Dyer to deliver Distinguished Teacher-Scholar lecture

Edgar Dyer, professor of political science at Coastal, will speak in Coastal's Distinguished Teacher-Scholar Lecturer Series on Thursday, Oct. 17 at 7:30 p.m. in the Wall School of Business Auditorium. The lecture, "Insuring Domestic Tranquility and Securing the Blessings of Liberty in 21st Century America," is free and the public is invited to attend.

Dyer is the first recipient of the Distinguished Teacher-Scholar Lecturer Award, sponsored by Horry Telephone Cooperative. The award will be given annually to a Coastal faculty member who has outstanding abilities as a teacher, scholar and communicator. "The purpose of this award is to recognize individuals who embody the university's teacher-scholar ideal, which is to search for and transmit knowledge through critical inquiry and teaching," said John Idoux, provost and vice president for academic affairs.

The recipient of this annual award will deliver a lecture in the fall semester on an original topic drawn from his or her area of scholarly expertise. The award recipient is chosen by a committee which comprises faculty, a student representative and a member of the university's support staff.

Dyer joined the Coastal faculty in 1976. He is a graduate of Guilford College and has a master's degree in public administration and a juris doctorate, both from the University of South Carolina. He has previously been named Coastal's Distinguished Teacher of the Year and also has received the Student Development Division Award. Dyer's writings cover a broad range of legal and technical issues relating to state and local government and land use law. Since Coastal became an independent institution in 1993, Dyer has served as the university's counsel. His latest scholarly work, an article on academic freedom and textbook selection, recently appeared in the Education Law Quarterly, a national law journal. This past summer, Dyer was selected from a national pool of applicants to attend a professional development institute at Harvard University.

Family Weekend Oct. 18-20

Coastal will host its Fifth Annual Family Weekend from Friday, Oct. 18 to Sunday, Oct. 20. Faculty and staff are encouraged to attend.

Participating family members will have the opportunity to meet university administrators, faculty and staff at a President's Reception, attend a VIVACE performance of Shakespeare's A Midsummer Night's Dream at Broadway at the Beach, tour Waites Island, view a university art exhibit, play in a golf tournament, and participate in a 5K beach walk. Other events scheduled during the weekend include a soccer match, a men's and women's cross country meet at Midway Par III Golf Course, and the annual Rocktoberfest concert on the Coastal campus.

"By participating in family weekend, parents and other members of our students' families have an opportunity to visit with students, catch a glimpse of student life and to develop closer ties with the university," said Sue Colvard, Coastal's director of volunteer programs and coordinator of the event.

For more information, call Colvard at extension 2022. ♦

Coastal art students exhibit work

The works of Rebekah Brink of Myrtle Beach and Paul Goncalves of Holtsville, N.Y., senior art majors at Coastal, will be exhibited in a senior art show from Tuesday, Oct. 15 to Sunday, Oct. 20 at the art gallery in the Admissions Building. An opening reception for the exhibit will be held Tuesday, Oct. 15 from 2 to 4 p.m. The exhibit and the reception are free and the public is invited to attend.

Brink is a photographer and Goncalves is a graphic designer.

Coastal Invitational lets anglers learn and compete

It's the best fishing time of the year on the South Carolina coast, and that means another running of the world's oldest intercollegiate salt water fishing match and seminar, the Coastal Carolina Invitational. October 25 will mark the 23rd time college anglers will learn and compete in deep-sea bottom and game fishing. Sponsored by Coastal Carolina University, the Coastal Carolina Invitational has been introducing college students to South Carolina salt water angling since 1974.

Along with the two original competitors, Francis Marion and Coastal Carolina universities, Clemson and the University of South Carolina Medical School will compete this year. All the teams fish from the same headboat, the New Captain, out of Captain Dick's Marina in Murrells Inlet. While some of the student competitors bottom fish for black sea bass, grouper, triggerfish, and amberjack, others drift live baits for king mackerel and cobia. Last year some two dozen kings were caught just 16 miles offshore.

Overnight accommodations for the student anglers are provided by Springmaid Beach Resort. Prizes are donated by tackle manufacturers, with the boat chartered for the cost of fuel and crew only. An awards dinner featuring just-caught king mackerel steaks is held at Sunnyside Restaurant in Murrells Inlet.

The Coastal Carolina Invitational is the successor to the intercollegiate tuna matches formerly held in Nova Scotia. In 1974, Donald Millus, professor of English at Coastal, wanted to take a team from South Carolina to the Nova Scotia event. "I started our own tournament, invited Western Ontario and Yale, and got an invitation to the Canadian tournament for Coastal the next year," said Millus. He has organized and directed the Coastal Carolina event ever since, besides "coaching" the Coastal teams.

The Coastal Carolina Invitational has also been cut back in recent years from three days to one. "Getting up at 5 a.m. two days in a row isn't fun anymore," said Donald Kelly of Francis Marion College, the winningest coach in the history of the Coastal Carolina Invitational.

Of all intercollegiate sports competitions in the United States, this is the only one that allows men and women to compete on equal terms, according to Millus. Charterboat Captain Skip Opalko and veteran angler and professional golfer Richard Lee will be the assistant coaches for Coastal. Richard Moore, assistant vice president of grants and sponsored research at Coastal, will be the chief judge, as he has been every year since 1974.

This year's seminar will focus on live-bait fishing for salt water gamefish. "It's been a poor year for king mackerel fishing inshore and offshore," said Millus, "but by the end of the month our luck could change. College fishing coaches, like college football coaches, are always hopeful. Besides, they never get fired for losing." ♦
