ARCHARIOS
(or)
Caring By Sharing

What in the world is it? How do you pronounce it? Is it good or bad? I hate to start out by saying that the Archarios (pronounced are-kee-o-sis) is a student literary magazine because it's not. Instead, I'll tell you it's Coastal Carolina's literary magazine, dedicated to those who enjoy humor, short stories, satire, poetry or any other form of creative writing. It's also C. C.'s publication for art and photography buffs, but there's one big hitch! Read ALL OF YOU, the STUDENT, FACULTY MEM-BER, ADMINISTRATOR or STAFF MEMBER, must be willing to SHARE your literary talents with ALL of us so we can publish OUR magazine!

The word Archarios means "the fledgling writer," and if you've ever read any of my poetry I'm sure you'll agree that Bill Marion had me in mind when he came up with that name. But that doesn't bother me, cuz most of my poems are so-so (or worse), but occasionally I come up with a fair poem that I want to share with others, and that's what Archarios is all about. Sharing one's creative talents via the pen is a great way to get the enjoyment or disgust of the reader. Not everyone who looks at a Van Gogh painting or reads a Gingsburg poem enjoys or completely understands it, but at least they have the opportunity to like or dislike it, decide whether it has value or is just a piece of junk. Basically, what it would be like if there were no "fledgling writer" mags. Some of the material YOU enjoy would not be available and it would be YOUR loss, not the author's or artist's. I firmly believe that every human being has a special talent, and unless he or she uses it, they'll lose it. If OUR magazine will provide an outlet for your special literary or artistic talents please use it, don't lose it.

SHARE IT WITH OTHERS VIA THE ARCHARIOS.

Miss Coastal Pageant Entries

Each club or organization may sponsor one contestant in the Miss Coastal Pageant. The deadline for the entries is 2:00, Friday, September 27. Entries should be returned to the Student Affairs Office.

Roger Post, M. A., will be offering courses for interested students one evening each week beginning at the end of September. This course is designed not only for philosophy students but also for women preparing for medicine and theology, but also for who want to obtain a more serious understanding of the New Testament.

Dr. R. N. Robinson, Philosophy Department, expressed enthusiasm for the class: "I heartily endorse it and firmly believe philosophy students and certainly all pre-ministerial students to take advantage of this opportunity. Traditionally, Pre-med students needed Greek too; but before they can take Greek except at, perhaps, 'top' in- along with Trappist monks this course will not be taught for credit at the University of South Carolina, enough long indeed that might encourage Coastal to add a credit course in the spring."

The course will be offered in Conway at a time most convenient to all members of the class.

"I shall be happy to relay names to Mr. Post. My telephone number in Conway is 248-4823."

In this modern age of bra burning, abortion on demand and the sexual revolution, nothing turns a man's head like a "liberated" woman. The days of the feminine mystique are over. Like every other thing are over. The well-scrubbed cheerleader no longer serves as the object of the Standard American sexual fantasy. Men often identify the liberation of women with sexual freedom. After all, the most popular feminist activity over the last few years, in the male view, has been the great bra burning. And liberation women tend to be more secure in and open about their sexuality.

Today's cinematic Venus is an update of that "blue-jeaned baby-queen," hair long and straight, nipples showing seductively through a sheer halter. It is easy for men to applaud this Helen Gurley Brown version of femininity, in which modern woman is "liberated" from the drudgeries of housework so that she may develop as a total sensual being. A man no longer has to conduct a carefully planned, frustrating seduction of the object of his fancy, nervously reminding himself that "she wants it as much as I do." Nowadays a man can simply do it by exchanging greetings and a few key political words, and there she will be, assuming the basic gynecological examination position.

The attraction is more than skin deep. A liberated woman is necessarily a strong woman, and that means, to many men, an invulnerable woman, one who doesn't need emotional support, affection, time, or concern. Wham, bam, thank you mam. The all-American girl. And don't forget the sincere attraction of men to independent women, and the just as sincere desire to quash that independence and that contemptible facade of invulnerability. There is nothing invulnerable about strength. True strength comes from compassion, from empathy with suffering, from the recognition of the need to fight for a better life. Like every other person, a feminist has needs. The immediacy and desperation of the woman's movement indicates to me that a liberated woman may have deeper and more crucial needs than her more satisfied counterpart. What sets her apart is that she understands those needs, and will fight to earn their fulfillment.

There is nothing sexy about the liberation of any oppressed group. Rosa Parks didn't sit in the front section of a city bus and spark the civil rights movement to be sexy; she sat down because she was tired. An Appalachian woman, her husband unable to work because his lungs are black with coal dust, whose breasts dangle around her waist from nursing her children, is not worried about being released from the drudgeries of her life so that she can develop as a sensual being; she is worried about having enough to eat.

A ghetto welfare mother is not bothered with dreams of free love; she is worried about her children dying of rat bites.

The definition of the women's movement in terms of sexuality is a dangerous obfuscation of the real issues, danger for both men and women, because it obscures a language of sexual attitudes which is essential to discredit in a new and acceptable vocabulary. So far the woman's movement has liberated men in to a revolutionary expression of the same old attitudes of phallic dominance. The women's movement, I reiterate, is non-physically sexual. It is not that the corresponding sexual revolution does not have merit, it is that it has nothing to do, in essence, with the movement to liberate women.

Well, we've done it again, folks. That's right. We have simplified registration beyond all human understanding. Ah, registration was all the excitement that I had expected, only worse. That morning I awoke hoping the day would simply quietly blow itself over, but there is no such luck, my friends. It was so crowded in that place! There were walls to wall students everywhere. There was so much pushing and shoving. I thought those idiots would never let me through. (Hope I didn't break any ribs!) The lines were longer this year. When I got to the cash register to pay the lady informed me that I had just obtained a plot on the forty-second row the third from the left! She then handed me a "Welcome to Hillcrest!" sticker. I'm telling you, Hillcrest isn't the only one whose growing around here.

The parking around this place is a real challenge. I arrived relatively early; those before me were exceedingly early; and any of those poor fools who arrived on time were just late comers. If you found a parking place at Coastal you either waited, flew, or roller skated. On registration day there were absolutely no vacancies. Well, there was one enormous parking space that was completely vacant, but there was no way that I could get my Mustang on top of the Williams Parking Building.

POINTER FOR FRESHMEN: 1) Under no circumstances should a new born freshman daren't cross the line. Cimo's Gourmet Reconstituted Catfish Whiskers. 2) Feel free to make yourself at home - feel it but don't try it. 3) Remember, Cimo's Wednesday's special is usually Tuesday's leftovers. 4) They say life begins at forty, but if you've not encountered registration believe me life ends at eighteen.

If you're a bit of a gambler and would like to try your luck with the machines there are two lines that you may like: 1) They seldom give food and 2) They never give change.

A few ESSENTIAL rules for freshmen who cherish the thought of living to become Sophomores: 1) People please remember this is College and not High School. That means that all males will go to MENS, all females to WOMENS. 2) You may not smoke in the hallways. 3) It is against the law to feed the ducks, otherwise.

The first theatrical production is already underway with an enthusiastic outlook. The Pajama Game, music and lyrics by Richard Adler and Jerry Ross, book by George Abbott and Richard Bissell, is now in the rehearsal stages under the guidance of Dr. Janie Jones, director, Jim Cox, choreographer, and Joyce Parker, musical director.

This first theatrical production is a comical performance which concerns the problems of laboring men, and which promises closed off Broadway. The Pajama Game will be presented to the public October 17, at 8 p.m. in the Little Theater of the Student Union Building. Tickets will be available from cast members beginning October 1.

Athenium Now On Sale

This year’s edition of the Athenium is being sold all this week and next week through September 27. Anyone wishing to buy a copy can purchase one in the lobby of the Student Union Building. The Athenium is going to be collegiate size this year, containing a senior section entirely in color. Also, the format of the annual is unique to the 74-75 Athenium. The staff is almost entirely made up of new underclassmen who have great ideals for the yearbook. These yearbooks will only be sold for these two weeks of September 16-27. In the past, there have been several books ordered but left unclaimed by students. This year, only the amount of books sold will be ordered. Since the yearbook is going to be entirely different this year, students should buy them now as the quantity will be limited. The price is $10.00, or $5.00 down. The remaining $5.50 will be required in the spring in order to purchase an Athenium.

There are still several copies of last year’s issue remaining in the Student Union. Students who have not picked up their annuals can see Ruthie Vaughn in the Student Affairs Office. Last year’s issues can be bought now at the price of $10.00.

From The Dean’s Office
By Carolyn Robinson

Dr. Singleton, Dean of Coastal, was kind enough to grant me an interview and during it he spoke of Coastal’s new status as a four year school and some of the benefits that this will bring and some of the problems that we will face.

One of the most observable changes is a dramatic increase in the size of the student body. This rapid growth is already apparent this fall with an enrollment of approximately 1,350 undergraduate and 250 graduate students. Dr. Singleton foresees a student body of approximately 3,000 undergraduates by the fall semester of 1984.

With the growth of the student body will come the growth of the faculty. This growth of the faculty will bring in more instructors with more doctorates in certain discipline. This will be a benefit not only to the students but to the community. Many of these people will be able to make great cultural contributions to the community.

A change that will come as a result of this growth will be the loss of the close personal relationships between students and faculty. Dr. Singleton spent a few minutes remembering that when he came here the student body was 110 students and that the teachers and students were just one large family. He expressed personal regret that this must change but said that to survive everything must grow and he welcomed the new growth that we are experiencing.

A problem that we are aware of is the parking problem. Behind the new academic building, a parking lot for approximately 100 cars is being constructed and money has been appropriated to construct an area for an additional 300 parking spaces. Dr. Singleton said that he hoped that we will all practice patience until that time. He also said that he was happier to see a parking problem than empty parking spaces.

Dr. Singleton expressed his appreciation for the cooperative and professional spirit of the students and faculty relative to the parking problem and the inconvenience due to the construction still being done on the new academic building.

We did touch on one subject other than the new changes in school status. That was the bottleneck that occurred registration day as the cashier station. Dr. Singleton assured me that when Spring registration comes we will have at least 4 cashiers and perhaps more to relieve this situation. So all of you who spent several hours standing to pay and talking about whether it was still day outside, take heart. I was there too and maybe our future will be brighter.

KARATE COMES TO COASTAL

Karate is a branch of the oriental martial arts and consists of many systems of Martial Arts in Korea, China, and other areas. Literally, Tang-Doo-Do is an ancient art where it was developed to counter-attack with hands or feet, and physically. Of all the systems of Martial Arts in existence today, this is thought to be one of the finest.

Dennis Miller received his private studio. He is also qualified to be very fortunate to have received instruction from such qualified instructors," Dennis said. In addition to his activities in the Martial Arts, Dennis is also a professional photographer and a music major at Coastal Carolina.

Cheerleaders Tryouts Tuesday

Thirteen girls will try out before a committee of students and faculty Sept. 12 for the nine cheerleader positions. Practice for these tryouts began two weeks ago at Coastal.

Several new methods will be used this year by the cheerleaders and the duties of head cheerleader will be divided among the cheerleaders so that they will share equal responsibility.

Another "first" for the cheerleaders this year is the appearance of pep-gals. A pep gal is an anonymous friend who will provide notes of encouragement, candy favors, etc., for their assigned basketball player. Pep-gals will be chosen by the Pep Club, pep ralles with new chants planned, for basketball season. Cheerleaders plan to sponsor Parents Day for basketball players. A reception will be held for the parents of basketball players and they will be recognized at the game. Cheerleaders are required to attend baseball games in the spring to exhibit their continued support of Coastal athletics after basketball season is over.
