COASTAL COMBINED CAMPAIGN BREAKS RECORD

The Coastal Combined Campaign for 80-81 at USC-Coastal Carolina College surpassed all previous campaigns in donations and participation. Almost 90% of Coastal's faculty and staff participated in the campaign, donating $7,842 to the three non-profit organizations involved in the fund-raising effort. The Coastal Educational Foundation received $3,515.50; the USC Foundation received $2,749.50; and United Way received $1,577.

"The faculty and staff should be commended for the success of this year's campaign," says Coastal Carolina College Chancellor Edward M. Singleton. "Your spirit, leadership and contribution to the college and to the community are invaluable. You have given the College a reputation for service with which all of us can be pleased."

TEACHER ED MAKES COMMUNITY CONTACTS

Coastal's Instructional Media Services and the School of Teacher Education are helping the state procure video-tapes of public school classroom teachers for an upcoming pilot training program.

Coastal was chosen as one of the institutions of higher education to be involved with the state pilot study regarding the evaluation of student teachers. Nine interns, at Conway High School, will be involved in the study and will be coordinated by Patsy Candal, Director of Field Experiences.

Effective January, 1981 two new teaching centers will be added to the Coastal Carolina/Horry County Teaching Center Network. The new centers are Myrtle Beach Primary School and Myrtle Beach Elementary School.

UPSTAGE COMPANY TO PRESENT EUGENE O'NEILL PLAY

One of the milestones of the contemporary American theatre is being brought to the Coastal Carolina College theatre stage beginning Wednesday, February 18th by the Upstage Company, for an engagement of four performances, through February 21st. The play is Eugene O'Neill's "A Moon for the Misbegotten", the last drama from the pen of this four times Pulitzer Prize winner who has been acclaimed America's greatest playwright.

The play will be presented on Wednesday, February 18th at 12:30 p.m., Thursday, February 19th at 12:50 p.m. and Friday and Saturday, February 20 and 21 at 8:00 p.m. in the Little Theatre on the Coastal Carolina College campus. Tickets will be available at the door for each performance.

FACULTY, STAFF ACTIVITIES

The Coastal Carolina College Concert Choir recently performed at ceremonies honoring new inductees into the S. C. Hall of Fame in Myrtle Beach. Led by Choir Director Carolyn Cox, the choir entertained a group of dignitaries with patriotic songs.

Speech and Theater Professor Thomas Jones recently attended a one-day grant writing workshop sponsored by the S. C. Arts Commission and the National Endowment for the Arts. The workshop was held at Francis Marion College. Jones has also been active recently in helping the Theatre of the Republic select a cast for a production of Thornton Wilder's Our Town.

Jack Forsyth, Director of the Small Business Development Center, recently addressed the Myrtle Beach Jaycees, speaking on the topic of aid to small business.

Public Relations Director Rod Gragg appeared recently on WWAY-TV, discussing Wheelwright Auditorium. He also spoke to the North Myrtle Beach Civitans, discussing the Civil War in coastal South Carolina.

Coastal's Dennis Wiseman is the author of an article soon to be published in San Jose Studies. Entitled "Facing the Issues of Inner City Teaching," the article is being published by the San Jose University Foundation in San Jose, California.

Vice Chancellor Roy Talbert was featured recently in a cerebral palsy telethon on WWAY-TV. Talbert was interviewed about the growth and expansion of the college and encouraged telethon support from South Carolina.

Coastal's Dean of Business, Professor Darcy Carr, addressed the Conway Rotary Club recently, speaking on the topic, "Possible Solutions to the Inflation Problem."

Coastal Mathematics faculty Deborah Vrooman and Steve West were featured in a recent television news story produced by The Office of Public Relations and the Media Services Center. The story aired on stations in Columbia, Florence, Wilmington, Charleston, Charlotte, Greenville, Spartanburg, and Sumter.

Dr. Reinhold Engelmayer recently addressed the Conway Rotary Club, discussing the goals of the Pee Dee Regional Health Systems Agency, of which he is a member.

ANTIQUÉ LIBRARY DISPLAY

A variety of rare and unusual books depicting the art of book-binding and illustrating are now on display in Kimbel Library through February 8th. Martha Thomas and Charmaine Tomczyk gathered and arranged the books. Charmaine researched the techniques and illustrators that are characteristic of the volumes chosen for the exhibit.

AWARD WINNING SOLOIST TO PERFORM

USC-Coastal Carolina College will present award-winning soloist Beverly Hoch in concert at 8:00 p.m. Monday, February 2nd, at the Conway High School Auditorium. The concert is part of the college's 1981 cultural arts series. Tickets are available at USC-Coastal and will be sold at the door.

Beverly Hoch won the 1979 Young Concert Artists International Auditions. Miss Hoch has been the recipient of numerous awards and honors. She was a Regional Winner of the 1977 Metropolitan Opera Auditions in the Midwest, and was named West Central Singer of the Year in 1976. In 1977, Miss Hoch won the Sterling Staff International Competition.

As a Winner of the YCA Auditions, Miss Hoch was presented in her acclaimed New York recital debut in the Young Concert Artists Series at Kaufmann Auditorium on January 22, 1980. She has already been heard with enormous success as soloist with many prestigious organizations and in very varied repertoire. She has appeared as soloist with the Oklahoma City, Wichita, and Austin Symphonies, and participated in opera and choral programs of the Aspen Music Festival on scholarship in 1977 and 1978. In nationwide tours with the John Biggs Renaissance Consort, she appeared as a featured singer, and also played the recorder, krummhorn, and portative organ.
