Coastal Board of Trustees elects officers

The Coastal Carolina University Board of Trustees elected officers for the 1995-1996 academic year at its quarterly meeting July 7. They are: Fred F. DuBard Jr., chair; Elaine W. Marks, vice chair; and H. Franklin Burroughs, secretary. All were appointed original board members in 1993 when the university became an independent institution.

DuBard is owner, president and CEO of DuBard, Inc., a Florence-based distributor of Anheuser-Busch products. He earned a bachelor's degree in business administration and psychology from Wofford College in 1957 and a master's degree in educational counseling and guidance from the University of Tennessee in 1960. DuBard is a member of the South Carolina Beer Association and the National Beer Wholesalers Association. He is vice chair of the governmental affairs committee of the Florence Chamber of Commerce, steering committee member and former vice chair of Florence Vision 2000, and a member of the local advisory committee of Branch Bank and Trust. He also is a member of the Florence Rotary Club, YMCA, Florence-Darlington Technical College Foundation and the Darlington Green Flag Committee.

DuBard has been chair of the development and alumni affairs committee of the board since 1993.

Marks is an educator who retired after 33 years of service to the Spartanburg School District. She earned a bachelor's degree in history in 1952 from Converse College and has done graduate work at Furman, Emory and Winthrop universities. She also conducted graduate work in Middle Eastern studies at American University in Beirut as a Fulbright Scholar in 1965. Marks is a member of the board of directors and the southeast regional leadership team of the National Education Association and is a past president and board member emeritus of the South Carolina Education Association. She is vice president of the South Carolina Education Association Retired. She is a member of the executive committee and executive council of the South Carolina Democratic Party, vice chair of the Assembly of Neighborhood Organizations, and a member of Alpha Delta Kappa honorary sorority for women in education. In 1986, former Gov. Richard Riley presented Marks with the Order of the Palmetto.

Marks has been chair of the academic affairs committee of the board since 1993.

Burroughs is a Conway attorney. He earned a bachelor's degree in political science from Coastal Carolina in 1984 and a juris doctor degree from the University of South Carolina School of Law in 1987. He is a member of the Horry County, South Carolina and American bar associations.

Burroughs has been board secretary since 1993 and has served as a member of the development and alumni affairs committee. ♦

Summer theater to perform Schisgal comedy Luv

Coastal Carolina University Summer Theater will perform Luv, a comedy by Murray Schisgal, Friday and Saturday, July 21 and 22; Friday and Saturday, July 28 and 29; and Friday and Saturday, Aug. 4 and 5 at 7:30 p.m. in Wheelwright Auditorium. Tickets are $10 or $8 in advance; faculty, staff and students will be admitted for $5. Luv will be performed amid on-stage cabaret-style seating with adult beverages and popcorn available.

With hilarious wit and comedic ridicule, Luv spoofs love, marriage, self-pity, despair and more. Schisgal employs the irrelevancies of the theater of the absurd and skips cheerfully over preoccupations that this style often contemplates.

Richard Jennings, a professional film and stage actor who is director of the master of fine arts acting program at the University of South Carolina, will direct Luv, his third summer production at Coastal. In summer 1990, he directed a production of the musical The Fantasticks; he returned in summer 1991 to direct and star in The Odd Couple; and last summer he directed Not Now, Darling. According to Jennings, Schisgal is a master of using stereotyped gag lines in freshly humorous contexts. "Luv is an outrageous comedy that pokes fun at human behavior," Jennings said.

Sandi Shackelford, plays Ellen Manville, the cute but annoying wife of Milt Manville. Shackelford toured the East Coast for two years with her one-woman show, An Evening with Fanny Kemble; the tour included a highly successful run at the Folger Theater in Washington, D.C. Shackelford earned a master's degree in fine arts in acting from Southern Methodist University in 1981.

Jason Vail, a 1994 Coastal theater graduate, plays Milt Manville, the weary husband who tries to palm his mate on an old school chum. Vail has appeared in numerous Coastal Carolina University theater productions including the role of Jean Paul Marat in Marat Sade, and major roles in Room Service, The Shadow Box, 1776, As You Like It and Not Now, Darling. Vail also played the role of Randal in the television movie Blessed Assurance. The movie was directed by Peter Bogdanovich who won a British Academy Award in 1971 for The Last Picture Show.

Charles Whetzel, a Coastal theater professor, plays Harry Berlin, whose brilliant promise as an author has declined into abandonment. Whetzel has appeared in nearly 100 roles in South Carolina, California, Iowa and Pennsylvania. Locally, he has appeared in The Fantasticks, Not Now, Darling, The Odd Couple, and the Theatre of the Republic's performance of A Thurber Carnival. Whetzel also is set and lighting designer for the production.

Volunteers assist in successful dolphin count

The S.C. Department of Natural Resources and Coastal's Center for Marine and Wetland Studies jointly coordinated and sponsored the Second Annual 1995 South Carolina Dolphin Count on July 1.

An estimated 200 volunteers were stationed in pairs every two miles along the coast from Waites Island at the North Carolina border to Turtle Island near Savannah, Ga. Observation teams counted all dolphins that passed in front of them from 9 a.m. to noon. There were 20 sites along the Grand Strand from Waites Island to Huntington Beach.

Count coordinators Sally Murphy from the S.C. Department of Natural Resources, and Robert Young, are hoping the data collected will provide reliable population estimates which are needed for the management of the species. Data collected in South Carolina will be compiled with data from similar studies focusing on the summer range of the coastal bottlenose migratory stock from Florida to New Jersey.

Young said the count serves as a useful long-term monitoring tool. Last year, 337 dolphins were counted along the South Carolina coast.

Following a die-off of bottlenose dolphins along the east coast in 1987 and 1988, the National Marine Fisheries Service officially declared the coastal migratory stock "depleted," meaning the population may have been significantly reduced. ♦

Board of Trustees REPORT

When the Coastal Carolina University Board of Trustees met Friday, July 7, the following action was taken:

- The proposed budget for the 1995-1996 fiscal year was approved with operational revenues and expenditures projected at $22,675. The administration will adjust revenues and/or expenditures as required if conditions change, to ensure that the university maintain a positive current fund balance.
- The 1995-1996 tuition for in-state students will increase by $45 per semester to a total of $1,400 per semester. The 1995-1996 tuition for out-of-state students will increase by $235 per semester to a total of $3,735 per semester.
- The university will impose an assessment of laboratory fees for those courses which have special and unique costs for instructional supplies and expenses directly associated with the courses. The fees will generally be $20 per course.
- The student housing fee will increase by $40 per semester to a total of $1,360 per semester. ♦

Coastal hosts new principals academy

Coastal Carolina University will host more than 40 first-year principals from across the state from July 16 to 21 as part of the 10th annual New Principals' Academy, sponsored by the South Carolina Department of Education.

The New Principals' Academy, designed exclusively for new principals who work in early childhood, elementary and secondary settings, provides training that enhances knowledge, skills and instructional leadership. The academy pairs new principals with experienced principals who serve as mentors and assists new principals in forming a network for sharing resources and ideas.

Activities and seminars that will be conducted by local and state experts include: school climate and culture, budget, finance, systemic initiatives, public communication, supervision and leadership. Follow-up meetings throughout the year provide a forum for the exchange of ideas and provide new principals with additional training.

The program will begin with an address from John Stevenson, interim superintendent for Lee County School District. ♦

Limited edition Atheneum print available

Limited edition prints of the Coastal Carolina University Atheneum by North Carolina artist Tom Butler are available for purchase through the university's alumni association. All proceeds go toward enhancing the academic programs of the university.

The Atheneum, constructed on campus in 1966, is a recognized architectural symbol of a meeting place for persons engaged in literary and scientific pursuits.

Five hundred signed and numbered prints of the 13 1/2-by-15 inch print are available for $50 each. Fifty artist's proofs are available for $75 each.

Butler is a former Rockingham Community College art and photography teacher who entered the limited edition print business five years ago. He is most noted for his flag paintings which he began painting during Desert Storm. His first flag print, "Glory," is sought by collectors across the country.

Junior Scholars' field trip to Waites a muddy success

With muck-covered hair and a smile on her face, Payton Ashley isn't just having one of the best mud fights of her life, she's also learning about the coastal environment of Waites Island, a pristine barrier island on the South Carolina coast. Ashley and 39 of her new friends are participating in Coastal's Marine Science for Junior Scholars Program. The 13-day camp began July 9 and continues through July 22.

The program is designed to link the coastal environment to the development of scientific experiences for rising ninth and tenth-grade students from across South Carolina. This approach attempts to foster an appreciation and understanding of marine-related issues facing society. Students are chosen for the program based on scholastic qualifications.

Located on the northeast coast of South Carolina between Hog Inlet at Cherry Grove and Little River Inlet on the North Carolina border, Waites Island is a habitat for many species of birds and wildlife, including several threatened and endangered species. In 1988, the late Anne Tilghman Boyce left a one-third interest in the property to a charitable trust. In 1992, the property was deeded to Coastal Educational Foundation, Inc., the private, non-profit support component of the university. The island is protected with a perpetual conservation easement donated to The Nature Conservancy of South Carolina by Coastal Carolina University and Coastal Educational Foundation, Inc.

While conducting field experiments on Waites Island, students learned about longshore currents, beach deposits and the effects of construction along the beach. The group also used nets to seine the ocean and wetlands for shrimp, small fish and crabs for study. In addition to classroom discussion and the trip to Waites Island, students will participate in field surveys of estuarine, beach and marine environments; collect and study open ocean samples aboard the Ms. Coastal, Coastal's 32-foot research vessel; take chemical and biological laboratory analysis of samples collected in the field; and receive scuba diving instruction or canoe down the Waccamaw River.

According to Robert Young, much of the program involves integrating field study into classroom work. "We are seeing excellent retention of the information the students are learning and everyone is having fun," Young said.

The Marine Science for Junior Scholars Program is conducted at Coastal where participants have complete use of all marine science facilities. Coastal's marine science department, in conjunction with its Center for Marine and Wetlands Studies, has facilities for chemical, geological, biological and ocean-atmosphere analyses, which involves vibracoring, seismic sub-bottom profiling and dual gas chromatography. The facility is equipped with a remote sensing computer workstation for laboratory and field work.

For more information about the summer 1996 program, contact Young at extension 2224. ♦

Wetland plant identification course offered

The Center for Marine and Wetlands Studies will sponsor a course, "Wetland Plant Identification," Tuesday, Aug. 1 through Friday, Aug. 4.

The fee for the course is $500. Space is limited and early registration is recommended. Registration deadline is Monday, July 24. The course is available for four hours of continuing education credit.

Participants will learn to identify wetland plants based on an understanding of taxonomic keys, plant structure and morphology. The course also will cover the practical applications of plant identification in the delineation of freshwater wetlands through an understanding of the "wetland indicator status."

The course is recommended for wetland consultants, surveyors, ecologists and others involved in the field of natural resource management.

Environmental and wetland consultant Paul Booth Jr. and botanical consultant Cindy Aulbach-Smith are course instructors.

Additional wetland issues courses offered through Coastal's Center for Marine and Wetland Studies, include "Basic Wetland Delineation;" "Advanced Wetland Delineation;" and "Wetlands: Federal and State Laws and Regulations."

To register or for more information, call John Steen at extension 2224. ♦

Office of Financial Aid extends Monday hours

The Office of Financial Aid, Scholarships and Veteran Affairs has extended hours of operation on Mondays from 5 to 8 p.m. The extended hours are part of an effort to assist community members with college research, financial aid/scholarship options and more.

According to Glenn Hanson, the program is open to all community members, not just those interested in Coastal. "We want to provide assistance to all community members so they can make informed decisions in the pursuit of higher education," he said.

For more information, call Hanson at extension 2325. ♦

CINO Club plans golf tournament for members

The CINO Club will sponsor an appreciation golf tournament for members of the CINO Club on Friday, July 28 at Arrowhead Country Club in Myrtle Beach. The tournament is a four-man captain's choice format for A, B, C and D players. The fee of $25 includes 18 holes of golf, a cart and a cook-out. A cash bar and beverage cart will be available, but are not included in the golf fee.

The handicap range is A: 0-10; B: 11-20; C: 21-30, and D: more than 30.

Tee times will be from 12:34 to 1:22 p.m. only; participants should indicate their preferred tee time on the registration form.

Non-members are invited to join the CINO Club; memberships are available for a minimum $50 donation.

For more information on joining the CINO Club or to register for the tournament, contact Chris Wright at extension 2466. ♦

Postal regulations workshop planned

A faculty and staff workshop to detail recent changes in the U.S. Post Office regulations will be held Thursday, July 20 at 10 a.m. in the campus mail services building. Postal regulations for all classes of mail and suggestions for the most efficient and economical uses will be explained. New regulations for the preparation of bulk mail and options for overnight mail service also will be discussed.

Registration for the workshop is requested.

For more information or to register for the workshop, contact Jim Mee at extension 2156. ♦

Fleet management policies and procedures outlined

Tom Trezise of State Fleet Management Program recently outlined the program's policies and procedures for Coastal's newly-formed Accident Review Board.

The information provided included the following information for drivers of state vehicles:

- Drivers should be advised that any accident incurred while driving a state-owned vehicle must be reported immediately to Coastal's Transportation Office.
- Accidents resulting in repairs costing more than $400 must be reviewed by the Accident Review Board.
- If found at fault when reviewed, a driver may be assessed up to $200 against the cost of repairs.
- Other corrective actions, such as oral and written counseling and driver training classes, may be required as outlined by the South Carolina State Fleet Safety Program.

For more information about university or State Fleet Policies, contact Sarah Rabon, transportation coordinator, at extension 2172. ♦

F.Y.I.

Due to busy printing schedules, requests for business cards will be processed once a month. All orders must be received in the Office of Public Information by the 5th day of the month. The cards are on a template in grids of 10, and will be placed on a first-come, first-served basis. This schedule will allow for fewer errors and faster delivery. However, please plan ahead and don't wait until you are out of cards before you order.

If you have any questions, contact Sally at extension 2103.

Bulletin Board

Bulletin Board is a free service for faculty and staff who wish to advertise items or services for sale or needed. Ads may run no more than two consecutive times and are subject to space availability.

For Sale: 1987 Ford Escort station wagon-$1,700 (65,000 miles). For more information, contact Allen Michie at extension 2947 or 236-0193.

Coastal Carolina People in the News

Items in the Coastal Carolina People section will appear in the "On Campus" issue following the presentation or event.

Sally Horner participated in the Commission on Colleges of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Orientation for New Commissioners, held in Atlanta, Ga., May 20-22. She also participated in the summer meeting of the Commission held in Charlottesville, Va., June 24 to 29.

Colin Young was selected in June to participate in the annual reading and scoring of the College Board's Advanced Placement Examination in Mathematics. More than 770,000 examinations in 16 disciplines were evaluated by almost 3,500 faculty consultants from high schools and universities across North America. According to Wade Curry, AP Program Director at The College Board, "The Reading draws upon the talents of some of the finest teachers and professors that America has to offer. It fosters professionalism, allows for the exchange of ideas and strengthens the commitment to students and to teaching. We are very grateful for the contributions of talented educators like Mr. Young."

Allen Michie recently had published a review of Joseph Bartolomeo's A New Species of Criticisms: Eighteenth- Century Discourse on the Novel in the April 1995 edition of Eighteenth-Century Fiction.

Don Millus represented Horry County sportfishermen before the South Atlantic Fishery Management Council's habitat advisory meeting held recently in Charleston. Topics discussed included changes in clean water regulations and problems with the red drum and shrimp fisheries in the South Atlantic coast. Anyone who would like to submit topics for future discussion may contact Millus at extension 3161.

Treelee MacAnn received the Best In Show Award for her lithograph Amanda Waiting at the Third Annual Harborwalk Juried Art Show held at the Prevost Gallery of the Rice Museum in Georgetown. The exhibit was sponsored by the Georgetown Watercolor Society. Carl Blair, who has earned national, regional and statewide recognition for his paintings which have been selected for exhibition awards more than 85 times, was juror for the art show. Maura Kenny's watercolor collage Sargent's Girls Protect Emily also was a featured work in the exhibit. Included in the exhibit was Coastal student Amanda Sue Holt's wood block print Wild and Free and Coastal graduate Nina McDuffie's acrylic Demeter and Persephone. The exhibit continues through Aug. 26.
