Parking is a concern

By ROBERT MASSRE
Business Manager

Coastal students may be able to park at the College Center very soon according to Dr. Robert Squarriglia, dean of student development. Coastal’s present parking dilemma was the main topic at the Jan. 19 meeting of SGA. Because of wet weather, the new parking lot by the College Center has remained unpaved. According to Phillip Massey, assistant to the dean of administration, the base of this lot consists of equinox which cannot be paved when wet because it tends to hold water.

Massey said that lot was cleared by the county last summer.

Smith Grading and Paving of Turboville are contracted to pave both the parking lot and the two access roads to this lot. A third road, located behind the Kimbel Library, is a state project. Bids have not been taken for this road.

Massey told SGA members he believed the lot could have been paved around Thanksgiving before the rainy season began. Now it is estimated that the lot may not be finished until July.

Dr. Robert Squarriglia proposed that if the rain continues he sees no reason not to open the parking lot in its present form. This will ease the parking problem on campus, but ruin the already smooth and leveled lot. Squarriglia also said that he will discuss with the contractors the need of opening the parking lot. This would necessitate relieving the area at their expense, before paving it. Massey reports that Smith Paving has already received $20,000 of the $45,000 total cost for his “concrete and gutter work” on the parking lot.

If any funds are available, an expansion of 50-70 spaces in the College Center parking lot will follow. The college officials feel that a series of small parking lots throughout the campus is more visually desirable than one large lot situated on College Road in front of the school.

Construction in front of the school is expected to pose a new problem later this term. SGA members expressed concern that once the work of expanding College Road to four lanes begins, new problems of parking will be created. This road is used by students to get to Coastal, and by local traffic as a thoroughfare between S.C. 50 and S.C. 544. Cars line the road because of the lack of convenient spaces on campus.

Coastal needs an archive

Recently, we worked on an assignment for The Sun News about Coastal Carolina's past, present and future. This project pointed up the great need for an archive at Coastal.

We interviewed over 200 people and checked records in putting together a comprehensive and accurate story. At times, we had to leave certain points out of the story because dates and names were not always consistent.

We feel that the dedicated individuals who have had a role in Coastal's birth and subsequent life should be remembered. But, we feel they should be remembered not only in the hearts of those who witnessed their undertaking but they should be remembered in an archive.

We would like to see an archive at Coastal (perhaps located in the Kimbel Library). The location isn't as important as the need for an archive.

Housed in the archive would be an accurate and comprehensive history of Coastal. The names of the Horry County Higher Education Commission, the Coastal Education Foundation, Inc., and faculty and staff and student leaders should be duly recorded for each year since 1954.

Copies of commencement programs, yearbooks and other important momentos from each year should be preserved. Photographs should be stored in the archive.

We don't know who would have to make a decision to use space for an archive but we hope those in position to implement this will do so soon.

We found quite a few people interested in Coastal starting an archive and we hope they will come forward at this time and make their wishes known.

We have received quite a few complimentary letters and phone calls from people about our articles in The Sun News. We appreciate their calls and letters. We put a great deal into the articles and we hope the public gained a better awareness of Coastal's community involvement.

We met some really fantastic people while gathering our material. We know that the past 25 years are just the beginning of the Coastal story.

We have gathered enough material to start a book. We will be contacting more people and will be going back to some of our earlier contacts in writing our book about Coastal.

If you have something you think should be included in the book, please contact us. We want it to be accurate and comprehensive in every way.

And if you would like to see an archive started, let your wishes be known. In the meantime, be searching your basement, attic or garage for items that need to be DONATED to the archive.

Let's work together in recording the past for those who will come after us. It will be part of the great legacy of the Coastal Carolina people.

SGA President wants answers

To the Editor:

On behalf of Student Government, let me commend you on an excellent editorial in your Jan. 17 issue. SGA wants to ask several questions. Is the contract for one parking lot free of any penalties regarding projected date deadlines? If not, were there any weather stipulations in the contract? Repeatedly sophomore representative Foster Fowler and I have met with administrators and asked these questions. Unfortunately, we still don't know the specific answers. The Administration owes an explanation IN DETAIL to the student body. We challenge them to respond. SGA hates to pressure anyone. But...as the old saying goes, "If you can't stand the heat - get out of the kitchen!"

Bellydancing survives through the ages

By CYNTHIA FINLEY
Staff Writer

A six weeks mini course is being presented on bellydancing. The Charleston and the Fox trot have faded into oblivion when a new generation made up a different dance era.

Bellydancing dating back to Biblical times however, has managed to survive through the Waltz and the Mashed Potatoe to become one of the oldest dances of today.

Bellydancing has no age limits and people from all walks of life have taken the course. Among them are professors, nurses, housewives, and students. Bellydancing benefits all parts of the body without all the sore muscles and stiffness received from other forms of exercise.

In the bellydancing course students that it isn’t just dancing that is involved. This course offers a sense of self-awareness which can leave them in a tranquil and relaxed mood besides giving them good body control motion.

Bellydancing doesn’t involve just one type of movement. There are many different styles. Among them are Arabic, Turkish, Greek, Beledi, and Dinosaur. The most popular styles in this area are the Middle Eastern and Cabaret style.

The Bellydancing class members wear a simple outfit of leotards and a belt with bells. The bells help the Bellydancer to keep with the rhythm. The bells may be found at Cusous Cargo. In making their costume the only part that is time consuming are the sequins and beads but the end result makes it all worth while according to Ms. Pat Taylor, instructor.

This course will give the student a taste of the exotic while toning down muscles that haven’t been conditioned in years. The result will be a well conditioned body and the satisfaction of learning a dance that has managed to outlast the test of time.

Enrollment up nine percent

Enrollment at Coastal Carolina College is up nine percent over last spring.

According to Marsh Myers, director of admissions, the total for this semester is 1,653 undergraduate students.

By grades, forty-three percent of the student body are freshmen, twenty-two percent are sophomores, eighteen percent are juniors and seniors comprise the remaining seventeen percent.

Female students comprise forty-six percent and males fifty-four percent. Caucasians make up the majority of the student body with eighty-four percent, nine percent are black and seven percent are other races.

Myers estimated that eleven percent are from out-of-state with the bulk of the student body commuting from surrounding counties.

Future of auditorium promising

By ROBERT MASSE
Business Manager

The future of the Wheelwright Auditorium looks extremely promising according to Col. William Basley, Coastal director of development. Basley says over $10,000 has been donated toward the auditorium.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Kimbel of Murrells Inlet donated $1,000 along with a challenge to the community to raise the remaining funds.

The cost is estimated between $1 million and $2 million to build this superstructure. Furniture and other accessories are not included in this amount. The cost does include architecture, labor, materials, and land clearing. Because of the swampy area around the college, grading and clearing alone will cost about $25,000. Another $50,000 of this estimate is allocated for the purchase of a chandelier to hang in the auditorium foyer.

The next step in raising money is an appeal to the surrounding communities. Ten thousand brochures will be circulated about the county advertising the project and need for funds.

The Wheelwright Auditorium will serve the community population as well as the student body. Although, Coastal will get priority, events are geared towards all the people of Horry County, will be encouraged. Basley pointed out that it will because of the generosity of the citizens of this county that the auditorium would ever exist.

Basley also stated that although the sketch of the Wheelwright Auditorium originally drawn and printed in The Sun News has been changed. The new building will be outstanding. Basley says that it will be different from anything in this area and it will rival any existing auditoriums in the state. He feels it will be a credit to Coastal and the surrounding counties.

Equality still needed

By RAYMOND COOK
Sports Editor

Women's basketball has progressed considerably since the days of the half-court, guard-forward concept. In fact, Iowa, a hot-bed of high school girl's basketball, is the only state that retains the half-court style.

Most people feel that the change to a full-court, standard game, has strengthened the women's game. Indeed, the change was inevitable. The women require a game that showcases their all-around athletic ability.

The recent formation of the Women's Professional Basketball League should definitely bolster the quality of high school and college basketball for women. It will take time, but once women realize that there is a future in basketball, they've finished college, the professionals can then be selective. As it stands now, the professionals are forced to take the average athlete, those which have the best players along with the stars.

With a short but rich recruiting systems, Wayland Baptist, Delta State, Old Dominion and UCLA have consistently good teams. Tennessee, with a 6-3 center, is also a good team this year.

Most people feel that the quality high school players. Then, too, these schools probably utilize fully the scholarship funds specifically allocated to the women's programs.

Does the present quality of women's basketball merit extensive recruiting? I think it does. In our area basketball fans can see Pearl Moore of Francis Marion College, Nessie Harris of College of Charleston, and Coastal Carolina's Joan Cribb perform on the hardwood.

There are also talented high school performers in the area. Coach Susan Skipper of Aynor High School has a senior center, Sherry Barnhill, who averages 20-plus rebounds a game. She lacks a strong 15 ft. jump shot, yet most of her points come from offensive rebounds, Barnhill will attend Lander College in the fall.

It's too bad that Coastal hasn't recruited Barnhill. She'd be a great asset to the Lady Chants. Coastal must increase its attraction to female athletes in the county. And, to do this, the women's athletic program must have equal standing with the men's program.

Dennis Casey's two free throws with nine seconds left lifted the Coastal Carolina Chanticleers to an 82-80 come-from-behind victory over the Newberry Indians in a District 26 basketball game Jan. 22.

The Chants, who trailed by 11 points with less than nine minutes remaining, outscored the Indians by an 18-2 margin to take a 79-74 lead with 3:19 left.

Dwight Lighty scored six points in a row and David Thorbs hit a jumper before Lighty came back with another basket to cut the Indians' lead to 74-73. Casey, held to two points in the first half, then sank a pair of free throws to give the Chants a 75-74 lead. Merle Brit added two more free throws to a one-on-one situation and Steve Hardy followed with two more free throws to put the Chants in front, 79-74.

Bruce Thompson sank a short jumper and Virgil Wallace connected on a pair of free throws with 1:55 remaining to make it 79-78. Coastal, before Rosey Bankhead made it 80-78 with a free throw.

Wallace tied the game at 80-all with :42 remaining on a corner shot and Casey was fouled with nine seconds remaining and sank the two shots to give the Chants their eighth victory to even their season's record at 8-8 overall and 5-5 in District play.

Thorbs, who fouled out with 5:11 remaining, led the Chants in scoring with 21 points. Hardy added 18 and Lighty scored 14.

The Indians were led by Dwaine Nelson who also scored 21. Thompson and Mike Fulford each added 12 and Weston, who fouled out with 7:51 left, scored 15.

Coastal surfers win honors

By CHERRI DIX
Feature Editor

Mark McDandell, Wade Smith, and Wick Westmoreland. Do these names sound familiar? They should. These 3 athletes show outstanding ability in the field of surfing.

Recently attending the NSSA (National Scholastics Surfing Association), McDandell and Smith were named to the national teams and McDandell was named national champion.

Westmoreland is the head organizer of the surfers at Coastal. His teammates praised him for all the effort he had put into surfing. They really look up to him and his organizational ability. All three men live in Myrtle Beach. McDandell and Smith have lived here all their lives; Westmoreland for about 13 years.

Westmoreland is a senior and majoring in marine science, and McDandell and Smith are both sophomores majoring in business management.

McDandell, other than surfing, enjoys water skiing. He described such injuries as ice cream headaches and hearing loss because of the cold water. Despite the temperature, the surfers practice all year long. "Not as much in the winter," said McDandell, "but we get out there when the waves are good... even in winter."

Smith admitted to being an all around athlete before singling out surfing. He said of Myrtle Beach Surfers, "Of the 12 chosen on the national team of the NSSA, 2 were from Myrtle Beach. Mark and me. Myrtle Beach has the best surfers on the Eastern Coast." When asked about the problem with sharks while surfing, Smith said that there was a bigger chance of being hit by a car than being bothered by a shark.

Westmoreland also agreed that sharks were no threat to the area surfers. He stated the possibility of other surfers from other areas of the Eastern Coast being troubled by sharks, but said Myrtle Beach surfers weren't threatened.

Westmoreland, outside of surfing, enjoys boxing. He learns more toward the organizational aspect of surfing rather than the competitive, and will be involved in organizing the NSSA at Cape Hatteras in August.

"The NSSA is trying to get surfing an Olympic sport and hopefully surfing will be in the 1984 Summer Olympics," said Westmoreland.

Lady Chants lose to Francis Marion

It was a case of too much Pearl Moore for the Coastal Carolina Lady Chants Jan. 12 as the All-American Francis Marion College player scored 35 points to lead her team to a whopping 112-59 romp over the Lady Chants in the first game of a double-header in Kimbel Gymnasium.

Moore not only scored 35 points but also grabbed a dozen rebounds, dished out at least 14 assists and played superb defensive ball.

Francis Marion hit on 25 of 40 shots from the floor in the first half when they soared to an insurmountable 59-33 halftime lead and then coasted the second half as they won their fourth game in eight starts.

The loss was the seventh against three wins for the Lady Chants.

A dozen Francis Marion players scored at least two points and the winners played-all 14 players in each half.

Cherry Montgomery added 15 points in the winning cause and Sherrie Nelson added 12 and Malenya Young and Martha Williamson each scored 13 points.

Joan Cribb scored 13 of her Coastal high 15 points in the first half. Karen Swogger added 11 points and Melinda Stephes scored 12 for the Lady Chants.

The Patriots outrebounded the Lady Chants by a 26-7 margin in the first half and finished the game with 46 rebounds to the losers' 20.

Chants win two games

By ROBERT REEYES
Staff Writer

The Coastal Carolina Chanticleers passed the halfway mark of the season with big wins over Morris College by a 79-65 margin Jan. 18 and Limestone College Jan. 20 with a 96-86 score.

The victories came after two straight losses when the Chants dropped 113-95 decision to the Francis Marion Patriots on Jan. 11 and lost a 82-81 heartbreaker on the 13th to USC-Aiken.

The Morris win was the first road game on the opposing teams home court that the Coastal team has won. The Chants defeated Newberry in an away game earlier this year but that game was on a neutral court.

Freshman player James Brown was the big gun for the Chants in the game against Limestone as he came off the bench to score 19 points and pull down eight rebounds. Forrest Junck added fourteen points in that game and had eleven rebounds.

The Chants' remaining ten games in the month of February are all District 6 games.

Coastal's first home game of the month will be a rematch with the USC-Aiken on Feb. 3 in the Kimbel Gymnasium at 8 p.m. The Chants will then meet Morris on the 5th and Francis Marion on the 7th at home before hitting the road to face Erskine College on Feb. 10.

Counselor’s Corner

By ELIZABETH K. PUSKAR

Daring anxiety, or the nervous feeling you get just before meeting someone for the first time, appears to be a common concern among college students. Acquiring effective social skills is certainly a life-long task and one most people strive to achieve. It is difficult for some people to meet others and to establish close personal relationships, often because they are either shy and lack self-confidence or both.

Problems in meeting others often come as a result of self-defeating, negative thoughts and worries in social situations. These thoughts and fears are shared by many people and can be eliminated by reversing the process and training yourself to think more positively. An example of these common thoughts in social situations might include “Wouldn’t it be terrible if we started talking and I had nothing to say?” or “What if she doesn’t like me?” or “I don’t belong here with these people—they all know each other.” These self-statements serve no useful purpose and tend to increase our anxiety when initiating conversations or meeting new people.

You may be asking yourself what you can do to overcome this common fear and negative self-talk. THERE IS HOPE and here are some suggestions that may help you to encounter your next anxiety-arousing social situation.

Returning to our first example: “Wouldn’t it be terrible if we started talking and I had nothing to say?” could be changed to a conversation with yourself that may sound something like this: “Now wait a minute. What am I getting myself so uptight for? Let me check his nonverbal cues. He certainly looks approachable. If he doesn’t remember me, I’ll just remind him who I am and take it from there. If he’s not interested in me, that’s his problem. No reason why I should stay here worrying about it. The worst that can happen is that he won’t respond, and what would really be so terrible about that?”

Like most other skills, learning to begin and end a conversation with someone new requires practice and repetition. If you are aware that you are uptight in a group or social situation you may want to begin to practice reversing your negative thoughts into positive statements like the one presented here. Begin with a smile and a hello to three people daily to whom you ordinarily don’t speak. Realize that many people share your concern or fear of talking to others and start by taking an “I can do it” attitude.

Lastly, practice is essential to success so the more often you engage in positive self-talk the more successful and practiced you will become in meeting and talking to others. You may someday suddenly realize that social encounters can be fun because you have become more relaxed and easier to make new friends. Good Luck!

European history seminar has a few vacancies

Learning on a vacation

European history seminar still has a few vacancies for their May 6-June 1 trip.

The Coastal Carolina Department is sponsoring a 25-day seminar which will tour seven European countries. The tour will include historic and cultural sites in the Netherlands, West Germany, Switzerland, Austria, Italy, France and England.

The seminar offers three credit hours and is divided into four areas of study: the Renaissance, the Reformation, the French Revolution and Napoleon, and World War II.

Among the highlights of the trip will be visits to Versailles, St. Peter’s in Rome, Napoleon’s Tomb, Michelangelo’s David, Doge’s Palace, Anne Frank’s house, the beaches of Normandy, Churchill’s birthplace, the leaning Tower of Pisa, Mount Platinus, Oxford University, Uffizi Gallery and Windsor Castle.

The seminar is designed for students who wish to combine study and travel with knowledgeable historians and travellers who seek an economical European tour featuring background and explanation of historic and cultural sites.

Persons or groups interested in participating in the seven country seminar should contact the History Department at Coastal Carolina College by Feb. 15. A $100 deposit is required. Total is $1635.

To sign up contact Dr. Joseph Wightman or Professor Jim Branham at Coastal. Wightman or Branham will lead the tour group.

Additional cities on the tour include Amsterdam, Berlin, Heidelberg, Zurich, Lucerne, Innsbruck, Bremen Pass.

The cities of Venice, Florence, Rome, Avignon, Paris, Southampton and London are the final portion of the seminar.

Weather study leads to the altar

Coastal Carolina students who met and fell in love were featured in an article by Mrs. Ethelyn MISSROOM in the Georgetown Times Jan. 18.

Gerry and Robert O’Sullivan, sons of Mr. and Mrs. J.V. O’Sullivan of Murrells Inlet met Gall and Pansy Morse, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Morse because of a weather study class Gerry and Gall took at Coastal last year.

The four have planned a double wedding for May 6 at Belin United Methodist Church in Murrells Inlet.

Art lecture planned

Jack Morris, director of The Greenville County Museum of Art will lecture Feb. 8 at 8 p.m. in the Coastal Carolina College Fine Arts Building. Morris’s lecture is co-sponsored by the Waccamaw Arts and Crafts Guild of Myrtle Beach and the Coastal Carolina art department.

The lecture is free and open to the public.

Murphy’s Messages

BY MARY KAY MURPHY

Murphy’s Messages. eh? And Gary, we do need to talk about the above picture - is the camera out of focus or am I naturally blurry at 8 a.m.? Oh well, c’est la vie!

So much for such a positive response to my first column. I’ve had lots of inquiries into possible job openings and career opportunities.

Dr. Elizabeth Puskar and I will be offering resume and interview workshops for each department at various time slots, so you rising and graduating seniors had better stand up and take notice of the following dates, times and room numbers: Wed., Jan. 31, Science resume writing* 12 noon, College Center Rm. 201 Thurs., Feb. 1 Humanities resume writing* 12:30 p.m. College Center Rm. 201 Tues. *Interviewing workshops will be offered during the latter part of Feb. and early March. Specific dates to be announced.

Please make time for these workshops in your busy schedule!

JOB PLACEMENT

Good news on the home front! We now have a placement bulletin board located at the top of the spiral staircase in the College Center.

On it you will find part-time, full-time and summer/seasonal job openings as well as career opportunities.

AVX, a Myrtle Beach ceramics industry, is planning to move to a 10 hour work shift. Primarily production work, the three day shifts would be Fri., Sat., and Sun. or Sat., Sun. and Mon. This means that you could continue school but still work 30 hours a week. Hours would be 7 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. or 8 a.m. to 7 a.m. on what shift you prefer to work. Starting pay would be $3.15 an hour and within 3 months $4 or more. The only catch is YOU AND WHETHER YOU EXPRESS INTEREST IN THIS OPPORTUNITY.

Please contact Ms. Pat Singleton or myself as soon as possible, so we can notify AVX.

Thanks!

Smith Grading and Paving has been awarded the widening contract with an August 1979 deadline. Clearing for the new lanes on College Road will take place around the beginning of March. This will cause a slowing of traffic and a loss of many available spaces where the students now park. Messey hopes the College Center parking lot can compensate for the loss by both having enough spaces for the regular students that park there, and absorbing the overflow from College Road.

Complaints about students, faculty and staff parking in the spaces for handicapped students, visitor’s parking and along University Drive in the Coastal Heights-Quail Creek neighbor- hood were discussed. Complaints have been received from residents of Quail Creek. The Coastal students, faculty and staff are urged not to park along College Road. This is considered a very hazardous location for both pedestrians and drivers.

Once the new parking lot is opened, parking violations are expected to be less frequent, at the same time easing the number of cars parked around College Road. In the meantime, a good alternate place, suggested by SGA members, are out by the baseball field and on the southside of the Williams-Brice Building.

Students to vote for film favorites in campus contest
College and university students across the country will, for the first time, have an opportunity to vote directly for their favorite screen performers and filmmakers in a new national poll known as “Student’s Choice Awards.”
Balloting will be in association with Focus ’79, a national competition sponsored by Dateline. Voting categories include Best Motion Picture, Best Performances by an Actor and Actress, and Best Director.
Deadline for receipt of ballot is Feb. 15. Mail ballots to: Student’s Choice Awards, 1140 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y., 10036.
A random drawing will be held among schools submitting 100 or more ballots, with the winning college or university receiving a new pinball machine for installation in the campus student activities center.

Black History Week

Dr. Matthew Perry to speak Feb. 18

By MARY JEAN BAXLEY
Editor

Dr. Matthew Perry, federal judge of Washington, D.C. will be the guest speaker at the Myrtle Beach Convention Center Feb. 18 as part of Coastal Carolina College’s Afro-American Association’s celebration of Black History Week.
Dr. Perry will speak at 4 p.m. His topic is “Step up to leadership.”
The Afro-Am Association will present 10 leadership awards after Dr. Perry’s talk.
The week of Feb. 12-18 is being planned as Black History Week with work of black artists being featured.
Dr. Leo Twiggs of South Carolina State College and David Sanders of Sunter will display art work.
Art exhibits will be upstairs in the Kimbel Library and the lobby of the Fine Arts Building daily from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.
High school students from Horry, Georgetown, Marion and Williamsburg counties will be coming to Coastal during this week to observe the art exhibits.
Also, movies will be shown from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. in the lecture hall of the Fine Arts Building. According to McCray, these are movies of Black artists.
The Kimbel Library staff has compiled a list of books in the library by Black authors.
Coastal’s Afro-Am has over 60 members who are working on making this a successful week for the entire community according to McCray.
The students, faculty, and staff are invited to all activities during the week. All activities are open to the public.
