New chemistry undergraduate degree program offered at Coastal

Coastal Carolina University has been approved by the South Carolina Commission on Higher Education to offer a new baccalaureate degree program in chemistry beginning this semester. The degree program is the first physical science degree program available to Coastal students.

The curriculum of the bachelor of science degree in chemistry will include three specialization options: classical, environmental and biochemistry. Two of these specializations are endorsed in the guidelines of the American Chemical Society; the environmental specialization option is currently under consideration by the ACS.

Additional faculty members will not be needed to initiate the new degree program.

In recent years, a growing concern for the decreasing supply of people with bachelor's degrees in natural sciences has been voiced by the ACS and the Association for the Advancement of Sciences. The National Science Foundation has predicted a shortfall of 675,000 scientists by the year 2006.

Coastal's chemistry degree is intended to address the need for more scientists, particularly chemists, at the regional, state and national level.

According to a proposal drafted by Coastal's chemistry degree committee members, while several other state-supported institutions offer a chemistry degree, none provide the choice of environmental chemistry as an area of specialization. Coastal's program will be the first in the state to provide this environmental option.

The proposal states that an environmental specialization, designed to promote the understanding of chemical processes and their impact on the environment, would prove beneficial to the Waccamaw region; local and state public agencies are in need of graduates trained in chemistry with experience in water analysis and other environmental work.

According to Provost John Idoux, the chemistry degree program is a significant addition to Coastal's existing programs of study and creates a complete set of opportunities for undergraduates. He refers to the program as an "indicator of the continuing evolution of a maturing institution."

Pulitzer Prize-winning journalist Carl Bernstein speaker for Kimbel Series

Pulitzer Prize-winning journalist Carl Bernstein will speak in Wheelwright Auditorium on Tuesday, Oct. 18 at 7:30 p.m. as part of the Kimbel Distinguished Lecture Series. The lecture, entitled "Post-Watergate Journalism and the Idiot Culture," is part of Inauguration Week festivities and is free and open to the public.

Bernstein assessed the evolution of post-Watergate media in the June 1992 edition of The New Republic. The article, entitled The Idiot Culture, has garnered a high level of attention in the media and has become the subject of heated discussions at universities and international forums.

Bernstein writes in the article, "For more than 15 years, we have been moving away from real journalism toward the creation of a sleazoid infotainment culture in which the lines between Oprah and Phil and Geraldo and Diane and even Ted are indistinguishable." Bernstein says that what is happening today, unfortunately, is that the lowest form of popular culture – lack of information, misinformation, disinformation and a contempt for the truth or the reality of most people's lives – has overrun real journalism.

Bernstein was awarded the Pulitzer Prize for his coverage of Watergate while working for the Washington Post. He is the author of three best selling books including: All The President's Men, The Final Days (with Bob Woodward), and Loyalties: A Son's Memoir, an account of his parents' encounter with McCarthyism during the early Cold War era.

After leaving the Washington Post, Bernstein served as Washington Bureau Chief and Senior Correspondent for ABC-TV, and as a correspondent for Time magazine. His coverage for Time received worldwide attention, particularly his detailed accounts of Saddam Hussein's diminishing support among the Iraqi people, which led to Bernstein's being barred from the country by the Iraqi government.

In 1992, Bernstein wrote a cover story for Time that told of a secret alliance between Ronald Reagan and Pope John Paul II that kept Solidarnosc alive in Poland despite the imposition of martial law. The alliance hastened the end of communism in Eastern Europe and led to the break-up of the Soviet Union. Bernstein is now writing a book about Pope John Paul II.

Bernstein has lectured throughout the world on the press and politics; his commentary is widely sought by television networks in the United States and abroad. In addition to Time and The New Republic, Bernstein's articles have appeared in Newsweek, Rolling Stone, der Spiegel and more.

The Kimbel Distinguished Lecturer Series is sponsored by the William A. and L. Maud Kimbel Distinguished Lecturer Series Endowment Fund Trust and The Sun News, through the Coastal Educational Foundation, Inc.

Joyner lectures in England on Southern history

Charles Joyner has recently given lectures on Southern history and culture at the University of Cambridge and the University of Warwick in England. At Cambridge, Joyner delivered the concluding address at the annual conference of "British American Nineteenth-Century Historians." At Warwick, he delivered the keynote address at an interdisciplinary conference on Southern culture.

Joyner is a Burroughs Distinguished Professor of Southern History and Culture, and director of the Waccamaw Center for Cultural and Historical Studies at Coastal. He received the Ethel Fortner Writer and Community Award "in recognition of major contributions to the craft of writing" in 1992, and received the Governor's Award for Lifetime Achievement in the Humanities in 1994.

A native of Horry County, Joyner is an internationally-recognized scholar who has lectured widely in Great Britain, Australia, Canada, Norway,

New Zealand, Yugoslavia and the United States. He holds a Ph.D. in folklore and folklife from the University of Pennsylvania and a Ph.D. in history from the University of South Carolina. He also conducted post-doctoral work at Harvard University. He was awarded the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters by Presbyterian College in 1993.

As a leading authority on South Carolina's historical Waccamaw Neck, Joyner has written numerous books, essays and articles. Joyner is perhaps best known for his Down by the Riverside, a study of the rice plantations along the Waccamaw River in South Carolina; the book won the National University Press Book Award for the best book in the humanities published by a university press in 1987.

His Before Freedom Came was cited by the American Library Association for inclusion on its 1992 Notable Books List, one of only 13 works of nonfiction nationwide, and the only book on the list published by a university press. 🍷

Hicks selected to teach in England

Fred Hicks has been selected as a visiting professor at Nene College in Northampton, England for the spring 1995 semester. The faculty exchange was established in 1993 for implementation in spring 1995.

Hicks will conduct three seminars including: "Vietnam - The American Experience;" "The Decline and Death of the Special Relationship Between Great Britain and the United States - the Atlantic Alliance, Myth or Reality?;" and "The United States, United Kingdom and Ireland and the Tragedy of Ulster."

Hicks also will present two lectures before the entire campus community of Nene. They are: "The Decline and Death of the Special Relationship between Great Britain and the United States - Churchill and Roosevelt to Clinton and Major" and "The Reluctant Policeman - America's Struggle for its Role in the Post Vietnam War Era - The Legacy of Defeat."

Hicks received a Ph.D. in 1963, a master's degree in 1959, and a bachelor's degree in 1954, all in history from the University of Michigan. He received a secondary teaching certificate in 1958 from Wayne State University. In 1979, he received a master's degree in criminal justice from Rollins College; the same institution awarded him the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters in 1980.

Professor John McDonald from Nene College has been selected as a visiting professor at Coastal Carolina University for the spring 1995 semester. He will conduct an upper level course on the Holocaust and teach part of a European Civilization survey course. 🍷

House for $15 per semester or $25 per year.

For more information, contact John Eberwein at extension 2231 or Joan Piroch at extension 2271. 🍷

Coastal fishing tournament enters third decade

Coastal Carolina is a new university, but its annual intercollegiate fishing match and seminar is already legendary. The Coastal Carolina Invitational enters its third decade Oct. 28 with the 21st consecutive sportfishing match in Murrells Inlet.

Teams from Canada and Japan have competed in the Coastal Carolina Invitational along with Ivy League representatives and numerous schools from the Southeast. The tournament is the successor to intercollegiate tuna matches formerly held in Nova Scotia.

According to tournament director Donald Millus, all of the competing teams – Clemson University, University of South Carolina, Francis Marion University and Coastal will economize by fishing from the same headboat out of Captain Dick's Marina in Murrells Inlet.

Last year, male and female student anglers caught 45 king mackerel while fishing just 16 miles offshore on the "New Capt. Bill." Students and coaches combine bottomfishing for black sea bass with drift fishing for king mackerel. In the last three years, this innovation has produced more than 100 big kings.

According to Millus, after 16 years of three-day matches, the invitational was cut to a one-day affair in 1991 and moved from National Hunting and Fishing Day in September to late October. Instead of sailing 50 miles out toward the Gulf Stream, the collegiate anglers take advantage of the October inshore migration of king mackerel to save fuel and catch more fish.

Veteran angler Skip Opalko fished in the first tournament and now coaches for Coastal. Richard Moore will serve as chief judge, as he has since 1974. The Sun News fishing columnist Jim Godfrey also will serve as judge.

Weigh-in will be at 5 p.m. at Captain Dick's Marina and will be open to the public. Prizes have been donated by major tackle companies including Abu Garcia, Ande Line, Berkley, Buck Knives, Daiwa, DataSport, Penn, Plano, Remington, Shakespeare, Wright & McGill, Zebco and Salt Water Sportsman Magazine.

On-board lunch and an awards cookout are funded by the Murrells Inlet Sportfishing Club.

For more information, contact Don Millus at extension 2431.

Coastal professor edits book on marine science

Richard Dame has recently edited a book entitled Bivalve Filter Feeders in Estuarine and Coastal Ecosystem Processes. The book, published by Springer-Verlag of Heidelberg, is the result of a NATO-funded Advanced Sciences Institute on the same topic that was held in The Netherlands in 1992.

The workshop was attended by 32 leading scientists from NATO countries including Belgium, Canada, France, Germany, The Netherlands, Spain, United Kingdom and the United States.

In addition to organizing the international meeting and editing the book, Dame authored three papers within the volume. A copy of the book has been donated to Kimbel Library.

According to Dame, the book focuses on the importance of bivalve filter feeding mollusks such as clams, cockles, mussels, oysters and scallops in coastal waters where they remove large quantities of suspended particulate material from the water and excrete abundant amounts of nutrients.

Dame received a Ph.D. in biology and marine studies from the University of South Carolina in 1971, a master's degree in zoology and ecology from the University of North Carolina in 1967 and a bachelor's degree in biology from the College of Charleston in 1964. He joined the Coastal faculty in 1971 and served as chair of the marine science department until 1991, when he was named the first Palmetto Professor in the state.

Shackelford performance part of Shakespearean Women Theatre Festival

Sandi Shackelford recently performed An Audience With Fanny Kemble, a one-woman tribute to the 19th century actress and abolitionist, as part of the Shakespearean Women Theatre Festival in Washington, D.C. The one-month festival commemorates the 150th birthday of actress Sarah Bernhardt.

Shakespearean Women, a festival of famous 19th century actresses and the Shakespearean women they portrayed, comprises three plays: Wonderful Women, An Audience with Fanny Kemble and Duet.

Shackelford's performance is a dramatization of an imaginary evening in the life of Fanny Kemble, a 19th century actress and abolitionist. Born into a British theater family, Kemble toured America in the 1830s – and took New York by storm. She met and married Philadelphian Pierce Butler, whose large Southern land holdings introduced her to slavery. As mistress of his Georgia rice plantation, Kemble continually tried to improve living conditions for the 700 slaves who lived and worked there. Finding she was an abolitionist, Butler soon divorced her and took custody of their two small daughters. Kemble published four autobiographical works in the form of journals, poems, plays, criticisms and travel notes.

The play is inspired by Kemble's Journal of a Residence on a Georgia Plantation 1838-1839 and, according to biographer J.C. Furnas, is "the best available firsthand account of America's black slavery."

Shackelford has performed with the Alley Theatre in Houston, the Riverside Shakespeare Company in New York, the Philadelphia Drama Guild and the Piccolo Spoleto Festival in Charleston. She has done work with the National Theatre of Great Britain and is a teaching artist at the Delaware Institute for the Arts in Education. She earned a master's degree in fine arts from Southern Methodist University in 1981 and joined the Coastal faculty in 1989.

Coastal Carolina People

Ed Cerny presented a lecture at the First Annual National Retention Conference for Small Colleges conference, held recently in Savannah, Ga. His topic was "How to Help Freshmen Focus on the Future."

Samuel Wathen, with Michael S. Spencer of Northern Iowa University, published an article in the summer 1994 issue of the National Productivity Review. The title of the article is "Applying the theory of constraints' process management technique to an administrative function at Stanley Furniture." The process management technique allows management to identify the critical operations that determine the overall output from an administrative function such as customer order processing. By improving the critical operations, the performance of the whole process will improve.

Linda Hollandsworth's review of the book Small Caucasian Woman by Elaine Fowler Palencia, has been accepted for publication in the winter 1995 issue of Studies in Short Fiction.

Gregory Keith Cole had a poem, entitled "Begging Solitude," published in the October issue of Midwest Poetry Review.

Writing an on-campus memo?

Printing Services has a supply of letter-size CCU Memo stationery for faculty, staff and student use when writing on-campus memos.

CCU Memo stationery is available in pads of 50 sheets for $2, or un-padded at 50 sheets for $1.50.

Using CCU Memo stationery for on-campus memos will reduce the expenses of using the official Coastal Carolina University stationery.

For more information or to place an order, contact Jeannie Turner at extension 2921.

You can be a Healthnut, too

Healthnuts, a faculty and staff group concerned with creating healthier lifestyles, will meet Friday, Oct. 21 at 3:30 p.m. in PRIN 109. All interested faculty and staff are invited to participate.

For more information, contact Patti Loeb at extension 2329.

Coastal cheerleaders take second place at spirit camp

Coastal's Cheerleading Squad placed second in the Division I competition of the 1994 Universal Cheerleading Association Spirit Camp held recently at the University of Tennessee.

All squads competed with a cheer they developed at the camp. The Coastal squad was learning new material to be performed during the 1994-1995 basketball season.

Coastal cheerleaders who attended the camp are: Jennifer Agresta, Mike Bemiss, Jodi Brewster, Jamie Evers, Chris Hughes, Amy Nichols and Shelly Smith. Clay Crenshaw is cheerleading coach.

For more information about the cheerleading squad, call Crenshaw at 347-1749.

Tucci named Zollinger Scholar

Sophomore biology major Justin Tucci of Temple, Pa., son of Victor and Michelle Tucci, has been named a Sigma Phi Epsilon Zollinger Scholar.

Zollinger Scholars are members of Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity who "possess a special potential for a future leadership role in the chapter and on campus." Scholarship recipients receive $400 their junior year and an additional $400 their senior year, provided a 2.5 grade point average and an active role in fraternity and campus life are maintained.

Tucci is one of 28 nationwide Zollinger Scholars.

The scholarship is made possible through an endowment established by the family of J. Edward Zollinger, who was president of the Sigma Phi Epsilon Educational Foundation from 1961 to 1976.

Sigma Phi Epsilon "believes a student who maintains a balance between academics, citizenship, physical health and sound emotional and value-based activities in his life will establish good and stable family relations and contribute in his professional and community activities to a strong future for our nation." ■

The Solstice Assembly and Mappamundi to perform worldwide music for charity benefit

North Carolina-based musical groups The Solstice Assembly and Mappamundi will perform in Wheelwright Auditorium on Saturday, Oct. 29 at 7:30 p.m. as part of the 1994-1995 Wheelwright Series. Tickets are $8, $5 for students. All performance proceeds will support the Community Kitchen charity.

The performance, sponsored by the Palmetto Lodge of B'nai B'rith and Coastal Carolina University, will open with the Grand Strand's Vocal Edition.

The Solstice Assembly has made three recordings on the Skylark label. Their music spans the last 800 years and ranges from traditional and gospel to Yiddish folk tunes and parodies of Top 40 songs. Their repertoire includes Irish and Scottish ballads, Balkan, Greek and medieval tunes and more. Called modern-day minstrels by some, they describe themselves, in part, as purveyors of "Medieval Beach Music."

Mappamundi, Italian for "map of the world" has a repertoire that spans six centuries of European music and contemporary music of North America. Performances include vocals and instrumentals from Balkan and Slavic tradition to Renaissance music and classics of the American swing era.

The Solstice Assembly has appeared at Piccolo Spoleto Festival in Charleston and has been featured on national public radio. Mappamundi is the first local group to be featured in the Duke University Institute of the Arts' Living Tradition Series.

Cue Magazine said "The Solstice Assembly took the stage, and I mean took it, with an earthy vocal/choral style that reaches far back into folk traditions. Their singing tone is a full-throated delivery that commands attention and delivers great excitement and driving energy."

Critics have called Mappamundi a ground-breaking, irreverent world-music group that draws from all imaginable points on the musical map. The musicians "integrate the vibrant energy, unpredictable beats and close harmonies of eastern Europe with jazz and other global musical traditions to reach new multicultural horizons."

For more information about tickets or the Wheelwright Series, call the Wheelwright Box Office at extension 2502. ■
