes a fundamental point in this last observation which deserves amplification. If something is to be measured, a measuring standard should be used. The varied experiences of daily life provide a small part of the yardstick, but the greater part - the ultimate spiritual experience - is not readily available to most. Thus the psychedelic experimentalist must use an incomplete standard of measurement. Beyond the psychedelic experience he has only a few hints to be found in books on religious and mystic disciplines.

You are —
so many kinds of music
sometimes—you swallow me
and I become a mere vibration of the sound you are

And sounds and other music flows in flashing prism pretzels
and you and I
and all are
one sweet dancer

You are —
soft and cool
kissing my spine like a velvet sheet
and there are
no dancing pretzels
only you and I
enveloped in the sound
that we are.

say Hello to the
New CINO
by linda tynes

Since last semester Coastal Carolina has been without a mascot because of a serious mishap in which our old Cino was killed. The old Cino was let out of his cage to get some exercise and while strolling was killed by a dog.

But thanks to Mr. Aubrey E. Grice,
a resident of Conway, Coastal Carolina is not without a gamecock anymore. On Friday, February 4, Mr. Grice donated a beautiful rooster to our school. Mr.
Grice says he did not raise the gamecock
but a friend of his did.

Cino is a purebred gamecock. "He is a completely different breed," commented Mr. Grice. He is very intelligent if handled gently. Anyone can see that the new Cino is a very proud rooster. While having his picture taken, the new Cino held his head up high. He has black, brown, purple and red feathers with yellow and black eyes.

The present Cino is only ten months old but when he becomes a year old he will be even more beautiful. When fully grown he will probably weigh 5½ to 7 pounds.

Cino was accepted officially February 9 by David Vaught and John Rouse, memers of the student government association.

Arrangements are being made for a larger house for Cino so that he will be more comfortable and hopefully stay out of danger.

SUPPORT COASTAL'S ACTIVITIES

is ARCHARIO dead?

Plants for the spring semester were growing strong. They planned to award prizes to the four best works: $20 to 1st place, $15 to 2nd, $10 to 3rd, and $5 to 4th.

But it seems that the beginning was also the end. The literary magazine is no more. The S.G.A. decided in their meeting on Monday, February 7, to stop allocation of funds to the magazine. The reasons for this curtailment were the seemingly excess use of funds for publishing a magazine of this size, and the lack of participation by the student body.

Archarios, Coastal Carolina's literary magazine has been forced to terminate its publication, unless it finds financial aid elsewhere.
