BLOOD DRIVE SETS RECORD

The Alpha Omega blood drive at Coastal last week set a record with donations of 109 pints of blood. The blood drive, organized by the Alpha Phi Omega Service Fraternity in cooperation with the American Red Cross, was the most successful blood drive ever held at the college, according to Red Cross officials.

The 109 pints of blood will be credited to the blood needs of Angela Eaddy, a Coastal sophomore now undergoing chemotherapy and whole blood replacement at Roper Hospital in Charleston.

SOUTHERN GRAPHICS SHOW AT COASTAL

An exhibit of 33 prints featuring experimental and mixed media processes as well as the more traditional intaglio, woodcut, lithographic and serigraphic methods will be shown at USC-Coastal Carolina College in the Kimbel Library and in the Student Center from 12-5 p.m., through Nov. 24. The show is open to the public.

The collection, sponsored by the Southern Graphics Council, is comprised entirely of prints by member artists. Included are works by artist-printmakers well known in the South.

The Southern Graphics Council is an organization of professional and student artists involved in some aspect of printmaking and/or drawing. Chartered in the state of South Carolina in 1973 as the Southeastern Graphics Council, the charter was amended in 1978 to include Southwestern state as well.

CHARITY DANCE

The big band version of "Southern Nights" (The Marsh Myers Dance Orchestra) will be playing at the Ocean Dunes on Saturday, December 4th. The dance will be sponsored by the Community Volunteer Services which operates the Friendship House in Myrtle Beach, providing medical care for the indigent. Physicians from the area contribute their time each week for this needed service.

Please plan to come to the dance and support this charity. Tickets will be $20.00 per couple. Cocktails will be available. You may purchase tickets at "Rainbows End" in Myrtle Beach or from Marsh Myers.

TEENS CAN LEARN TO OPERATE COMPUTERS THROUGH CLASS

Teenagers who are looking for a hobby with a practical application for the future are signing up for a non-credit short course in computer programming at USC-Coastal Carolina College.

The class, entitled "Learning to Talk to the Computer," begins Nov. 20 and meets weekly on Saturday mornings through December 18th. Classes will be held at Coastal Carolina College, in room 114 of the Singleton Building, and registration is now underway.

College officials say the popular class is limited and registration is accepted only on a first-come, first-serve basis.

"Participants in this course will have fun learning to make the computer perform various functions," says Dr. Sally Z. Hare., director of the Office of Continuing Education at the College.

"They'll learn to become familiar with the computer," she says. "They'll learn how to do arithmetic with a computer, how to get information in and out of the computer - how to do loops and counting, decisions and random numbers and how to program a simple computer game.

"Someday soon most homes will be equipped with a computer. This is an ideal way to encourage a young person to develop a hobby which will have practical and maybe professional applications in the future."

Hare says the suggested minimum age for the class is 12. Information is available from the Office of Continuing Education. Tuition is $30 for five sessions.

FACULTY-STAFF ACTIVITIES

Dr. Subhash C. Saxena presented a talk on "Mathematics Curriculum for Tomorrow," at a Workshop in Conway High School. The Workshop was a part of the Fall Conference of Mathematics Advancement Council.

Dr. Charles Joyner attended the Annual Meeting of the American Folklore Society in Minneapolis, where he chaired the session entitled "Innovation and Cultural Change." He also presented a paper, "Historical Folk-life: The Testing of a New Approach." The paper was based on his research in the Waccamaw Region. Joyner was also featured on the program of the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association Seminar on Southern culture, held recently at Duke University.

Coastal Professor Marianna Hamilton Fox was a guest on WLAT Radio's "Conway Today" program last week, discussing the 1982-83 Cultural Arts Series.

Vice Chancellor Roy Talbert was a delegate to the Southern Historical Association meeting in Memphis recently. Talbert was accompanied by Charles Joyner.

Public Relations Director Rod Gragg, who is currently teaching a course on the American Civil War, has been invited to be keynote speaker at the winter meeting of the South Carolina Civil War Roundtable in Florence on Dec. 7.

Schools in Louisiana, New York and South Dakota have adopted the dialect assistance program developed by Coastal's Dr. Randall A. Wells. The program, "Hearsay," uses cassette tapes and workbooks to assist black English and Spanish phonology.

MINI-ADVISING WORKSHOPS

A series of mini-advising workshops to be held from 1:30 to 2:00 p.m. on each Monday in November. All of the workshops will be held in AC 111.

Please bring your catalog and your advisor's manual to each meeting. Although workshops will be brief, there will be time for questions.

The workshops will focus on how to give academic advice about courses in the following Schools.

Mathematics	November 1	Dean Cicero
Science	November 8	Dean Moore
Social and Behavioral Sciences	November 15	Dean Vrooman
Music and Foreign Language	November 22	Carolyn Cox and Al Hall
Interdisciplinary Studies	November 29	Glenda Sweet

COLLEGE SPONSORS COMMUNICATIONS SEMINAR

The Office of Continuing Education at USC-Coastal Carolina College is sponsoring a seminar on effective business and personal communications. Entitled "Creative Communication Seminar," the workshop is designed to teach participants how to effectively communicate with friends, associates, business contacts and other relationships which require competent communications.

The seminar is scheduled for November 19, 9 a.m.-4:30 p.m., with registration at 8:30 a.m. The workshop will be held in room 205 of the Student Center at USC-Coastal Carolina College. Registration is $60 per person and includes materials and refreshments. A 10 per cent discount is offered to firms or organizations which enroll three or more persons in the seminar.

The seminar instructor is Dr. Hilda Lee Dail, a New York-based communications consultant who has developed sales and communication techniques for numerous American businesses and corporations.

"This seminar will teach you how to create a climate of trust with another person," she says, "which is central to developing effective communication. Participants in this one-day program will learn the technology of communication which will help identify and dissolve barriers, so communication can become spontaneous and natural. That's good for personal relationships. It's good for business. It's good for life."

Details about the communications seminar are available at the Office of Continuing Education at Coastal Carolina College.

COLLEGE PRESENTS THE MIKADO NOV. 19

Gilbert and Sullivan come to the Grand Strand this Fall when the USC-Coastal Carolina Concert Choir presents THE MIKADO opening Nov. 19 in Wheelwright Auditorium at Coastal Carolina College. This musical event will be typical of all Gilbert and Sullivan productions, with its spoof of the "establishment" of nineteenth century England. With Nanki-Poo (the wandering minstrel) in love with Yum-Yum (the luscious ward of Ko-Ko, the Lord High Executioner) and even the Mikado of Japan in full regalia. There is never a dull moment.

THE MIKADO is the major fund raiser for the choir this year, and proceeds will be used to help them take a very special trip to Hawaii in the Spring of 1983. Members of the choir and Coastal professors will be onstage and backstage, working hard for the success of this project. Production dates are November 19 and 20 at 8:00 p.m. and November 21 at 3:00 p.m. Choir members may be contacted about tickets; tickets are $5.00.
