Coastal students receive NASA scholarships

Four Coastal Carolina University science students have received NASA scholarships from the South Carolina Space Grant Consortium for the 1997-1998 academic year. The $1,500 scholarships were awarded in a statewide competition based on the students' academic and research record as well as faculty recommendations. The following students were awarded scholarships:

Lori Amanson, a senior biology major of Conway who also is earning minor degrees in chemistry and marine science, is planning to attend medical school after graduation.

Michael Andrew, a senior marine science major of Madison, Ind., is completing his senior thesis on the effects of acid rain at sites in Horry and Georgetown counties.

Brett DiFrischia, a senior marine science and mathematics major of Portersville, Pa., is completing his senior thesis on the impact of the Gulf Stream on hurricane dynamics.

Madria Nester, a senior marine science major of Falls Mills, Va., is completing her senior thesis on remote sensing analysis. ♦

Students complete College Jumpstart and receive scholarships

Twenty-seven Georgetown County high school graduates recently completed Coastal Carolina University's 1997 College Jumpstart program. College Jumpstart, a six-week program designed to assist high school graduates with academic problem areas, was held during the summer at Coastal's Georgetown campus.

Participating students took English 100 and Math 100, two non-credit college courses, and College Survival, a non-college credit course designed to assist students with goal setting, test taking, time management and study skills. Nineteen of the participating students also took advantage of part-time work opportunities provided by the Georgetown County School System and Georgetown County Council.

According to organizers of the program, each of the students who participated in College Jumpstart has been accepted by a college or university and has received funds to assist with college-related expenses ranging from $100 to $650. This assistance was made available through funds provided by Georgetown County Council through its Coastal Carolina University-Georgetown Campus Advisory Committee and a grant from the Waccamaw Private Industry Council. A total of $12,440 in scholarships and stipends was awarded.

In addition to Coastal Carolina University, colleges or universities which have accepted Jumpstart students include Claflin College, Fayetteville State, Florence-Darlington Tech, Francis Marion University, Horry-Georgetown Technical College, Livingstone College, Morris College, South Carolina State University and Voorhees College.

Students who completed the College Jumpstart program are: Darlene Brown, Shantel Brown, Latasha Cribb, Ken Cumbee, Wendy Cuttino, Latonya Davis, Michele DeLeone, J.J. Enoch, Wendy Evans, Sydney Fraser, Raydeenya Gamble, Bryant Geathers, Melody Gibson, Lakenia Graham, Kaliska Green, Tabitha Hicks, Quianna Jackson, Tonya Lawrence, Devin Nesmith, Toneca Palmer, Wendy Roberts, Doug Torres, Sarah Wade, Joey Washington, Kendra Wilson, Kasha Woodberry and Leslie York.

College Jumpstart is funded by a grant from the Waccamaw Private Industry Council, donations from Georgetown Steel and Santee Cooper and an allocation from Georgetown County Council to the Coastal Carolina University-Georgetown Campus Advisory Committee. For more information, contact Sarah Magann at Coastal's Georgetown campus, 546-7523. ♦

"The British Monarchy After Diana" seminar

Richard Oliver Collin will lead a Lunch and Learn seminar on the topic "Did the Princess Kill the King: The British Monarchy After Diana" on Monday, Oct. 6 at noon in the Admissions Building 003. The cost of the seminar, which includes lunch, is $12 for members of Coastal's Lifelong Learning Society and $15 for non-members.

"Since World War I, the number of ruling monarchies in Europe has remained fixed at about 25," said Collin, who earned a doctorate in politics from Oxford University in 1983. "While having kings and queens is an old-fashioned political idea, European monarchies survived and even prospered until Lady Diana Spencer collided with Britain's House of Windsor. Now, for the first time, Britons are thinking seriously about creating new political structures which will eliminate the political role played by England's royal family."

Collin will explore what the British monarchy does for Britain, how Diana's life and death have threatened that political structure, and what options remain for a damaged Prince Charles under the provisions of British constitutional law.

Collin joined the Coastal faculty in 1984. He is the author of three political novels — Imbroglia (1981), Contessa (1994) and The Man With Many Names (1995), — as well other many other books and articles on international affairs. Collin is the Kearns Palmetto Professor of Humanities at Coastal and will lead a group of Coastal students to Oxford University in July 1998 for a three-week course on British politics, history and society.

The deadline to register is Monday, Sept. 29. To register, contact Judy Fontana at extension 2673 or e-mail: fontana@coastal.edu.

Students see results of Technology Fee

Coastal students are already seeing results of the $35 student technology fee which went into effect this fall. Computer labs all over campus are being upgraded, new computers are being added and lab hours are being extended as part of an on-going effort to provide students with state-of-the-art technological services. The estimated revenue from the student technology fee for the 1997-1998 academic year is $230,000, according to Sally Horner, Coastal's executive vice president.

"Today's students are experienced computer users and they have high expectations for computer services at Coastal," said John Idoux, Coastal's provost and vice president of Academic Affairs. "Until this year, funds for the university's computer technology systems have come from the normal operational budget. But because technology is so expensive, Coastal's administration and board of trustees realized it would be impossible to provide the high level of service which is essential in a university environment today without introducing a technology fee exclusively for student-related computer services." All other universities in South Carolina charge a student technology fee.

In the Computer Assisted Instruction (CAI) Lab in the Prince Building, computer hardware and software are being upgraded, with 10 additional computer stations to be added. The computer stations in the Wall Building's Computer Labs are currently being upgraded from 54 to 80 workstations, and additional printers are being installed. Additional student lab assistants have been hired for both the Wall and CAI labs, and operational hours have been extended in both facilities. The new hours are:

Prince Building Computer Lab:	Monday to Thursday: 8:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday: 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Sunday: 3 to 10 p.m.
Wall Building Computer Lab:	Monday to Thursday: 7:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday: 7:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday: 2 to 6 p.m. Sunday: 2 to 10 p.m.

Four multimedia computers will be added to the Foreign Language Lab in the Prince Building, and computers will be added to both the Writing Lab in the Prince Building and the Math Lab in the Wall Building. Funds from the student technology fee also will be used to add additional services to the online system in Kimbel Library and to establish a state-of-the-art graphic design computer lab for art studio majors.

On schedule for the spring 1998 semester, a new technology-based system designed to assist students with career development and job opportunities will be established in the Office of Student Employment and Career Management Services. ♦

CINO fundraising continues

It's not too late to join CINO Club, Coastal's athletics booster club. The CINO Club is conducting its annual campaign for scholarship money to support student-athletes for the 1997-1998 academic year. All donations will be used for scholarships for Coastal's student athletes.

More than 40 volunteers are helping the club reach its goal of $80,000 and a membership of more than 300. A campus team is soliciting faculty and staff participation.

Emergency call boxes installed on campus

The university has installed six emergency call boxes as part of the general overall safety efforts on the campus.

When an emergency situation arises, a caller seeking assistance pushes the call button on the front of the call box which activates the radio system. A distress signal is sent to the security dispatcher on campus. The dispatcher will then find out what is needed and direct the appropriate number of a law enforcement units to respond to the call box location.

The emergency call boxes are orange with blue lights on top and are located in the following areas:

- Between the Student Center and the Science Building
- Near the Science Building (Wall Building side)
- Residence Hall M (cafeteria area);
- Track and Field facility (near front gate);
- Between the Softball Field and Soccer Stadium (rear of parking lot); and
- near the Physical Education Center (at College Boulevard/entrance to Residence Halls G and H).

Students, faculty and staff should familiarize themselves with the call box locations in case of an emergency.

For more information, contact the Office of Law Enforcement and Safety at extension 2177. ♦

Sculpture exhibit

An exhibit of sculpture by Linda Williams McCune, an award-winning South Carolina artist, will be on display at Coastal's art gallery in the Admissions Building from Tuesday, Oct. 7 to Friday, Oct. 31. An opening reception for the exhibit will be held Tuesday, Oct. 7 from 2 to 4 p.m. The exhibit and the reception are free and open to the public. The gallery is open weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The exhibit will include a variety of sculptural works which McCune titles "Sculptural Obsessions." Works in the series honor the artist's family members and "serve as a repository for personal experience," according to McCune. "Community traditions and a rural background play a crucial role in my decision to focus upon a special Southern geography," she said. "This environment gave me self-will, a sense of place, a legacy . . . and a wealth of allegorical, metaphorical and symbolic material." Although they reflect a local environment, McCune's works transcend the limitations of regional art. "I wish to create a well-understood emotional language rather than one solely concerned with Southern narrative tradition or rural technologies."

McCune earned a master's degree in fine art from the University of South Carolina in 1982. Her work has been exhibited in more than 80 group and one-person shows throughout the Southeast and in New York and Arizona. McCune is professor of art at Greenville Technical College, and she has published several books, articles and critical reviews on art. She also designs sets for theatrical productions and industrial shows. McCune lives in Greer, S.C.

For more information about the exhibit, contact Cheryl Green, Coastal's gallery coordinator, at extension 2700. ♦

COASTAL CAROLINA PEOPLE

Karen Carpenter was the guest speaker at the fall meeting of the South Carolina Mortgage Lenders Association held in Myrtle Beach. Her presentation, "School and Community Interactions," utilized Whittemore Park Middle School's Service Learning video "Pivotal Pathways to Professionalism: School and Community Partnerships." The video was created by Carpenter and Ron Spute's seventh-grade careers class students. The video portrays various aspects of the South Carolina School-To-Work Transition Act of 1994. Carpenter encouraged the Mortgage Lenders Association to expand school and business interaction program designed for graduating senior high students to include middle school participation beginning at the seventh-grade level.

John Idoux was selected to serve on the Committee of Visitors for the National Science Foundation's Division of Undergraduate Education. The committee conducts an audit of grants awarded by the division during the most recent three-year fiscal period and makes recommendations on the operation of the programs.
