Coastal takes a quantum leap into cyberspace
Everywhere you look lately, it seems that the campus is full of hubs. The mounds of optium dirt and the roaring backhoes may annoy us now, but come January, when the work is scheduled to be completed, Coastal will have made a quantum leap into cyberspace.

More than 6,000 feet of fiber optic cable is being laid underground in the presence of the university's computer system, according to Marvin Marozas, director of Information Technology Services (ITS).

"We're replacing the old arcnet, or coax-based network, with fiber optics," he said. "By January, Coastal's students, faculty and staff will be able to access all the various computer systems on campus — in the labs, the library and — through a single network," he said.

When the switch "from arcnet to ethernet" is completed, Marozas says that campus network speed is expected to fourfold increase in access and speed. The new residence halls also have been wired for the new system so that students must have direct access to labs and databases in the library. Through a joint program with Horry Telephone Cooperative, attractive dial-up rates providing access to the Internet and Coastal's academic network will be available to off campus students.

"Another exciting aspect of the upgrade is that not only will it improve links around the campus, but it provides the infrastructure for linkages opportunities to many local networks around the county, such as the Horry County School District, and it connects us to the rest of the vast Internet world," said Marozas.

CCU Theater to present Someone Who'll Watch Over Me
Coastal Carolina University's Theater will present Irish playwright Frank McGuinness' Someone Who'll Watch Over Me, a drama about three political series of verbal games to keep despair at bay.

Director Sandi Shackelford, associate professor of theater, says that the play was based in part on the experiences of former Associated Press Bureau Chief Terry Anderson, who was held hostage for seven years in Lebanon. "To prepare for directing the play, I read Anderson's book, The Dem of Lions," said Shackelford. "There are certainly many similarities between events in the play and Anderson's experiences." Anderson spoke on the Coastal campus as part of the Kimbel Distinguished Lecturer Series in February 1996.

Someone Who'll Watch Over Me received the New York Drama Critics Circle Award for best new foreign play of 1993.

Katsioloudes named honors program director
Marcos Katsioloudes has been named the director of the University Honors Program, effective spring semester 1997.

Coastal's Honors Program seeks to bring together academically gifted students from all disciplines and develop their individual and collective potential by offering a challenging, adventurous curriculum. Honors students must maintain a 3.0 grade point average and enroll in honors courses each semester to maintain their eligibility to continue in the program. Katsioloudes succeeds Sara Sanders, associate professor of English, who served as director for the past five years of the program's 10-year history.

Katsioloudes, associate professor of management in the Wall School of Business, joined the Coastal faculty in 1990. He earned a Ph.D. in management in 1990 from the Wharton School of Business at the University of Pennsylvania, and master's degrees from the University of Bridgeport and the University of Pennsylvania in 1978 and 1980, respectively. He was a Fulbright Honor Exchange Scholar to the United States from 1977 to 1980. He is the author of Strategic Planning for the Non-Profit Sector: Theory and Case, published by McGraw-Hill. Katsioloudes received the Coastal Education Foundation Distinguished Teacher Award in 1996.

Hot off the press: Coastal's new magazine
The fall 1996 edition of the Coastal Carolina University Magazine is now available. Because of a programming error which has been corrected, some faculty and staff may have received a copy of the magazine at home and another copy at work. Faculty and staff who received two copies are encouraged to share their extra copy with a friend.

If you did not receive a copy of the magazine, contact the Office of Institutional Advancement at extension 2007.

The Division of Extended Learning and Public Service has announced the Adult Learning in America, a live video teleconference designed to answer key questions about how colleges and universities can best serve the needs of adult learners. The program will be held live via satellite Wednesday, Nov. 13 from 1:45 to 4:35 p.m. in ADM 003. The teleconference is free for Coastal faculty and staff; however, advance reservations are required.

During the broadcast, education officials and practitioners will discuss the findings of a recent study by the College Board and how the new information can be used to help plan, market and deliver programs for adults, who now make up nearly 50 percent of all college enrollments. In addition to the panel, adult students from two- and four-year colleges will discuss what they see as the key issues in providing student-centered instructional services in today's highly competitive marketplace. The broadcast will be followed by local discussion led by representatives from Coastal Carolina University and Horry-Georgetown Technical College.

Program topics include: planning effectively for the needs of adult students; developing alternative delivery options and distance education programs to meet those needs; the benefits of offering client- centered services to attract adult students; developing marketing strategies that will result in increased enrollments of adults; incorporating new technologies into the recruitment and teaching of adult students; and how to what extent institutions should change to accommodate adults; and more.

For more information, contact Audrey Garland at extension 2666.
Singleton House event marks Thanksgiving celebration

A celebration of Thanksgiving will be held Wednesday, Nov. 13 for members of Singleton House. The doors will open at 4:30 p.m. and food will be served at approximately 5:30 p.m. Faculty and staff who have not joined Singleton House are invited to become members. Dues are $20 per semester or $30 for the academic year. Dues are payable at the door or may be paid to any member of the Singleton House Committee.

For more information, contact Joan Piroch at extension 2271 or Colleen Lohr at extension 2204.

Annual Fund still accepting donations

The Campus Annual Fund goal of $27,000 is within reach. As of Thursday, Nov. 7, gifts and pledges totaling $24,571 have been received from 182 members of the faculty and staff. With your help, we can go above and beyond last year.

If you haven’t made a donation or pledge, please consider doing so now … It’s not too late and the university needs your support.

School of Education presents Distinguished Senior Award

Mary Clark, a senior early childhood education major from Sumter, S.C., received the School of Education and Graduate Studies, the award will be presented on an annual basis.

University hosts exhibit of paintings by Angiola Churchill

The Department of Art will host the first South Carolina exhibit of the work of acclaimed visual artist Angiola Churchill from Nov. 12 to Dec. 6 in the Gallery of the Admissions Building. An opening reception will be held Tuesday, Nov. 12 from 2 to 4 p.m. Churchill also will deliver a public lecture Wednesday, Nov. 13 at 7:30 p.m. in the Little Theater of the Admissions Building. The exhibit, the lecture and the reception are free and open to the public.

An internationally recognized artist, Churchill is known for her large-scale abstract paintings which employ a complex visual vocabulary. She maintains a studio in New York City and in Venice, Italy, and travels frequently to locations in the United States and Europe for exhibitions, lectures and special projects. Churchill also enjoys an active career as an art educator, serving as professor emerita of art history at New York University. She is co-founder and co-director of the International Center for Advanced Studies in Art (ICASA), which organizes art conferences and symposia in New York, Europe and South America. Churchill developed the NYU study abroad program in Venice and has served as its director for many years.

"This exhibition brings a world-class artist and educator to the Coastal Carolina community," said Cheryl Green, gallery coordinator. "In addition to attending the public lecture, students and members of the community have the opportunity to experience a wonderful collection of abstract paintings by a distinguished visual artist," she said.

Cossack leader to speak at Coastal

Nicholas Feodoroff, a 94-year-old veteran of the 1917 Russian Revolution and president of the Russian Don Cossacks in exile, will speak as part of the 1996 Fall Forum on Monday, Nov. 18 at 7 p.m. in the Wall Auditorium. Historian and Russia scholar John Yntur Will introduce Feodoroff with a brief talk on the origin of the Russian Cossacks.

A native of the Don River Valley region of Russia, Feodoroff served with the White Russian Army against the Bolsheviks from 1917 to 1920, taking part in some of the most momentous events of the 20th century before he was forced into exile in Turkey, the Greek Isles and Bulgaria. He emigrated to the United States in 1929, learned English and earned bachelor’s and master’s degrees in engineering from Columbia University in New York City by 1950. He taught at Manhattan College for most of his career and earned a Ph.D. in engineering from Sequoia University in California in 1956. Feodoroff Lives in Sumter, S.C.

The subject of Feodoroff’s lecture will be "The Role of the Cossacks in the Russian Revolution of 1918-1920." A reception will follow the presentation.

The Fall Forum is jointly sponsored by Coastal’s Department of Politics and Geography and the International Club of Myrtle Beach. The lecture and the reception are free and open to the public. For more information, contact Jim Henderson at extension 2036.

S.T.A.R. to sponsor Red Cross blood drive

S.T.A.R., Students Taking Active Responsibility, will sponsor a blood drive at Coastal on Wednesday, Nov. 20 from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Student Center T.V. Room. The blood drive is open to faculty, staff, students and the general public.

The American Red Cross (ARC) is sponsoring the 1996-1997 Blood Bowl with competition between Coastal’s Chanticleers and the Buccaneers of Charleston Southern University. The Chanticleers are currently leading the Buccaneers in the competition. The ARC Blood Bowl trophy will be awarded to the university that donates the most blood during the academic year.

Although the Buccaneers have retained the trophy for the past two years, the Chanticleers have almost doubled Charleston Southern’s donations to date this year. Coastal Carolina has donated 46 pints; Charleston Southern has donated 25 pints. Both universities are conducting blood drives in November.

For information regarding donor eligibility, contact Coastal’s Red Cross at (843) 900-772-3504. For information about Coastal’s Blood Drive, contact Coastal’s S.T.A.R. coordinator Jason Humphreys at extension 2357 or Debbie Conner at extension 2591.

Supper planned as Hispanic-American welcome

Coastal’s Center for Education and Community will co-sponsor a covered-dish supper for the Hispanic-American community in Horry County on Sunday, Nov. 17 at 5 p.m. at Homewood Baptist Church, located at 1290 Hwy. 319 in Conway. The event, also sponsored by the Community Coalition of Horry County (COCH) and Homewood Baptist Church, is free and open to the public.

"The purpose of this event is to welcome Hispanic-American families who live here and who have often experienced racism and xenophobia instead of a feeling of community," said Sally Hare, director of the center. COCH member Richard Ramkisson estimates that more than 1,000 Hispanic-American live in Horry County.

Tom Jones presented a paper, "Music and Morality in the Plays of Terrence McNally," at the 1996 annual conference of the Popular Culture/american culture Association of the South, held in Savannah, Ga. The paper described the use of music as a metaphor in the plays of McNally such as "Frankie and Johnny in the Claire De Lune, The Lisbon Traviata, Lorraine Valenti". Companionship, and McNally's current Broadway play The Master Class. Jones also presented a paper, "Paul Rhymer's VBC and SADIE America's Home Folks," and chaired a panel at the Mid Atlantic Popular Culture conference held in Philadelphia, Penn. He served as chair of the Radio section of the conference.

Joyce Parker presented "Enhancing the Meaning of..." Life Through Music, Poetry and Mediation" for the Conway Ivy Garden Club and the Jordan Nursing Center on Oct. 15. Her presentation included group singing, individual poetry writing and readings. Parker's English 484 class participated in Visitee Too at Broadway on the Beach on Oct. 25. These future elementary teachers dressed as characters from well-known children's books and rhymes and presented skits for children and tourists.

Paul Peterson's book review of Dr. Laura Schlessinger's, How Could You Do That! The Abolition of Character, Courage and Conscience was published in the November issue of Crisis magazine.

Women's Issues Group meetings

Bluegrass comes to Wall Auditorium
Coastal Carolina University's Waccamaw Center for Cultural and Historical Studies will co-sponsor monthly concerts of the Rivertown Bluegrass Society of Conway, S.C., a nonprofit organization devoted to the preservation of bluegrass music, on the second Saturday of each month in the Wall Auditorium. The next concert is scheduled for Saturday, Dec. 14 at 6 p.m. Admission is $5 for adults; $3 for Coastal students and faculty; children age 12 and under are admitted free.

"The Waccamaw Center for Cultural and Historical Studies is pleased to co-sponsor the monthly concerts of the Rivertown Bluegrass Society," said Charles Joyce, Curroths Distinguished Professor of Southern History and Culture and director of the center. "It is the center's mission to help support and further understanding of the various aspects of Southern culture, and bluegrass music is one of the most exciting cultural forms to come out of the South."

Our sponsorship also serves as a form of outreach from the university to bluegrass fans and their families, to make them feel welcome on our campus.

"The concert usually features four bluegrass bands," said Jennings Chestnut of Conway, one of the founding members of the society. "Each band plays for approximately one hour. " According to Chestnut, one of the unique features of the event is that bluegrass enthusiasts often arrive as early as noon to engage in informal jam sessions outside the hall. "This gives fans of the music as well as amateur pickers an opportunity the enjoy the music for free," he said.

The Horry Cultural Arts Council also is a co-sponsor of the concerts. Memberships in the Rivertown Bluegrass Society are available for $20 per year for individuals; $30 per year for families. Concert admission for students and faculty is $2 per person.
