Coastal Carolina University
Outstanding alumni and volunteers honored at Homecoming

Coastal Carolina University and the Coastal Carolina Alumni Association have announced the selection of several of its alumni and university volunteer. John C. Grigg, a former member of the University's Board of Trustees, 1982-1989, and a faculty member from 1972 to 1980, has served as vice president for Coastal Carolina University's major shipping company.

Facility information from the Office of the Provost

• Nominations sought for Distinguished Teacher-Scholar Lecturer Award

Distinguished Teacher-Scholar Lecturer Award. The award, established by the university with sponsorship of Horry County Cooperative, is intended to annually recognize a Coastal Carolina faculty member who has distinguished himself or herself as a teacher, a scholar and a communicator. Faculty, retired faculty, staff, students, alumni and community members are invited to nominate outstanding faculty members for the award. Self-nominations also will be accepted.

The award recipient will receive a $200 stipend and a plaque. The application form will be published in the original lecture or presentation to the university community during October 1996. The lecture or presentation will be published and distributed among members of the university community, the university's friends and benefactors, all university libraries in South Carolina and to other selected university libraries throughout the United States.

Nominations for this prestigious award must be tenured members of the university faculty and may represent any area of knowledge or expression at the university. Nominations should be submitted in writing to the Office of the Provost by Friday, March 29, 1996.

For more information, contact the Office of the Provost at extension 2088.

• Keams Palmetto Professorship nominations sought

Applications and nominations for the Keams Palmetto Professorship are being accepted by the Office of the Provost. The endowed professorship was established by state funds authorized by SC Act 629 (1988) Section 59-104-230 and by the Coastal Educational Foundation, Inc., to attract and retain outstanding faculty who are making or who show promise of making significant contributions to Coastal Carolina University through teaching, scholarship and/ or creative work.

Candidates nominated for the professorship must hold the rank of tenured professor, or in the case of external candidates, must meet all the requirements for appointment as a tenured professor.

Specific criteria includes quality of teaching, quality and number of scholar and/or creative work, enhancement of Coastal Carolina University's reputation through regional, national and international recognition of professional work, service to the university and to the profession which distinguishes the individual and the university, and appropriate professional and personal conduct.

The recipient of the endowed professorship may use the income for salary supplement, student research assistance, program related travel and publications, administrative support and equipment.

Nominations should be submitted in writing to the Office of the Provost by Friday, Feb. 23. A one-page application form will be mailed to each nominee; completed forms must be returned to the Office of the Provost by Wednesday, March 21. For more information, contact Chris Martin at extension 2036.

• Proposals accepted for professional activities mini-grants program

The Faculty Welfare and Development Committee is accepting proposals from full-time, tenure and tenure-track faculty and instructors for consideration in the professional activities mini-grants program. The purpose of the program is to encourage and to allow faculty to participate externally in the professional activities of their discipline, to improve their effectiveness as teachers and to expand their capabilities as creative contributors to their discipline.

Applications are available in the offices of the department chair; the dean and assistant dean. Applications must be submitted to committee chair Kenneth Townday in PRS 119 by Tuesday, Feb. 20. For more information, contact Prof. Townday at extension 2147 or the Office of the Provost at extension 2086.
Literature and leadership conference designed to assist business leaders, educators

For educators and businesspeople, will be held Friday, March 1 through Sunday, March 3 on campus. The conference is designed to provide assistance with strategies on leadership and concerns by having case studies on literature and can be attended by faculty, students, educators and other interested in literature. Faculty and staff may attend individual sessions. A career conference free of charge. The conference is cosponsored by Coastal’s Office of Continuing Education and the Department of English.

Literature of Leadership, a three-day conference for educators, business, and professional leaders, will be held Friday, March 1 through Sunday, March 3 on campus. The conference is designed to provide assistance with strategies on leadership and concerns by having case studies on literature and can be attended by faculty, students, educators and other interested in literature. Faculty and staff may attend individual sessions. A career conference free of charge. The conference is cosponsored by Coastal’s Office of Continuing Education and the Department of English.

According to Joyce Parker, conference coordinator, literary characters in leadership roles throughout time have faced many of the same concerns that are encountered today, such as team building, problem solving, communicating effectively, creativity, interpersonal skills, motivation, decision making, ethics, and more. "By using these characters as case studies, much can be learned that may assist business leaders, educators, and others interested in literature. Faculty and staff may attend individual sessions. A career conference free of charge. The conference is cosponsored by Coastal’s Office of Continuing Education and the Department of English.

Items in the Coastal Carolina People section will appear in the "On Campus" issue following the presentation or event.

John Beard, Linda Hollandsworth, Peter LeCourant, Joyce Parker, Linda Schwartz, Jill Sessions and Randall Wells attended the annual conference of the Georgia-South Carolina College English Association held in Charleston. The conference was sponsored by CBI The Morning and educational concepts have been featured in publications such as The Wall Street Journal, The Washington Post, The Chicago Tribune, The Wall Street Journal, The Business of Leadership: A Three-Day Conference, the publication of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. He also serves on the Board of Directors of the University of South Carolina and the College of Business administration and the South Carolina Writing Center Association held Thursday, Feb. 1 through Saturday, Feb. 3 at the beach at Goose Nose in North Myrtle Beach. More than 140 writing center directors, faculty, graduate students and peer tutors from colleges and universities in the southeastern region attended the conference. The conference theme, "Convergence," emphasized the multipurpose of college and university writing centers, among the presentations were sessions on writing across the curriculum, tutor training, English as a second language, technology and writing, composition research, and administrative views toward writing centers. Keynote speaker was Wendy Bishop, professor of English at Florida State University and widely published author and poet. John Vrooman provided opening remarks at the conference. Linda Schwartz served on a panel of administrators that discussed the value of writing centers to students and faculty. Her presentation was titled, "Writing Centers: Past, Present, and Future."

NellieJean Rice recently presented a lecture and led a discussion on the novel war, The Empire of the Sun by J.G. Ballard, for Chappis Library’s Let’s Talk About It series. The book is a fictional presentation of Ballard’s experience as a teenager interned in Japanese Internment Camp in Shanghai, China.

Randall Wells presented a lecture on the Oral History Project and interview techniques at Whitemire Park Middle School on Jan. 3. He also presented a lecture on Feb. 12 titled "Food Memories of Reading," during Surfside Beach Library’s grand opening week.

Bob Young recently presented a lecture, "Life on a Barrier Reef," at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C., as part of the 1995-1996 Auditorium Lectures monthly series. The presentation was based on his research on coral reef fish in Belize. He also presented with more marine science major Sally Peck, titled "Shore-based and boat based techniques for Marine coastal fisheries: effects of environmental conditions and survey protocol," at the Eleventh Biennial Conference on the Biology of Marine Mammals held in Orlando, Florida.
