Hendrick named AD, Markland named Assistant AD

President Ingle has appointed Andy Hendrick athletic director and Regina "Gina" Markland assistant athletic director, effective September 7.

Hendrick, an attorney and associate professor of business administration, has been interim athletic director since August 1992. He was the faculty athletics representative to the National Collegiate Athletic Association from 1984 to 1992.

Ingle said, "The leadership Andy Hendrick has shown in the past year as interim athletic director made him the clear pick for this position. Andy has a deep familiarity with the Big South and NCAA regulations, and through his faculty rank, the university will continue its path of excellence in the classroom and in the athletic arena."

Hendrick earned a bachelor's degree in education from the University of South Carolina in 1973 and a juris doctor degree from the University of South Carolina School of Law in 1976. He joined the Coastal faculty in 1980 as an assistant professor of business administration. Hendrick will maintain his tenured faculty position in the Wall School of Business. He has been municipal judge for the city of Conway since 1987.

He was a member of the Commissioner Search Committee for the Big South Conference in 1988, and chair of the athletic director Search Committee at Coastal in 1986. He has been a member of the Committee on Intercollegiate Athletics since 1983.

Markland has been the women's basketball coach at Coastal since 1986. She earned a bachelor's degree in physical education from Appalachian State University in 1979 and a master's degree in physical education from UNC Greensboro in 1985. Prior to coming to Coastal, Markland served as assistant women's basketball coach at Western Carolina University and taught and coached at T.C. Roberson High School in Skyland, N.C.

Pascal and Yang to perform as part of "Musicale de Genève 2"

Pianist Denis Pascal and cellist SungWon Yang will perform at Coastal Carolina University Wednesday, Sept. 15 at 7:30 p.m. in Wheelwright Auditorium.

The performance is part of a tour leading to a Kennedy Center debut in Washington, D.C.

French-born pianist Pascal studied at the Toulouse National Conservatory and later joined the Paris National Conservatory. He was subsequently appointed to teach piano at the National Superior Conservatory in Lyon. Awarded by the Foundation Lavoisier, he studied three years with Hungarian pianist Gyorgy Sebok at Indiana University. Pascal has performed in France, Italy, Finland, Hungary, and Switzerland and has been invited to play with Janos Starker in several prestigious European seasons. He lives in Paris and teaches at the National Paris Conservatory.

Born in South Korea, Yang appeared in his first solo recital at age 10. He entered the Paris Conservatory in 1981; following graduation in 1986, he came to the United States to study in the Artist Diploma Program in the School of Music at Indiana University. Performing as soloist and chamber musician, Yang

Parenting workshop scheduled

"Parenting for the 90's" will meet Tuesdays from 7 to 9 p.m., Sept. 28 through Nov. 9. The seven-week workshop, sponsored by the Center for Education and Community, is designed to teach parents, teachers, counselors, social workers, pediatricians, day care personnel, ministers, and others who work with parents and children the skills of effective parenting.

The workshop will address communication skills, development of self esteem, active listening, parenting styles, building lifelong relationships with children, and more.

Jim Rogers of ParentsCare will lead the workshop. He is a certified parenting instructor through the National Association of Parenting Instructors. He received a bachelor's degree from the University of North Carolina, and has done graduate work at Antioch University in Marina Del Ray, Calif.

According to center director Sally Hare, "recent headlines from children divorcing their parents to the senseless murder of Michael Jordan's father, point to the great need for parenting skills."

The cost of the workshop is $99, single or double. (Double is defined as two adults who are involved in the life of a particular child.) Registration will continue until the workshop begins.

For more information, call Danielle Eiler at extension 2672.

made his New York City debut in Lincoln Center's Alice Tully Hall in 1991 and his Paris debut in 1992. His performance travels have taken him to Korea, Switzerland, France and West Germany. He has recorded compact discs in Korea and the United States and for French radio. Yang plays a J.F. Pressenda 1845 cello.

The performance will feature works by Bach, Beethoven, Ginastera, Isang Yun and Mendelssohn.

This program is funded, in part, by the Horry Cultural Arts Council and the South Carolina Arts Commission, which receive support from the National Endowment for the Arts, and the Horry County Council.

Tickets are $10, $5 for students, and are available at the Wheelwright Box Office.

For more information, contact Philip Powell at extension 2515.

Homeland lecture series features environmentalist Miriam MacGillis

Miriam Therese MacGillis will speak at Brookgreen Garden's Education Center Auditorium Wednesday, Sept. 22, at 7 p.m. as part of the 1993 Homeland Lecture and Dialogue Series.

The lecture is free and open to the public; however, reservations should be made by calling Brookgreen Gardens at 237-4218.

The Homeland Lecture and Dialogue Series is co-sponsored by Aynor-based Blackwater Partnership of Horry County, and Coastal Carolina University. Directed to citizens of the Waccamaw Neck, Pee Dee, and Grand Strand regions, the series promotes the unity of the natural world with the human mind.

MacGillis is known nationally for her presentations on the spiritual implications of the new physics, the new story of the universe. Specifically, she presents the views of Thomas Berry, author of the New Cosmology and The Dream of the Earth, in an effort to teach and demonstrate how to live with deeper connections to the natural world.

She has recorded more than 10 cassette tapes dealing with the New Cosmology, in an effort to understand, and help others understand its teachings.

MacGillis is founder and director of Genesis Farm, a biodynamic vegetable farm that serves as a program center for learning to live with deeper connections with the natural world. The farm, located in New Jersey, provides hands-on experience for exploring a bioregional approach to economics, food and agriculture, community law, health, education, art and spirituality.

In the lecture, "Understanding Our Relation to the Earth through the New Story of the Universe," MacGillis offers a hopeful vision of mankind's relationship with the earth to "overcome environmental crisis and flourish with the rest of the living creatures."

Workshops offered based on books by Stephen Covey

The Office of Continuing Education will offer two workshops based on principles discussed in the best seller books by Stephen Covey, The Seven Habits of Highly Effective People and Principle-Centered Leadership.

The first workshop entitled "First Things First: Time and Life Management" will review ways to implement the "Seven Habits" into daily life through a focus on personal management. It will be held Tuesday, Sept. 14 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in SC 205. The reduced fee for faculty and staff is $125, which includes lunch and a Seven William Hills and Karen Carpenter have had their article "Cardiac Cats" published in Cats Magazine, volume 50, number 8, Aug. 1993. Cats Magazine is the foremost trade journal for professional cat breeders. "Cardiac Cats" was derived from a larger, year long, study of cardiac patients admitted to Conway Hospital's cardiac care unit. The article discusses the role pets play in meeting human needs for affection and caring.

Subhash Saxena will be listed in the first edition of Who's Who Among Asian Americans published by Gale Research, Inc.

Sylvia Kenig recently presented two workshops to the South Carolina Department of Social Services Fall Training Conference for County Directors and Supervisors. Kenig's workshops focused on assertiveness skills and stress reduction within the work setting. Approximately 100 DSS managers attended the workshops. 📞
