Governor appoints Ingle to SREB

Governor David M. Beasley has appointed Ronald R. Ingle, president of Coastal Carolina University, to serve on the Southern Regional Education Board (SREB) — the nation's first interstate compact for the advancement of education. Created in 1948 at the request of Southern governors, SREB helps educational and governmental leaders work cooperatively to advance education and improve the social and economic life of the region.

Other South Carolina Board members include Governor David M. Beasley, State Senator Nikki B. Setzler of West Columbia, J. Floyd Hall of Greenville, and State Representative Ronald P. Townsend of Anderson. Ingle's term will expire June 2000.

As president of Coastal Carolina University, Ingle has been a strong voice for restructuring higher education in South Carolina. He is a member of the South Carolina Council on Educational Collaboration. In

Coastal's Wheelwright Series begins season

The Coastal Carolina University 1996-1997 Wheelwright Series presents 10 events including theatrical productions, dance, jazz, popular music and more.

William Shakespeare's comedy, A Midsummer Night's Dream, features a large cast of lovers, fairies, royals and rustics in an enchanted dreamscape of the human imagination. As part of VIVACE, the Horry Cultural Arts Council's "Celebration of the Arts," this cooperative production joins the theatrical talents of the Coastal's University Theater, the First Presbyterian Church Players, the Lighthouse Theater Company, Myrtle Beach First Baptist Church Music and Drama Ministry, Seniors for the Performing Arts, Strand Ballet Theatre, Theatre of the Republic and Tricycle Productions. The production will be presented at Broadway at the Beach at 4 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 19 and Sunday, Oct. 20; and Saturday, Oct. 26 and Sunday, Oct. 27. Tickets are $8 and are available at all area Belk stores. Campus performances will take place at 3 p.m. Friday, Oct. 11, Saturday, Oct. 12, and Sunday, Oct. 13 at Spadoni Park.

Shakespeare's brilliant portrait of villainy, Richard III, comes to Wheelwright in a professional production by the Columbia-based South Carolina Shakespeare Company on Friday, Nov. 1 at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $10, $5 for students.

Winner of the New York Drama Critics Circle Award for best new foreign play of 1993, Frank McGuinness' Someone Who'll Watch Over Me brings to the Wheelwright stage a riveting story of three terrorist hostages. Performances for this Coastal Carolina University Theater production are scheduled for Friday, Nov. 15 and Saturday, Nov. 16 at 7:30 p.m., and Sunday, Nov. 17 at 3 p.m. Tickets are $8, $5 for students.

Theaterworks, a premier New York-based touring company, will present Johanna Spyri's beloved story Heidi in an exuberant musical adaptation scheduled for Thursday, Nov. 21 at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $10, $5 for students; adults accompanied by a child are admitted free.

For the fourth year, George McCorkle, a former

Graduate School and Career Information Fair

The university will host a Graduate School and Career Information Fair on Wednesday, Oct. 9, from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. in the Wall Building. Coastal students and alumni are encouraged to attend. The event is free.

"Any former or current students who are searching for jobs or contemplating going back to school can get valuable information at the Graduate School and Career Information Fair," said Mollie Fout, coordinator of Coastal's Career Management Services. "Representatives 1995, Ingle's colleagues from the state's 33 institutions elected him chair of the South Carolina Council of College and University Presidents.

From April 1992 to June 1993, Ingle was Interim Chancellor of Coastal Carolina University. In 1988, he was named Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs. At USC Columbia, Ingle was Associate Dean of the College of Applied and Professional Sciences. He has served on accreditation teams for the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, and he has held administrative and faculty positions at Kennesaw State University, South Georgia College and Ohio State University.

Ingle received a bachelor's degree from Wofford College and a master's degree in higher education administration from Florida State University. After a tour of active duty as a U.S. Army officer, he earned a doctorate from Ohio State University. ♦

Marshall Tucker Band member, will swap songs and stories with a some of his accomplished colleagues in an informal jam session called Songwriters in the Round. This Wheelwright tradition will take place Thursday, January 23 at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $15, $5 for students.

Regarded as one of the finest brass players in jazz, virtuoso muted cornetist Warren Vache and The Warren Vache Trio, with Joe Puma on guitar and Murray Wall on bass, bring the cool riffs of mainstream jazz to the Wheelwright stage Saturday, January 25 at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $15, $5 for students.

Sheryl Ward and Friends showcases the splendid vocal talents of local singers, led by Ward, in a concert of songs including blues, gospel, jazz, pop standards and spirituals Saturday, Feb. 1 at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $10, $5 for students.

A musical version of Studs Terkel's bestselling book, Working extols in song and dance working men and women whose soaring spirits and energy give integrity to their everyday jobs. Performances of this Coastal Carolina University Theater production are scheduled for Friday, Feb. 28 and Saturday, March 1 at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday, March 2 at 3 p.m. Tickets are $8, $5 for students.

Known for its extraordinary expansions of the art of dance, The Liz Lerman Dance Exchange brings its intriguing and brilliant artistry that combines movement with storytelling to Wheelwright on Sunday, April 13 at 3 p.m. Tickets are $15, $5 for students.

With caustic wit and wildly improbable situations, Joe Orton's contemporary British comedy, What the Butler Saw, produces hilarious disappearances, disguises and discoveries. Performances of this Coastal Carolina University Theater production are scheduled for Friday, April 25 and Saturday, April 26 at 7:30 p.m., and Sunday, April 27 at 3 p.m. Tickets are $8, $5 for students.

World record holder to be featured in track and field

Coastal Carolina will host an elite thrower's competition on Friday, Oct. 4 at 3 p.m. at the university's new track and field facility. The competition will include three events: the hammer throw, discus and the shot put. The competition is free and open to the public.

The competition features Iuori (Yuri) Syedhk, the current world record holder (284 feet) in the men's hammer throw. Syedhk also is the Olympic Gold Medalist of the 1976 and 1980 Olympic Games and the 1983 and 1987 World Track and Field Hammer Throw Champion. He is from Moscow, and is in the process of emigrating to the United States.

Also scheduled to attend is Peter Farmer, a two-time Olympian and Commonwealth Games Champion in the hammer throw representing Australia, and Andy Bloom, the 1996 NCAA Division I Champion in the shot put and the discus. In addition, other national champions and record holders will be participating.

The competition will be under the direction of Coastal's men's and women's track and field coach Jim Koster and the Mjolnir Thrower's Club.

For more information, contact Koster at extension 2907. ♦

Marine Science professor has book published

Ecology of Marine Bivalves: An Ecosystem Approach by Richard Dame is being published this month by CRC Press of Boca Raton, Fla., a subsidiary of the Times-Mirror Co.

The book presents the first synthesis of marine bivalve (animals with a two valved shell, such as clams) ecology from an ecosystem or holistic view. The text explores the potential use of bivalves as indicators and monitors of ecosystem health and describes experiments Dame has conducted in this important, emerging field of study. Ecology of Marine Bivalves is designed as a reference for bivalve researchers, coastal and fisheries resource managers, and students.

Dame joined the Coastal faculty in 1971. He earned a Ph.D. in marine science from the University of South Carolina in 1971, a master's degree in zoology and ecology from the University of North Carolina in 1967 and a bachelor's degree in biology from the College of Charleston in 1964. He was South Carolina's first Palmetto Professor from 1992 to 1996 and served as the Ecosystem Studies program director at the National Science Foundation from 1992 to 1994.

Parent education and support program offered at Coastal

H.O.M.E. (Health, Opportunity, Meaning and Empowerment through Education) in the Center is a new parent education and support program offered through Coastal's Center for Education and Community in the School of Education.

"The underlying philosophy of H.O.M.E. in the Center is that a community is only as strong as its families," said Jim R. Rogers, professional parent educator in the Center for Education and Community and coordinator of the new program. "Parenting is the most important job anyone will ever have, and yet we rarely get any kind of training for it. H.O.M.E. in the Center is designed to function as a hub for parenting information, training, referrals, resources and other initiatives to support parents and families in the workplace, schools and the community for Horry County and the surrounding region."

Programs will be offered on campus for faculty, staff and students. Programs and services include workshops for adults, teens, grandparents and other specialized groups and will focus on self-esteem building,

Annual Conference for Working Women scheduled

Coastal Carolina University will host the American Management Association's 5th Annual Conference for Working Women on Wednesday, Oct. 23 from 12:45 to 3:45 p.m. in ADM 003. Registration begins at 12:30 p.m.

The live videoconference (via satellite) on succeeding in the workplace consists of lectures, role playing, and a telephone question and answer session with a panel of experts. Local discussions led by Rachael Broadhurst, a local real estate business owner, will follow the videoconference.

The registration fee, which includes registration materials, is $49; $15 for faculty and staff.

The program considers the challenges of all working women, including working mothers and single professionals. Key topics include the growing challenge of maintaining balance, opening communication channels between manager and employee, harnessing technology to link your multiple roles, easing the strain through empowerment and many facets of parenting. "We see these programs as a powerful form of primary prevention," said Sally Z. Hare, director of the Center for Education and Community. "So much of what has been available in parent counseling has been crisis intervention, of trying to apply 'bandaids' to an epidemic."

Rogers has led training workshops for Horry County Schools home/school coordinators, as well as parent classes for schools, churches and the Department of Social Services. He also envisions workshops for businesses and corporations interested in developing parent-friendly workplaces. Future plans for H.O.M.E. in the Center include private conferencing and special classes at sites throughout the community, as well as a resource library, a ParentLine and fax, a newsletter, ongoing Parent Clubs and a volunteer program.

Parents who would like more information on available programs should contact Jim R. Rogers at Coastal's Center for Education and Community at extension 2675. ♦

Two workshops to help you write proposals that win

The Office of the Provost and the Office of Grants and Sponsored Research are co-sponsoring two free workshops to assist faculty and staff in writing proposals that win. Both workshops will be conducted by teacher, writer, nationally-known research administrator and "Ask Ann Granters" columnist Robert A. Lucas, Ph.D. Seating is limited to 30 participants and will be available on a first-come, first-serve basis.

The workshops include Proposal Writing Workshop to be held Wednesday, Oct. 23 from 1 to 5 p.m. in SNGL 212 and Scholarly Writing Workshop to be held Thursday, Oct. 24 from 8:15 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. in ADM 003.

Robert A. Lucas is the director of the Institute for Scholarly Productivity in San Luis Obispo, Calif. He received a bachelor's degree in English from John Carroll University and his master's and doctorate degrees in medieval English literature from the University of Illinois. He taught English language and literature, specializing in Old English, at the University of Michigan before becoming a program representative in its Division of Research Development and Administration. He was director of Research Development at California Polytechnic State University, San Luis Obispo, for 10 years, and associate vice president for graduate studies, research and faculty development for seven years before establishing his independent institute.

Lucas is the author of more than 60 papers, chapters, and articles on the subject of proposal writing and grants administration, and has served on the editorial boards of Grants Magazine and Research Management Review. He has been a member of the executive committee and chair of the publications committee of the National Council of University Research Administrators (NCURA). From 1981 through 1989 he wrote a column for Grants Magazine and is nationally-known for his tongue-in-cheek column "Ask Ann Granters," published regularly in the NCURA Newsletter. Lucas has been involved in the development of proposals for millions of dollars in grants for research and faculty development activities. He has presented workshops on proposal writing and scholarly and professional writing at more than 100 universities, ranging from the University of Hawaii to the University of Puerto Rico. He also is in demand as a speaker on the value of humor in reducing stress in the workplace.

His book, The Grants World Inside Out, was published in 1992 by the University of Illinois Press.

For more information or to register for either of the workshops, contact Jeanette Berry at extension 2918 or by e-mail at "jberry@coastal.edu". ♦
