Coastal to participate in nursing program with MUSC and FMU

A cooperative arrangement has been approved allowing qualified Coastal Carolina University students to participate in a nursing baccalaureate degree program in collaboration with the Medical University of South Carolina (MUSC) and Francis Marion University. The program will be implemented in the fall 1998 semester.

The four-year program allows students, after completing their core prerequisite coursework at Coastal, to transfer at the beginning of their junior year into MUSC's bachelor of science in nursing (BSN) program, which has a satellite location at Francis Marion University in Florence. The program is expected to enroll 20 students per year, and a minimum of five slots will be reserved for qualified Coastal Carolina University students.

All upper division coursework will be designed and taught by MUSC faculty at the Francis Marion University site, although selected courses may be transmitted via satellite to Coastal. Clinical experiences will be offered in Florence and at other hospitals and clinical agencies in the area.

"This expansion of the satellite BSN program will serve students in the Pee Dee and Grand Strand areas of South Carolina by providing students the opportunity to obtain the four-year degree without having to leave the area," said John Idoux, provost and vice president of Academic Affairs at Coastal. Many of the program graduates are expected to remain in the Pee Dee and Grand Strand regions, where population growth projections indicate the need for increased health services in the future, according to Idoux.

Coastal hosts demonstration of alcohol awareness program

Coastal Carolina University is the only demonstration site in South Carolina for "Alcohol 101," an interactive computer CD-ROM program designed to combat alcohol abuse on college and university campuses. More than 200 Coastal students are scheduled to experience the program during the testing phase, which continues through the end of the fall 1997 semester. The program will be released nationally in 1998.

Produced by the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign in partnership with The Century Council, Alcohol 101 teaches students to maintain personal control and safety by helping them to understand the consequences of harmful drinking, as well as alcohol's effects on judgement and physiology. The program also stresses that abstaining from drinking is an equally valid option.

Alcohol 101 focuses on three primary issues: (1) consequences of harmful drinking, including overdose and sexual abuse; (2) drunk driving; and (3) factors that affect blood alcohol concentration and the resulting effects on behavior. Program users are invited to a "virtual party" where they are faced with the situations and pressures typical of college social gatherings. Users witness the consequences of irresponsible decisions made by characters at the party and see alternative strategies based on responsible decision making.

"Coastal Carolina University's participation in this program is predicated on our commitment to university and student responsibility," said Coastal President Ron Ingle. "Because 51 percent of the undergraduate student population is 21 years old or above, the university has a responsibility to stress the fact that alcohol consumption by minors is not only against university policy, it is against the law. In light of the recent alcohol-related tragedies at other universities around the country, we must be vigilant in providing adequate educational opportunities with regard to responsible alcohol use as well as alcohol abuse. Alcohol 101 is an integral part of the university's alcohol abuse prevention program."

The program can be accessed from five IBM computers in the Computer Assisted Instruction (CAI) Lab in Coastal's Prince Building. Students in Coastal's Freshman Success Seminar, athletes, fraternities and sororities and other students will use the program during the semester, according to Vicki Gardner, Coastal's coordinator of the Alcohol and Drug Prevention Program.

Research surveys from Coastal students who experience Alcohol 101 will be used by the producers of the program to develop implementation strategies before its official release in 1998. ♦

Fishing film debuts during Coastal Carolina Invitational

It's the best fishing time of the year on the South Carolina coast, and that means another running of the world's oldest intercollegiate salt water fishing match and seminar, the Coastal Carolina Invitational. October 31 marks the 24th time college anglers learned and competed in deep-sea bottom and game fishing. The Coastal Carolina Invitational has been introducing college students to South Carolina salt water angling since 1974.

Teams from Canada and Japan have competed, along with Ivy League representatives and numerous schools from the southeast. Along with the two original competitors, Francis Marion and Coastal Carolina universities, Clemson and the University of South Carolina Medical School also competed this year.

A made-for-television film about the history of the Invitational had its world premiere as part of the seminar section of the Invitational.

The teams fished from the same headboat, the "New Captain Bill," out of Captain Dick's Marina in Murrells Inlet. While some of the student competitors bottom fish for black sea bass, grouper, triggerfish, and amberjack, others drifted live baits for king mackerel and cobia.

Prizes are donated by tackle manufacturers, with the boat chartered for the cost of fuel and crew only. An awards dinner was held at Sunnyside Restaurant in Murrells Inlet.

The Coastal Carolina Invitational is the successor to the intercollegiate tuna matches formerly held in Nova Scotia. In 1974, Donald Millus wanted to take a team from South Carolina to the Nova Scotia event. "I started our own tournament, invited Western Ontario and Yale, and got an invitation to the Canadian tournament for Coastal the next year," Millus recalls. He's been organizing and directing the Coastal Carolina event ever since, besides "coaching" the Coastal teams.

The Coastal Carolina Invitational has also been cut back in recent years from three days to one. "Getting up at five a.m. two days in a row isn't fun anymore," said Professor Donald Kelly of Francis Marion University, who is the winningest coach in the history of the Coastal Carolina Invitational.

Of all intercollegiate sports competitions in the United States, this is the only one that allows men and women to compete on equal terms. Charterboat Captain Skip Opalko and veteran angler and professional golfer Richard Lee were assistant coaches for Coastal. Richard Moore, assistant vice president of grants and sponsored research at Coastal, was the chief judge. ♦

Faculty piano recital España

Philip Powell will perform a selection of solo piano works either written by Spanish composers or influenced by Spanish culture on Sunday, Nov. 9 at 3 p.m. in Wheelwright Auditorium. The concert is free and open to the public.

The program, "España," will include Sergei Rachmaninoff's Variations on a Theme of Corelli, two selections from 12 Spanish Dances by Enrique Granados, Tango by Isaac Albéniz and Leopold Godowsky, Ferruccio Busoni's Sonatina No. 6, and Franz Liszt's Spanish Rhapsody.

Powell joined the Coastal faculty in 1988. He earned a bachelor's degree in music from Oklahoma University, and a master's degree and a Ph.D. from Indiana University, where he was a student of Michel Block. In addition to his active performing schedule as a soloist and chamber musician, Powell is the musical director of the Festival of Music and Art in Pawleys Island. He was twice named Outstanding Artist of the Year in Horry County. At Coastal, Powell teaches piano, piano pedagogy and music literature.

For more information about "España," contact the Wheelwright Box Office at extension 2502 or Powell at extension 2515. ♦

B.A.I.S. Information Session scheduled

Coastal Carolina University offers a unique program which enables adults to earn a Bachelor of Arts in Interdisciplinary Studies degree (BAIS). The program is designed especially for individuals who: need a bachelor's degree in order to compete for better jobs, have a college background but wish to obtain a degree, need to arrange classes around work schedules, have long-range plans for attending graduate school, or are interested in enhancing communications skills.

An information session outlining the BAIS program requirements will be held Nov. 20 at 6:15 p.m. in the Wall School of Business Building, room 119.

The BAIS degree at Coastal is a structured but flexible program that allows individuals to design a degree incorporating prior education and work experiences while addressing career aspirations. Courses are available through a combination of day, evening and Independent Distance Learning classes in order to accommodate the diverse schedules and educational needs of adult learners.

To register for an information session, contact Janice Sellers in Coastal's Division of Extended Learning and Public Services at extension 2665; e-mail janice@coastal.edu

Medical emergencies on campus

The Office of Student Health Services and the Office of Law Enforcement and Safety would like to remind the campus community that the university does not provide emergency medical services on campus. All medical emergencies are handled by Emergency Medical Services (EMS) by calling "911." Situations that require calling "911" include life-threatening conditions such as cardiac or respiratory emergencies, the presence of severe bleeding, medical conditions or acute illnesses such as severe asthma attacks, repetitive seizures, diabetic emergencies, stroke, poisoning, and trauma-related accidents resulting in possible fractures or multiple injuries.

If faculty and staff are aware of a medical emergency where "911" must be used, the Office of Law and Enforcement and Safety should be notified, by calling extension 2177 or 2911, so they can direct EMS to the emergency site and assist with crowds and/or traffic.

For minor medical concerns in which "911" would not be appropriate, such as skinned elbows, nosebleeds, or a broken toe or finger, faculty and staff also should call the Office of Law Enforcement and Safety at extension 2177 or information and assistance weekdays from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The Office of Law Enforcement and Safety will, in turn, will contact the campus nurse, as available, and/or assist with transportation to Conway Hospital for minor medical concerns that need immediate attention.

Faculty and staff who are faced with a medical emergency on campus after 5 p.m. or on the weekend should not hesitate to dial "911" for help. Remember to dial a "9" or "7" to connect to an outside telephone line before dialing "911" when using a campus telephone. Pay telephones on campus are not considered campus telephones.

For more information about medical emergencies, call the Office of Law Enforcement and Safety at extension 2177 or the campus nurse in the Office of Student Health Services at 347-7466.

Reminder: Report all workplace accidents to your supervisor, then to the Office of Human Resources and Affirmative Action at extension 2139. In emergencies, report the incident as soon as possible after emergency treatment is obtained. ♦

Singleton House

The next Singleton House gathering for members will be Tuesday, Nov. 18 at the Singleton House. The event will begin at 4:30 p.m. with food available at 5:30 p.m.

Membership dues are $20 per semester or $35 for the academic year and is open to all faculty and staff.

To join Singleton House, faculty and staff may contact any member of the Singleton House committee to pay their membership dues or pay the membership dues at the upcoming event.

The last event for the fall semester is planned for Monday, December 8.

Anyone with ideas for Singleton House events and themes are encouraged to contact members of the committee. Committee members are Bob Burney, John Eberwein, Andy Hendrick, Bill King, Colleen Lohr, Claudia McCollough, Richard Moore, Joan Piroch and Tom Secrest. ♦

COASTAL CAROLINA PEOPLE

James Blackburn attended the annual convention of the Foreign Language Association of North Carolina in Research Triangle, N.C., and conducted a workshop with Professor David Barnwell from South Carolina State University. The workshop topic was about preparing, administering and evaluation "reverse cloze" and "find and move" reading exercises and exams. More than 700 foreign language instructors of the tertiary and secondary levels attended the three-day conference.

Richard Collin's review article, "Richard Drake's The Aldo Moro Murder Case," has been published in the October 1997 edition of the American Historical Review.

Janet Files has been appointed by National Council of Teachers of English (NCTE) as a regional judge for the 1997 NCTE Achievement Awards in Writing. She also is a member of the South Carolina State Department of Education's Writing Improvement Committee and, within that capacity, acts as a judge for schools receiving Exemplary Writing Awards.

Steve Hamelman presented "The Deconstructive Search for Oz" at the 20th Annual Colloquium on Literature and Film held in Morgantown, W.Va. His presentation was extracted from an article which is currently being reviewed by a major journal.

Peter Lecouras' article, "The 'Intimations Ode' and the Metaphysics of Presence," has been accepted for publication in an upcoming edition of Texas College English.

Joyce Parker recently attended an international conference on Robert Frost at Winthrop University where noted authorities from all over the world gave presentations about Frost's works. Also at the conference, Richard Wilbur and Galway Kinnell presented readings of Frost as well as their own poetry.

Subhash Saxena attended the executive committee meeting of the Mathematical Association of America (MAA) held recently at the College of Charleston. Saxena is the Section Lecturer for the Southeastern Section of the MAA and will be one of three plenary speakers at the MAA Regional Meeting to be held at the College of Charleston in March 1998.

Brian Schroeder's article "Reversibility and Irreversibility: Language and Intersubjectivity in Merleau-Ponty and Levinas," will appear in Symposium: The Journal of the Canadian Society for Hermeneutics and Postmodern Thought in Spring 1998. His article, "There's More Than Meets the Eye: A Response to Ed Casey," has been accepted for publication in Continental Philosophy Review (formerly Man and World). He also recently chaired a session titled "Gadamer and Levinas on Community," at the annual meeting of the Society for Phenomenology and Existential Philosophy held at the University of Kentucky, Oct. 18.
