USC-COASTAL CAROLINA COLLEGE

MARCH 2, 1981

The following editorial related to Coastal Carolina College appeared in The State newspaper Fcb. 24, 1981:

MARION: MAN OF MYTHS

A courageous forefunner of guerrilla warfare will be gratefully remembered March 21.

Every South Carolina schoolboy knows that Francis Marion was a Revolutionary hero. Beyond our state, the Swamp Fox is lesser known - largely because his tattered legions did not engage the British in epic battle, but in sharp, hit-and-run skirmishes amid bogs and bushes. In doing so, the hook-nosed Huguenot thwarted the goal of superior Redcoat forces to isolate the South.

A mass of legend, some of it true, surrounds the South Carolinian, who was tiny and frail until he was 12. One historian, Helen Kohn Hennig, hailed him as a combination of Robin Hood and King Arthur and his Knights, noting that he and his few ragged men were "here, there and everywhere, but never where the British generals could lay a finger on him."

But another author, Robert D. Bass, said "he was neither a Robin Hood nor a Chevalier Bayard. He was a moody, introverted, semiliterate genius who rose from private to brigadier general through an intuitive grasp of strategy and tactics, personal bravery, devotion to duty and worship of liberty."

Mr. Bass added that General Marion was, by nature, gentle, kind and humane. Yet "he shot pickets, rataliated from ambush, failed to honor flags of truce and knowingly violated international law ... (his) paradoxical qualities inspired admiration in his officers and love in his men."

It is fitting that a bicentennial salute to General Marion be staged at University of South-Coastal Carolina College near Conway. Conway is only 20 miles from the general's favorite hidebut, the marshes and woods of Snow's Island.

From such an unimposing patch of land emerged this slight man, who greatly influenced the history of his state, his nation and military history.

FACULTY, STAFF ACTIVITIES

Dr. Marshall Parker, Mr. Walter Hambrick, Dr. John Farrelly, Dr. Tom Cooke, Ms. Sarah Ann McDearmon, & Ms. Violet Meade attended the Southern District Convention of the American Alliance for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance in Orlando, Florida on February 19-22. Faculty members attended seminar workshops, and research presentations during the three day convention. Ten Senior Physical Education students also attended the convention.

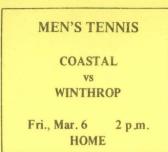

Dr. Patricia Candal was one of six trainers chosen by the state to prepare sixty public school administrators, master classroom teachers and college professors to utilize the first draft of the new state-wide observation/evaluation instrument designed to evaluate all student teachers and first year teachers. The training took place at Hickory Knob State Park the second week in February. The sixty people were randomly chosen from districts and colleges around the state to participate in the first pilot study regarding the usage of the instrument.

Dr. Charles Joyner of Coastal's Waccamaw Regional Studies Project appeared on WECT-TV last week as part of the project's monthly program on "The Jim Burns Show."

Dr. Roy Talbert discussed academic affairs on WLAT Radio's "Conway Today" program last week.

Dr. Subhash Saxena appeared on WLAT Radio last week to be interviewed about the National Science Foundation grant awarded to Coastal under his application.

Director of Public Relations Rod Gragg attended the Winter Meeting of the S. C. Press Association Meeting recently in Columbia.
