UNIVERSITY NEWSLETTER

September 17, 2001      A Newsletter for Faculty, Staff and Friends of Coastal Carolina University      Volume 11, Number 12

Ingle named to SREB executive committee

Coastal President Ronald R. Ingle has been appointed to the Southern Regional Education Board (SREB) Executive

Ronald R. Ingle

Committee for 2001-2002 by Georgia Gov. Roy E. Barnes, chairman of SREB.

SREB was created in 1948 by Southern states to help government and education leaders work cooperatively to advance education and improve the social and economic life of the region.

SREB assists state leaders by directing attention to key issues; collecting, compiling and analyzing comparable data; and conducting broad studies and initiating discussions that help states and institutions form long-range plans, actions and policy proposals.

The organization is governed by a board that consists of the governor of each member state and four people that he or she appoints, including at least one state legislator and at least one educator. SREB is supported by appropriations from its member states and by funds from private companies, foundations, and state and federal agencies.

Ingle was appointed to serve on SREB in 1996 by Gov. David Beasley and was reappointed by Gov. Jim Hodges in June 2000.

Horner named CCU's interim provost

Sally M. Horner, executive vice president at Coastal, has been appointed interim provost for the 2001-2002 academic year. In addition to her present duties, Horner will be responsible for the following areas: academic affairs, deans council, grants and sponsored research, and the School of Continuing Studies (formerly the Division of Extended Learning and Public Services).

According to Coastal President Ronald R. Ingle, a search for a permanent provost will begin this fall.

Prior to being named executive vice president in 1993, Horner served as vice chancellor for planning and fiscal affairs at Coastal since 1984. From 1978 to 1984, she held several top administrative positions at the University of Charleston in West Virginia including acting president, vice president for administrative services, provost, dean of the Morris Harvey College of Arts and Sciences, and acting dean of the College of Health Sciences.

Horner was also on the faculty at Meredith College in Raleigh, N.C., from 1965 to 1978, where she served as chair of the department of chemistry and physical science, director of institutional research, director of financial aid, and taught courses in inorganic, physical, analytical and general chemistry, physics and astronomy.

She also has held post-doctoral research appointments at Duke University, the Research Triangle Institute in North Carolina and the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill.

Horner earned a bachelor's degree in chemistry and a Ph.D. in inorganic chemistry from University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill. She was a Phi Beta Kappa graduate, and received a three-year pre-doctoral fellowship from the National Science Foundation.

She served two consecutive three-year terms as elected commissioner of the Commission on Colleges of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

Horner is a member of the Board of Trustees at Conway Hospital and is chair of the advisory committee for the oversight of Kingston Nursing Home of Conway Hospital. She was also appointed by former Gov. Carroll Campbell to the Board of Directors of the Waccamaw Center for Mental Health from 1993 to 1996.

Coastal's Founders' Day celebration to be held Sept. 20

Coastal's 15th annual Founders' Day Convocation will be held Thursday, Sept. 20 at 3 p.m. in Wheelwright Auditorium. The ceremony is free and open to the public.

Covel C. Moore Sr., Clyde W. Port and the late Rebecca Randall Bryan will be named honorary founders of the university.

The 2001 recipients of the Founders' Medallion will join 59 other founders and honorary founders who played instrumental roles in the development of Coastal and the promotion of higher education in the region.

Constantine Curris, president of the American Association of State Colleges and Universities (AASCU), will deliver the convocation address. He is the fourth chief executive for AASCU, a national association of more than 400 public colleges and universities. Curris has been associated with AASCU since 1973 and was named president in 1999. A native of Kentucky, Curris has served as president at Murray State University, the University of Northern Iowa and Clemson University. The Murray State Student Center and the Northern Iowa Business Building bear Curris' name.

Moore, pastor of the Good Hope AME Church in Centenary, retired in 1981 from the Horry County School District where he worked for 28 years as a science teacher at Whittemore High School and Socastee High School. He also served for 12 years as chair of the science department at Socastee High School. Moore is a longtime member of Coastal's ABLE (A Better Lifestyle Experience) class, which helps promote health, wellness and a positive social atmosphere for adults 50 and older. He has also been involved with Coastal's Lifelong Learning Society. Moore has served as past president of the Horry County Education Association and as a delegate to the South Carolina Education Association and the National Education Association. He earned a bachelor's degree from Morris College, a master of science degree from South Carolina State University and a master of religious studies from the University of South Carolina.

Port, former vice president for Mobil Oil, became active in area civic affairs after retiring to Myrtle Beach in 1975. He helped organize and was the first chairman of Coastal's E. Craig Wall Sr. College of Business Administration Board of Visitors. Port served on the executive committee of the Board of Visitors until 1999. He is a former executive director of United Way of Horry County and has served as a consultant and adviser for the organization. Earlier this year, the Myrtle Beach Area Chamber of Commerce named Port a Lifetime Member in honor of his many contributions to the organization. In 1987 he was named Citizen of the Year by the chamber. He also helped organize the chamber's Leadership Grand Strand program. Port has been involved in the redevelopment of the Dunes Beach and Golf Club.

Bryan, who died Sept. 25, 1999, was a longtime friend and supporter of Coastal. An avid painter, she was devoted to the arts and attended many classes offered through Coastal's School of Continuing Studies. Bryan traveled to Oxford University in England as part of a travel-study program offered through Coastal's Office of International Programs. She also donated more than 200 books from her personal library to Coastal's Kimbel Library. Her $1.8 million bequest to Coastal represents the largest single cash gift ever made to the university. The art gallery in the Thomas W. and Robin W. Edwards College of Humanities and Fine Arts Building will be named in Bryan's honor. A future extension of Coastal's library also will be named in honor of the Bryan family.

Dedication of the Rebecca Randall Bryan Art Gallery will be held at 4 p.m. on Sept. 20, immediately following the Founders' Day ceremony.

SREB's 16 member states are Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia and West Virginia.

Ingle has served as Coastal's president since 1993, when the institution became an independent public university. He joined Coastal in 1988 as vice chancellor of academic affairs.

Before coming to Coastal, Ingle held faculty and administrative positions at the University of South Carolina, The Ohio State University, Kennesaw College and South Georgia College.

A native of Moncks Corner, S.C., Ingle earned a bachelor's degree in English from Wofford College, a master's degree in higher education administration from Florida State University, and a Ph.D. in psychology from The Ohio State University.

Rebecca Randall Bryan Art Gallery dedication planned

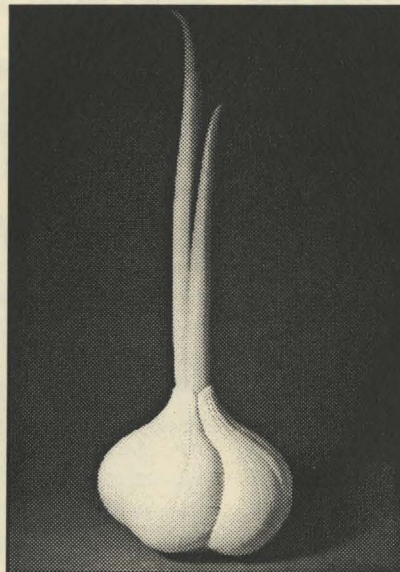

The dedication and opening of Coastal's Rebecca Randall Bryan Art Gallery will be held Thursday, Sept. 20 at 4 p.m. The art gallery is located in the new Thomas W. and Robin W. Edwards College of Humanities and Fine Arts Building. The dedication is free and open to the public.

The gallery's premiere exhibit features selections from the South Carolina State Art Collection, which will be on display through Nov. 23.

The State Art Collection is the most comprehensive public collection of works by contemporary South Carolina artists. Established in 1967 as one of the first programs of the South Carolina Arts Commission, the State Art Collection has grown to include more than 400 works in a variety of media and styles.

The purpose of the program is to create a collection of historic importance and cultural vitality for the people of South Carolina that will serve as a tool to help promote the state and its cultural resources on the state, regional, national and international levels; to make available to citizens throughout the state the best work of the state's contemporary artists; and to encourage and support the creative visual artists of South Carolina.

Bryan, who died Sept. 25, 1999, was a longtime friend and supporter of Coastal. An avid painter, she was devoted to the arts and attended many classes offered through Coastal's School of Continuing Studies. She also donated more than 200 books from her personal library to Coastal's Kimbel Library. Her $1.8 million bequest to Coastal represents the largest single cash gift ever made to the university. A future extension of Coastal's library also will be named in honor of the Bryan family.

Division of Extended Learning renamed School of Continuing Studies

Coastal's Division of Extended Learning and Public Services has been renamed the School of Continuing Studies.

"Gaining school status is a reflection of the growth and the quality of programs we provide," said Peter Balsamo, dean of the school. "The name change also reflects a similar trend at universities across the nation which have continuing education programs that coordinate and administer degree programs."

Richard Weldon has been named assistant dean of the School of Continuing Studies. His responsibilities include overseeing Coastal's Higher Education Center in Myrtle Beach and its Georgetown campus. Weldon had been director of continuing education and external services for Coastal's E. Craig Wall Sr. College of Business Administration.

The School of Continuing Studies is a comprehensive continuing education operation, managing programs such as the award-winning Lifelong Learning Society, the Bachelor's of Arts in Interdisciplinary Studies (BAIS) degree, professional development workshops and seminars, specialized technologies certification, contract training, travel-study programs, Coastal Youth Academy, leisure learning, Command Spanish, credit and non-credit distance learning, high school dual credit, and the SuperSonic Summer Youth Program for children.

The School of Continuing Studies is located in the H. Dale Williams Center for Extended Learning, which is on the second floor of the new University Hall on Coastal's campus.

Edwards Humanities and Fine Arts Building opening

All Coastal students, faculty and staff are invited to the dedication and opening of the Thomas W. and Robin W. Edwards College of Humanities and Fine Arts, which will be held Friday, Sept. 21 at 6 p.m. on the Lawn.

From 6:30 to 7:30 p.m., many of the departments within the Edwards College of Humanities and Fine Arts will hold a variety of events throughout the building.

At 8 p.m., concert pianists Philip Powell of Coastal and Ignat Solzhenitsyn will play selections from the works of Brahms, Schubert and Mozart in the Courtyard.

Coastal welcomes 12 new faculty members

Twelve new faculty members have joined Coastal for the 2001-2002 academic year. A listing of new faculty members by academic college follows:

College of Education

• Elissa Howard is an assistant professor of health promotion. She earned a Ph.D. in health behavior and a minor in research methodology and a specialization in human sexuality from the University of Florida. She received several awards while completing her doctoral degree at the University of Florida, including "Graduate Student of the Year" in the department of health science education and also the "Graduate Teaching Award."

• Julia Orri is an assistant professor of exercise science and physiology. She most recently did research on high altitude physiology in Albuquerque, N.M. She earned a Ph.D. in health, physical education and recreation with a concentration in exercise science from the University of New Mexico. She will also be in charge of developing the exercise physiology lab at Coastal.

• Jean Reid is an assistant professor of human growth and development. She earned a Ph.D. in educational psychology from the University of Florida. She won the 1999 Isabel Briggs-Myers Memorial Research Award. She has worked at the Center for Applications of Psychological Type, which offers training in the Myers-Briggs instrument.

College of Natural and Applied Sciences

• Jonathan P. Bernick is an assistant professor of computer science. He earned a Ph.D. in computer science from the New Mexico Institute of Mining and Technology. Bernick's research interests focus on the computational techniques in modeling the availability of integrity algorithm for Global Positioning System (GPS).

• Sharon L. Gilman is an assistant professor of biology. She earned a Ph.D. in biological oceanography from the University of Rhode Island. She has served Coastal for seven years in a number of positions including instructor of biology, education/research coordinator for the NSF-AIRE Program and lecturer in the marine science department. She will coordinate the college's and the Department of Biology's science education programs.

• Jean-Louis Lassez is a professor of computer science. He will join the Department of Computer Science in January 2002. Lassez earned a Ph.D. in computer science from Purdue University. He is working as a senior research scientist for integrated genomics and as a visiting professor of computer science at the New Mexico Institute of Technology and Brown University. He has chaired the department of computer science at the New Mexico Institute of Technology and served as senior researcher and manager for the New Language Paradigms, Software Technology Department at the I.B.M., T.J. Watson Research Center.

• James O. Luken is chair of the Department of Biology and professor of biology. He received a Ph.D. in botany from Duke University. Luken comes to Coastal after serving as a professor of biology and director of the environmental science program at Northern Kentucky University. He has received the Distinguished University Scientist Award from the Kentucky Academy of Science and was named Outstanding Professor at Northern Kentucky University.

• John E. Reddic is an assistant professor of chemistry. He earned a Ph.D. at the University of Georgia and did postdoctoral work at the University of South Carolina. His postdoctoral research has involved the use of small metal particles as potential catalytic materials to destroy chemical warfare agents.

• Stephen E. Shauger is an assistant professor of mathematics. He earned a Ph.D. in mathematics at Texas A&M University. His research interests focus on graph theory, combinatorics, and algorithms.

• Keith R. Walters is chair of the Department of Marine Science and associate professor. He earned a Ph.D. in biology (marine ecology) at the University of South Florida. Prior to joining Coastal he coordinated marine biology instruction and research at Middle Tennessee State University. Walters has also done research in Australia as a Senior Fulbright Postdoctoral Researcher.

• Jenny K. Wickum is an instructor of mathematics and statistics. She earned a master's degree in mathematics from the University of Montana. She has been involved in a NASA/CERES Project creating online lesson plans.

Kimbel Library

• Robert Stevens is an affiliate librarian. He earned a master's degree in library and information science from Wayne State University. Prior to joining Coastal, he served as an intern at the University of Detroit-Mercy.

In Appreciation

I would like to thank the CCU community for its prayers and concerns for my daughter, Ashley Godwin. Ashley, a Coastal graduate, is staff assistant for the Committee on Armed Services (National Security Committee) and frequently works in the Pentagon. Fortunately, Ashley was not at the Pentagon at the time of the attack.

Sincerely,
Nadine Godwin

CCU Theater presents Faybulous in new Edwards Theater

Faybulous, a "sing play" for children based on Aesop's Fables, is the first production to be presented in Coastal Carolina University's new Edwards Theater in the Thomas W. and Robin W. Edwards College of Humanities and Fine Arts Building. The production is scheduled for Thursday and Friday, Sept. 27 and 28 at 7:30 p.m.; Saturday, Sept. 29 at 1 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.; and on Sunday, Sept. 30 at 3 p.m. Admission is $10, $5 for students under the age of 18. Coastal students, faculty and staff will be admitted free with a Coastal I.D.

Designed expressly for student training, workshops and smaller productions, the new Edwards Theater can be adapted to accommodate many different arrangements of staging and seating. "Although Faybulous will be presented in the traditional proscenium format, this production will be much more intimate and close to the audience," says Sandi Shackelford, professor of theater at Coastal and director of the production.

Written by David Bankston, assistant professor of music at Coastal, and Tony Makarome, a composer and graduate of the Berklee College of Music in Boston, Faybulous is based on adaptations of three of Aesop's fables, each one a mini-morality tale in a distinctive American musical mode: "The Tortoise and the Hare" is transformed into "Daddy Cool Turtle and Jacky Rabbit" with a hip jazz-gospel style; in "The Hen that Laid the Golden Egg," Granny grapples with would-be thieves Wayne and Dewayne, mixing tango, blues and country music; and "The Poor Woodsman and the Magical Rivermaid" is done in musical theater style.

"This show is a labor of love for me," says composer Bankston. "Both Tony and I have very diverse musical backgrounds, which accounts for the variety of styles in Faybulous. Aesop's fables are timeless - they're fun and instructive for children and adults alike."

The cast and technicians include Coastal faculty members Bankston, who sings the role of the narrator; Anne Denbow-Gilbert, instructor of music; Philip Powell, associate professor of music; and Robin L. Stephens, dance instructor.

The cast also includes Coastal students Matt McCarty, Carl Mueller and Chris Bergamo, and alumni Farrah Dill and Ollie Marseglia.

Faybulous was first presented in Wheelwright Auditorium in August 2000. The new production is an updated version with new costumes, additional dance numbers and many new cast members.

For ticket information, contact the Wheelwright Box Office at 349-2502.

Koepfler receives National Science Foundation grant

Coastal has been awarded a $221,000 grant from the National Science Foundation (NSF) to establish a microbial ecology laboratory on campus.

The new lab, which will be located in Coastal's Center for Marine and Wetlands Studies, will give Coastal faculty and students the tools to conduct better research, particularly relating to microbial ecology and water quality, according to Eric Koepfler, associate professor of marine science at Coastal and recipient of the grant. The three-year grant will also enable Coastal's College of Natural and Applied Sciences to expand its microbial ecology and biology curricula. Microbial ecology is the study of microscopic organisms and how they interact with the physical and chemical environment. Changes in water quality rapidly affect microbial communities in shallow coastal environments, and monitoring these communities may be an important way to gauge environmental impacts due to population growth.

"This grant will allow us to better conduct local research, both in the lab and out in the field in places like Waites Island and the Waccamaw River," says Koepfler. Similar research in microbial ecology has been conducted in cooperation with the Baruch Marine Field Laboratory near Georgetown, a facility of the University of South Carolina.

According to Koepfler, the grant will be used to purchase state-of-the-art equipment including a research-quality compound microscope, image analysis system, oxygen and carbon dioxide respirometers, in situ fluorometers, temperature controlled incubators, computers, and a GPS equipped multiprobe.

Koepfler, who earned a Ph.D. from the College of William and Mary, is also director of the Loggerhead Sea Turtle Protection Program sponsored by Coastal's Center for Marine and Wetlands Studies.

Coastal's athletic department prepares for NCAA Certification

Coastal is beginning the process of preparing for the next NCAA Certification of its athletic department. In anticipation of the campus visit in November 2002, the university will prepare a self-study document that will be organized through the leadership of a Steering Committee and four subcommittees.

Judy Vogt will chair the Steering Committee and Colleen Lohr will coordinate the process and serve as chief writer/editor of the self-study document.

The four subcommittees include:

- governance and commitment to rules
- academic integrity
- fiscal integrity
- equity, welfare and sportsmanship

An on-campus orientation visit will be held Tuesday, Sept. 25.

To join a committee, contact Brenda Cox at 349-2115.

Weisbrod named NCAA Woman of the Year for South Carolina

Brooke Weisbrod, a former standout on Coastal's women's basketball team, has been selected as the 2001 NCAA Woman of the Year for South Carolina.

She is now on a list with 50 other finalists for the overall NCAA Woman of the Year honor to be announced Oct. 21 in Indianapolis.

The NCAA Woman of the Year honor is awarded annually to honor outstanding female student-athletes who have excelled in academics, athletics and community leadership. This year, 350 student-athletes were nominated, with 51 being chosen representing each state and the District of Columbia.

Weisbrod, a native of Cincinnati, completed the best overall career of any women's basketball player in Coastal history in 2001. She completed her career as the first women's basketball player to ever earn Big South Player of the Year or Big South Rookie of the Year honors. During the 2000-2001 season, Weisbrod led the conference with 19.7 points per game and earned the Player of the Year honor. She is just the second player in Coastal history to tally more than 1,000 points, 300 rebounds and 200 assists.

Weisbrod earned a bachelor's degree in marketing with a 3.70 GPA and was a member of the prestigious Wall Fellows Program. Her community service work included many speaking engagements with Coastal's Student-Athlete Speakers Bureau. She also volunteered many hours to the United Way.

Weisbrod is playing professionally with the Marburg Marlins in Marburg, Germany.

Campus Notes

Faculty/Staff Parking

Based on the recent recommendations of the Faculty Buildings and Grounds Committee and the administration, the following parking lot/space changes will be in effect for the Fall 2001 semester.

- 1) The new north and south parking lots adjacent to the Edwards Humanities Building (45 spaces) will be designated as faculty/staff (F/S) parking lots.
- 2) The existing lot on the north side of the Athletic Administration Building (36 spaces) will be designated as a F/S lot.
- 3) In the lot adjacent to Kearns Hall, Kimbel Library and Wheelwright Auditorium, there are currently 47 F/S spaces. The amount of student spaces will be increased by 30 and 17 F/S spaces will remain in this lot.
- 4) In the lot adjacent to the Student Center, there are currently 24 F/S spaces. The amount of student spaces will be increased by 12 and 12 F/S spaces will remain in this lot.

Faculty/Staff invited to join Singleton House activities

The Singleton House, a social club for Coastal faculty and staff, meets once a month in the portable located on the corner of Chanticleer Drive West and Tom Trout Drive.

Come out and mingle with your friends and colleagues. Doors open at 4:30 p.m.

Dates for the fall 2001 semester are Tuesday, Sept. 18, Thurs., Oct. 18, Wednesday, Nov. 14 and Monday, Dec. 10.

Annual dues are $35. For more information, contact Joan Piroch at 349-2271.

Grant*Talk

Coastal's Office of Grant and Sponsored Research has announced that *Grant*Talk* is now available at the Web site www.coastal.edu/grants

Please check the site often for updated information and grant opportunities.

For more information, contact Bruxanne El-Kammash at 349-2918.

Learning vacations offered for adults

For adult travelers looking for more than sightseeing and sandy beaches, Coastal offers travel-study programs to 16 foreign destinations. The tours emphasize learning, with opportunities for first-hand education about history, culture and customs. On-site lectures, seminars and field experiences provided by faculty escorts and in-country specialists together with "people-to-people" contacts foster an insight and understanding of foreign cultures not available on more conventional tours.

Accommodations are first class, meals are included and groups are small, allowing participants to receive individual attention and make friends. Coastal's groups average 14 participants with some groups as small as eight members, allowing for a close interaction between participants and guides.

Winter 2002 programs will be to Antarctica, Belize, Costa Rica, Egypt, Galapagos Islands and Ecuador, and Kenya.

Spring 2002 programs will include Belize, China, Costa Rica, Egypt, Galapagos Islands and Ecuador, Greece, Ireland, Italy, Morocco, Spain and Turkey.

These two-week learning vacations for adults range from $2,000 to $5,000 and include meals, first class accommodations, unique learning experiences, and airfare from the tours' departure cities.

For more information about these programs, contact Peter Balsamo, dean of Coastal's School of Continuing Studies at (843) 349-2648 or visit www.coastal.edu/learn/trav.html on the Internet.

Coastal Carolina People

Faculty and staff are encouraged to submit information to be included in the "Coastal Carolina People" section of this newsletter. Information will be published following the presentation or activity.

- Jane Guentzel's article titled "Processes Influencing Mercury Speciation and Bioconcentration in the North Inlet-Winyah Bay Estuary, South Carolina, USA," appeared in the July 2001 issue of the Marine Pollution Bulletin.

- David Evans was an invited reviewer of proposals for the National Science Foundation's "Curriculum, Course and Laboratory Improvement" (CCLI) program last month.

- John Goodwin presented a paper titled "Cafeteria-Style Grading in General Chemistry: Learning Preferences and Component Selection" at the Research in Chemical Education symposium at the 222nd National Meeting of the American Chemical Society in Chicago on Aug. 30. The paper was co-authored by Douglas Smith in the College of Education and former chemistry faculty member, Brian Gilbert.

Goodwin also published a research article titled "Structural and Ox-Transfer Reactivity Differences of Hexacoordinate and Pentacoordinate (Nitro)(tetraphenylporphinato)cobalt(III) Derivatives" in Inorganic Chemistry, which is published by the American Chemical Society. Coauthors include two chemists from Clemson University, eight CCU students and four summer research interns from the South Carolina Governor's School for Mathematics and Science in Hartsville.

- Susan Libes gave a presentation on the current status of the Waccamaw River at the last meeting of the Clemson/Sea Grant NEMO (Nonpoint Source Education for Municipal Officials) USEPA 319 Program Project on Sept. 2. She also serves on the projects board of advisors.

- Sharon Thompson spoke on current health and wellness issues at the 2001 South Carolina Association of School Administrators Superintendents' Summer Conference, and at the 2001 Principal Induction Program held at Coastal.

- Dennis Wiseman has been invited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools to serve on a Substantive Change Committee that will review distance learning initiatives in the Georgia System. The review will involve an off-site review of more than 60 programs at 11 colleges and universities in Georgia followed by a full committee meeting in Atlanta.

Faybulous

A musical written by David Bankston and composed by Tony Makarome

Faybulous is a delightful musical for children of all ages. The show combines three of Aesop's fables, each presented in a distinctive American musical mode: "The Tortoise and the Hare" is transformed into "Daddy Cool Turtle and Jacky Rabbit" with a hip jazz-gospel style; in "The Hen that Laid the Golden Egg," Granny grapples with would-be thieves Wayne and Dewayne, mixing tango, blues and country music; and "The Poor Woodsman and the Magical Rivermaid" is done in musical theater style.

Thursday through Saturday, September 27, 28, 29, 7:30 p.m.

Saturday, September 29, 1 p.m.

Sunday, September 30, 3 p.m.
