Singleton named chancellor

By MARY JEAN BAXLEY

Dr. Edward M. Singleton, Coastal Carolina vice president and director has been named chancellor of the college by the USC Board of Trustees Dec. 8.

The change in Singleton’s title is part of the Carolina Plan II. Heads of four-year campuses at Aiken, Spartanburg and Coastal Carolina will be known as chancellors.

Directors of the two-year campuses in Beaufort, Lancaster, Union, Sumter and Salkehatchie have become deans of the university as part of the system-wide title changes.

Singleton has served as vice president and director at Coastal since 1963. Prior to this position, he was superintendent of the Conway city schools.

Singleton has served as an active member of the USC Board of Trustees from 1952 to 1963. He resigned to become vice president at Coastal. His unexpired term on the board was filled by Conway businessman Luke Branson.

Singleton received his B.S., Masters degree in education and his Doctor of Philosophy degree in Education Administration from USC.

Singleton was a member of Kappa Sigma Kappa Honorary Fraternity and was selected as one of the ten outstanding seniors of his graduating class.

Singleton has been an active and vital part of the Horry community. He was the founder and first supervisor of the Conway Recreation Department.

He has been involved in almost every area of the community. In the past Singleton has served on the mental health board of directors. Past president of the Conway Chamber of Commerce and past commander of the American Legion are additional positions Singleton has filled.

Singleton has served as a deacon, ruling elder and has taught Sunday School at Kingston Presbyterian Church of Conway.

Singleton is on the Board of Directors of the Ocean View Memorial Foundation.

Singleton is married to the former Elizabeh Jane Parker and has three children: Francesca, Stephen and Kim.

CHANCELLOR E.M. SINGLETON

Thompson resigns

Dr. Donald L. Thompson, Dean of Administration, has tendered his resignation from this position effective June 30, 1979 according to an announcement by Dr. Edward M. Singleton, chancellor of the college.

Thompson, who has served as dean of administration and professor of economics since June 6, 1977, has requested in a letter to Singleton that he be assigned to some other combination of teaching and administrative duties at the end of this fiscal year.

“We will honor Dr. Thompson’s request,” stated Singleton, “and we appreciate his contribution to Coastal Carolina in his administrative role these past 18 months. We will be working together in the future for the continued success and development of the college.”

Thompson’s resignation means that effective July 1, Coastal will either have two new deans on board or will be in the process of hiring replacements for Thompson and Dr. Paul Stanton, dean of academic affairs. Stanton resigned last spring and his resignation is effective July 1.

“We will be appointing two search committees within the week,” said Singleton.

Campaigns exceeds $525,000mark

Coastal has raised $525,000 toward matching the $1 million given by Mr. & Mrs. William A. Kimbel for the construction of the Wheelwright Auditorium.

The college has now named a Conway man to head up the campaign to raise the remaining money needed.

Conway businessman John K. Massey Sr. has accepted the position of general chairman of the 25th Anniversary Campaign for Progress at Coastal Carolina College. According to a joint announcement by Dr. Edward L. Proctor, president of the Coastal Educational Foundation and Dr. Edward M. Singleton, chancellor of Coastal Carolina College.

The Campaign for Progress is designed to raise the remaining funds necessary to construct Wheelwright Auditorium, the $2 million center for performing arts planned for the Coastal Carolina College campus.

The Kimbel contribution was donated as a challenge gift and the Campaign for Progress must raise the balance for the auditorium. As general chairman of the campaign, Massey is responsible for the organization and the direction of the fund-raising project.

Massey now serves on the board of directors of Conway National Bank and is a member of the Horry County Higher Education Commission.

“We’re pleased to have someone of Mr. Massey’s ability serving as general chairman of the campaign to fund Wheelwright Auditorium,” says Coastal Education Foundation President Edward L. Proctor. “Mr. Massey has made a constant, significant contribution to the quality of life in this area for more than thirty years and his service as chairman of this campaign is typical of his dedicated service to the Waccamaw community.”

ENROLLMENT AT COASTAL

Editor’s note: We were told that the admissions office wouldn’t have the final count until Jan. 16. That was too late for our deadline. We apologize but we have no control over the admissions office. We are presently putting together an enrollment story and we would appreciate hearing from students about registration, especially the C.A.R.B. and drop priority that took place Jan. 16.
Editorial

Student parking spaces are fewer this semester

We had another editorial all ready to be typeset for this issue but parking or the lack of parking spaces caused the need to change our mind.

The College Center did open Jan. 8 but the parking lot didn’t open. It was totally submerged in mud. We know because we almost got stuck trying to get to our office.

It wasn’t bad enough that our little tiny station wagon nearly sank into the mud but we ruined a good pair of boots when they got lost in the mud.

This is the same parking lot that The Chanticleer did a story on last year. The parking lot that was SCHEDULED to open last August or September.

We were told students shouldn’t park anywhere but the designated areas. We know for a fact that the designated areas are totally inadequate.

At the general faculty meeting Jan. 8, we didn’t exactly jump for joy at the announcement that parking spaces for faculty and staff spaces were doubled over the holidays. Where did the spaces come from? No, they didn’t construct a new lot. They took and marked spaces that last semester were available to everybody (first come - first serve).

We were told faculty and staff will be getting parking decals. And that students will NOT be allowed to park in reserved spaces.

While, we can certainly sympathize with the faculty and staff in their anguish over trying to find space, we don’t feel this was the time to make the change.

When more parking facilities are made available, then this action would be more appropriate.

Another announcement coming out of general faculty meeting concerns the fact that our administration is considering calling in the Conway Police to ticket violators. The administration has been told that if tickets are written they will cost $15 for the first offense.

We sincerely hope that Coastal officials don’t resort to this length against innocent students.

And we feel students are innocent in the parking problem. We are the victims. And we would like to see a little more consideration to the students’ needs. And parking is not only a need but a necessity at a commuter college.

Frankly we live too far away to walk. Most Coastal students live too far to walk. Dormitories would have helped but we don’t have dorms either. Anybody got a solution?
College Center opens during rainy season

Although the College Center opened Jan. 8, the adjacent parking lot and entrance road were under water and both were still unpaved. The parking lot was originally scheduled to be open for use last September. "If bad weather doesn't delay things, the parking lot will be paved the week of registration," said Dr. Donald Thompson, dean of administration.

In spite of the muddy road and lack of parking area, the College Center facilities started shaping up into what promises to be an impressive addition to the Coastal campus. Jan. 9 the television and card lounge were partially ready for use by students. The information desk located on the main floor near the entrance is ready. Student offices, student government, newspaper, yearbook and Campus Union were complete but were without phones and heat for a major part of the early days of opening.

Poston named director of College Center

By MARY JEAN BAXLEY
Editor

Al Poston has assumed the position of director of the College Center according to Dr. Robert Squatriglia, dean of development.

Poston will continue working with students and student organizations. The College Center opened Jan. 8 and Poston's new position went into full swing. He will have a staff mainly comprised of students.

"The game room on the second floor will be staffed at all times. Temporarily, we will close at 5:30 p.m. but when the building is completed, we plan to open at 7 a.m. and stay open until 9 p.m.," Poston said.

Pat Singleton will be working part-time as an assistant with student activities and part-time with career and life planning.

According to Squatriglia, Singleton assumed her duties Jan. 2. Singleton holds the Bachelor's and Master's degrees from Coastal Carolina and she was a graduate intern in the student development division.

Poston said, "Singleton will be assisted by Mary Harrison, who will arrange reservations for rooms for students, faculty, staff or the community. "The college Center has four conference rooms and lounge areas," Poston said. According to Poston, when the dining area opens March 1, it will have a back area and an overflow area for large groups. In addition, the game room has food and drink machines.

The game room will be staffed by work study students. The information desk in the main lobby will also be staffed by students.

"I think the College Center will be a place the entire college will enjoy. It has great potential," Poston said.

By WALT HAMBRICK
Coastal Carolina Athletic Director

On behalf of the coaches and the athletes of Coastal Carolina College I would like to thank you for your enthusiastic support of our teams in 1978. Most pleasing to me as Athletic Director is the response of the students towards the visiting teams and the officials. Following the game against the College of Charleston, one of the officials commented on the good sportsman-like responses from the spectators. This is credit to the college when our fans behave in this manner. It makes not only the team a winner but also you the student a winner.

I would especially like to encourage you to attend our women’s events as our ladies have worked hard and are deserving of your support. As any athlete will confess, it is difficult to get “up” for a game when there is so little support from the student body.

The so-called non-spectator sports, tennis and golf, look forward to successful seasons. The members of the ladies have worked hard and are exercising. The athlete will confess, it is difficult to get “up” for a game when there is so little support from the student body.

Chants win 76-75

The Coastal Carolina Chanticleers snatched victory from the jaws of defeat literally when Dwight Lighty made a twenty-foot jump shot to bring the score to 76-75 with 2 seconds left on the clock against College of Charleston.

"That last basket sure did look sweet," Coach Russ Bergman said. "I think that shot will give Dwight a lot of confidence. It will give our team a lot of confidence. We played poorly and still won, but we won't be able to do that many times against the College of Charleston."

The score at the half was 44-32 providing Coastal with a comfortable 12-point lead, but the Chants were not so comfortable with their lead cut down to one at 69-68 with 3:03 left in the game. With 1:55 remaining, Charlie Wade's basket put the Charleston team back on top for the first time since early in the first half at 72-71.

A technical foul was called on the Cougar bench following Wade's basket and Coastal's Steve Hardy went to the line to tie the game at 72-72. Chant's center Merle Britt then rolled one in from close range to put Coastal back up by two at 74-72 with 1:31 to go.

Pat Harrington of Charleston tied the game at 74-74 with time running out and Craig Gentry of Charleston stole the ball from the Chants. Gentry was fouled and went to the line to only make one of his two shots with the score 74-75. The rebound was then grabbed by David Thorbs who was making his debut to the Coastal Carolina fans. The Chants had some trouble finding the right shot until Dwight Lighty polished off his evening with a twenty-foot jump shot to bring his total to 14 points for the game.

Leading the Chants in scoring for the game was David Thorbs with 22 points. Steve Hardy, and Forrest Junek also added 10 points each. Leading scorer for the Charleston team was Casey Stiglbauer who had 20 points.

Coastal Carolina Chants were tied in the Dunkel ratings with the College of Charleston for third place in the district. They are now fifth. The victory leaves the Chants with an overall record of 5-6 and a district record of 3-2.
Horry history series

to start Jan. 23

Managed by the Coastal Carolina College History Department and the college’s Department of Continuing Education, the special history project is free and open to anyone.

Directors of the program are Professor John Vrooman and Professor Bruno Gujer, history instructor at the college.

The series of presentations will be held in room 203-204 of the academic building each Tuesday from 7-9 p.m., beginning Jan. 23.

Citizens interested in the evening lectures may attend one or all lectures. The Independent Republic History Project is sponsored by Coastal Carolina College, the Horry County Historical Society, the Horry County History Preservation Commission, the South Carolina Commission for the Humanities, and the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Anyone seeking more information on the Horry County history project may contact Professors Vrooman or Gujer in the history department at Coastal. telephone 347-3161 or 448-8419.

Coastal takes military program

Effective with the spring of 1970 semester, Coastal Carolina College assumes sponsorship of the military campus at the Myrtle Beach Air Force Base.

In accordance with Carolina Plan II adopted Dec. 8 by the USC Board of Trustees, one of the changes taking place is “transfer of some of the programs of the military campus from centralized direction from Columbia to sponsorship by other campuses in the system.”

Persons interested in this program should contact Richard Cornfoot at the air base or the admissions office at Coastal.

Coastal receives national recognition

Coastal Carolina College received national recognition in December at the National Council of States on In-service on education held in San Francisco.

Three representatives of Coastal presented the Coastal educational program approach to a national consortium of state departments of education, universities and colleges and federally subsidized programs that are trying to find better ways of training education personnel. Over 40 states were represented at the meeting according to Dr. Jim Rex chairman of the education department.

In addition to Rex, Dr. Gil Hunt, director of placement, Mack Sarris, director of media services took part in Coastal’s presentation. They were assisted by Ellison Smith, Conway high school principal, who discussed the interaction between Coastal and the public schools.

Coastal’s teacher education program is only one of its type in the nation. The presentation was so well received that Coastal has had numerous requests for printed information and for slide presentations.

In addition, Coastal representatives have been invited to the University of Washington to give a workshop to their staff.

Bad check passers face stiff penalties

Bad checks are a problem at Coastal Carolina according to Mark Myers, director of admissions. The penalties for bad checks passing are stiff.

“During the recent Computer Assisted Registration (CAR) the Coastal business office received 10 bad checks from students,” said Dr. Donald Thompson, dean of administration.

Students who pass bad checks face dismissal from the university system and possible legal action.

USC has a system wide bad check policy presently in effect. “Coastal follows the policy and students need to know the penalties,” Thompson said.

The policy reads:

REGISTRATION FEE CHECKS

Students who pay their registration fees by check and the check is returned by the bank for any reason, will be required to pay a late registration fee of $5 per day beginning with the first day of classes [for a maximum of $30] plus a $5 returned check fine. If the student fails to pay the total amount of the check plus the additional fines [by cash or cashier’s check] within ten days, the student’s registration will be automatically cancelled.

A student whose registration has been cancelled will be required to pay a reinstatement fee of $40 in order to re-enter the university in the next registration period and also must provide proof of cash to pay all fees.

A student whose prior registration has been cancelled and who wishes to be reinstated within the same semester must receive approval from the office of the dean of academic affairs and pay an additional $40 reinstatement fee.

Parking continues to be a problem. It has now reached the critical stage. Staff Photo by Gary James.

Students have diversified vacation experiences

By ANITA SAXENA
Staff Writer

As soon as exams were over, a two week vacation began. Everyone spent their holidays in different ways. A lot of students went on a ski trip to the North Carolina Mountains and had a New Year’s Eve party in Charlotte. A random selection of students were chosen from different classes and asked how they spent their Christmas holidays. Below are some responses:

Beverly Pitman, a junior: Went home to Kock Hill. “My husband is in the Air Force and he stationed here in Myrtle Beach. This is the reason I’m going to school here.”

Blair Myers, a freshman: Went to New York for his brother’s wedding and to New Jersey for a New Year’s Eve party.

Mike Walsh, a freshman: Worked at Hallmark in Georgetown.

Sherri Roberts, a sophomore: Moved from Olanta and transferred to Coastal from Francis Marion College. “I know I’m going to like it here.”

Deanne Wiggins, a freshman: Went home to Florida. “While I was there, I went to concerts and saw Atlanta Rhythm Section, Guess Who, Boston, and Sammie Hagar. They were all great.”

Jeri Jackson, a junior: “I mostly rested after exams were over and went to a New Year’s Eve party.”

Jeanna Long, a freshman: Worked at Burger King in Myrtle Beach and visited her grandparents in Columbia.

Lance Frost, a transfer student: Framed a house in Surfside. He also visited family members in New York City and saw a Broadway show.

Harold Cushman, a freshman: Worked. “I am an assistant manager at Tramp Disco. We were quite busy.”

Many students enjoyed a busy holiday season. Everyone should now be ready to settle down to a semester of study.

Puskar is ready to help students

Editor’s Note: Ms. Puskar has consented to do a regular column for our readers. We hope you will take advantage of the services offered by her office.

The pressures of school, a job, family, and money can often become burdens that lead to problems. Coastal’s Counseling Center is designed to provide a place where students can discuss personal, social, and emotional concerns on a one-to-one basis with a qualified counselor.

The primary focus of counseling is to meet the expressed needs of individual students. Counseling is an understanding, accepting and confidential relationship with a goal of assisting students to gain a better understanding of self and of self with others. We attempt to deal with typical concerns experienced by college students, some of which may be loneliness, test anxiety, parental problems, study skills, depression, marital/family problems, interpersonal conflicts, lack of self-confidence, or overweight.

If one of these, or any other, concerns is bothering you, or does bother you in the future, the Counseling Center is prepared and willing to be of assistance. The office is located on the second floor of the College Center, Room 206 and can serve students on a walk-in or an appointment basis from 9 to 5 daily. Appointments can be made by calling extension 202 or through the office.

Several resume writing workshops for job-seeking juniors and seniors will also be conducted this semester. Any organization interested in having Mrs. Murphy and myself present this 1½ hour workshop can contact us to arrange a time and place.

Throughout the spring semester the counseling office will be offering several study skills seminars. These sessions are open to any student and you may choose to attend the session or sessions of that best meet your particular needs. All meetings will be held in the College Center, room 201. Eligibility to become full members.

The officers and board of directors of Coastal Carolina Alumni Association are busy these days formulating plans for Homecoming Day to be Feb. 17.

Homecoming Day holds a particular significance for Coastal alumni. In addition to participating in a number of activities with the college community, association members on that date will elect a new slate of officers for the coming year. December graduates are urged to complete their applications for membership so that they will be eligible to vote in this important election. Officers chosen Feb. 17 will serve until Homecoming Day 1980.

Other events planned for Homecoming Day include a tour of new campus facilities for alumni and visitors. A great deal of progress has been made on campus recently, and the college today reflects great credit on the group of public-spirited local citizens who instigated establishment of an institution of higher education 25 years ago. Everyone in the community - students, alumni, and citizens in general - should take pride in this monument to local initiative and dedication to social and economic progress.

The Alumni Association will also sponsor a hospitality room before the first basketball game which is scheduled to begin at 5:30 p.m. and during the interval prior to the second game at 8 p.m.

Later in the evening a reception and an alumni dance will be held at a location on campus to be announced at a later date.

December graduates are reminded of their eligibility to become full members of the Coastal Carolina Alumni Association. It is an affiliation you can be proud of for years to come.

"NAMES IN SOUTH CAROLINA" IS AVAILABLE

Dutch Fork, Cottontown, Saluda, and Stocking Creek may not be familiar names to tourists passing through South Carolina, but to natives and history buffs of the Palmetto State their origin has special meaning.

"Names in South Carolina," an annual publication of the Department of English at USC, highlights the historical significance of hundreds of names in South Carolina. The 40-page winter 1978 issue covers historic names in Chapin, Spartanburg County, churches in Fairfield County, springs in Greenville, roads in Lexington, and queries by readers. It is possibly the most detailed serial available on historic data in South Carolina.

How the town of Swansea got its name, the location of ferries, names of towns now extinct, special families, battles and roads, are included in the exhaustive survey of little-known South Carolina facts.

For information, contact Dr. Claude H. Neuffer, editor, "Names in South Carolina," Department of English, USC-Columbia.

NEA fellowships for creative writers

The deadline for mailing applications for the National Endowment for the Arts' fifth bi-annual Fellowships for Creative Writers is Feb. 15, 1979 for projects to begin after Dec. 15, 1979.

Professional writers who have published novels, essays, volumes of poetry of short stories, essays or poems which have appeared in literary magazines are eligible to apply. Playwrights and scriptwriters are also eligible and, if unpublished, may submit a letter of recommendation from a professional theatre or media person. Applicants who have received Creative Writing Fellowships since January 1, 1975 and those submitting collaborative efforts will be ineligible.

Endowment officials expect to award approximately 200 fellowships of $10,000 each.

The purpose of the fellowships is to offer assistance to professional writers of exceptional talent to enable them to set aside time for writing, research or travel and generally to advance their careers.

For specific guidelines and application forms individuals should contact the Literature Program, National Endowment for the Arts, 2401 E. St. NW, Washington, DC 20506 or call (202) 634-6044.
