The 2004 honorees were Jessica Falca, one of the most outstanding softball student-athletes in Coastal's history; Angela Murphy, who dominated the Big South Conference Women's Track and Cross Country during her career; Guy Norcott, a three-time All Big South soccer player; and Edgar Dyer, (honorary), vice president for university relations and the Chanticleers' first women's golf coach.

Falca, who played softball at Coastal from 1996 to 1999, left her mark on the NCAA Division I record book. She finished her career with the all-time national stolen base record (196 steals) and career national rankings of 7th in hits, 15th in batting average, and 12th in runs scored. A three-time All Big South Conference honoree, the outfielder/shortstop earned the 1996 Big

CCU chosen to evaluate WebCT learning system

Coastal has been chosen by WebCT, a provider of online learning systems for higher education, to partner with three other institutions to test and evaluate a new version of a Web-based course management system.

Coastal, along with Brown University, Grant MacEwan College and the Los Angeles County Office of Education, will install WebCT's new Campus Edition 6 upgrade.

Each institution will evaluate its experiences with the program in order to help the company refine and improve the new system.

Based in Lynnfield, Mass., WebCT provides e-learning environments for thousands of colleges and universities around the world.

Theater students mount 'Streetcar'

Tennessee Williams' classic play, "A Streetcar Named Desire," is being presented by Coastal's Department of Performing Arts from Wednesday, Nov. 10 through Sunday, Nov. 14 in the Edwards Black Box Theater.

Performances are at 7:30 nightly Wednesday through Saturday, with a matinee at 3 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 14. General admission is $10, students 18 and under $5. Free with CCU ID.

"Streetcar" is the story of Blanche DuBois, a fragile and neurotic woman on a desperate prowl for a place in the world to call her own. She takes refuge in New Orleans' French Quarter with her sister Stella and brother-in-law, the violent Stanley Kowalski, as rumors of her scandalous past begin to catch up with her.

Directed by Tom Jones, the 17-member cast includes, in the main roles, Margaret Graham as Blanche DuBois, Michael Bratsafolis as Stanley, Daniel Morgan as Mitch and Kristine Schuck as Stella. Jeanell Jones is Eunice, Matt Hayward is Steve and Julian Colletta plays Pablo. Others are Jeravon Hatchett, Ann Winnard, Steven Memoli, Jessica Leach, Robbie Hambright and Kristen Skarzynski.

and helped win 57 victories during that time. He was named the 1990 Big South Conference Player of the Year and led the Chants to the N C A A Tournament's Sweet Sixteen in 1992. Norcott earned All South Region honors in 1990 and was a three-time All-Big South selection.

County Higher Education Commission, and is the university's counsel. Dyer was also the public address announcer for women's basketball games and has actively supported many athletic projects including the establishment of intercollegiate football.

'Hail Mary' catch wins College Fishing Tournament

By Don Millus

The last catch of the day won the 31st annual college saltwater fishing tournament for host school Coastal Carolina last weekend. Chanticleer football team wide receiver Daryl Davis battled a 30-pound amberjack to the New Inlet Princess to give the Coastal saltwater fishing team a narrow victory over Francis Marion University, 90 to 85.

The University of South Carolina, the defending champion, saw its string of four consecutive national fishing titles broken, but finished a strong third with 73 points over Clemson, which had to fish a man short, finishing with 38 points.

Student anglers boated 23 king mackerel, plus a 28.3-pound cobia by Francis Marion's Ben Ward, which looked like the catch of the day until Davis' last-minute "Hail Mary." Davis was a last-minute addition to the Chanticleer roster.

Mike Erwin of USC had the largest group of the day, a 12.4-pound gag. Biggest king by a student angler was a 13.8 pounder caught on a drift line by Erwin, while his teammate Wes Johnson had the largest blackfish, a two-pounder.

Traditionally, the top prizes in the tournament go to the largest king and blackfish, but all fish except sharks count toward the championship. Another tradition of the Coastal Carolina Invitational is that all the participating teams have their schools' names engraved on the permanent trophy donated by the South Carolina Department of Wildlife and Natural Resources, but the winning team gets an asterisk next to its name.

Major sponsor was the Coastal Carolina Educational Foundation, with prizes donated by Conway National Bank, Bass Pro Shops, and numerous tackle manufacturers. The Hot Fish Club of Murrells Inlet prepares the blackfish fillets fried for the first course of the awards banquet with grilled and broiled king mackerel steaks for the main course following the long day of fishing.

This year's Invitational was fished in memory of CCU archeologist Jim Michie, who passed away this year. Michie gaffed two world record tiger sharks from a Myrtle Beach pier in one weekend in June of 1964. The second of those fish, a 1,780-pound tiger shark, still stands as a world all-tackle record.
