Junior Academy of Science workshop

The S.C. Junior Academy of Science held its winter workshop at Coastal on Saturday, Feb. 21. The all-day workshop was designed to give high school students (grades nine through 12) an opportunity to participate in hands-on, interactive science and math-related educational experiences, according to Val Dunham, dean of the School of Natural and Applied Sciences.

"South Carolina does a fantastic job in comparison to other states in that, in addition to an annual conference, the S.C. Junior Academy of Science hosts one-day workshops each quarter," said Dunham, who also serves on the governing council of the S.C. Academy of Science. "Students from all over the state have a chance to experience a whole range of state-of-the-art demonstrations and experiments, as well as learn about the astonishing variety of careers for science, math and computer science majors."

Workshops and field trips led by Coastal faculty were held on the following topics: Sharks of the Carolina Coast, Human Genetic Disease Gene Therapy, Plants of the Coastal Plain, Human DNA Fingerprinting, DNA Separation Techniques, Wetlands, Antarctic Ecology, A Mathematical Ride on the Gulf Stream, Hurricane Influence on Sedimentation, Exploring the Mind-Body Connection, and more.

The workshop also included:

- Challenge Bowl – three member teams competed in a contest of scientific knowledge
- Science Olympics – two students per high school competed in a written test and lab practicum focusing on biology, chemistry, physics, math and computer science
- Speaking of Science – an oratorical competition about how the introduction of foreign plants and animal (kudzu and fire ants, for example) impact local ecosystems

For more information about the S.C. Junior Academy of Science winter workshop, contact Susan Libes at extension 2218. ♦

Nominations accepted for Ronald D. Lackey Service Award

Nominations for the Ronald D. Lackey Service Award are being accepted. The award recognizes an outstanding senior student. The recipient will be announced at the university's annual honors convocation held in April.

Students nominated for the award must meet the following criteria. Students must:

- have senior status and in good academic standing;
- have distinguished themselves in conspicuous service to the campus;
- be involved significantly in campus organizations, groups, and activities;
- have played a leadership role in one or more campus organizations or services; and

- have contributed significantly to the quality of campus life.

Faculty, staff and students are invited to nominate individuals by completing a nomination form available in the Office of Student Affairs. The completed nomination form must be signed by both the candidate and the person nominating the student.

The deadline for nominations is Monday, March 30 at 5 p.m. Forms should be submitted to the Ronald D. Lackey Selection Committee, c/o Kathy Watts, Office of the Vice President for Student Affairs, SC 206-D.

For more information, contact Kathy Watts at extension 2302 or extension 2300. ♦

Coastal students join Who's Who

The 1998 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges includes the names of 30 Coastal Carolina University students. Applications are submitted by students and reviewed by the Student Affairs Committee. Students are selected on their academic achievement, community service, leadership roles and potential for success by a campus nominating committee and the editors of the annual directory.

First published in 1934, the directory includes students from more than 1,900 institutions of higher education in the United States, the District of Columbia and several foreign nations.

All Coastal honorees will be recognized at the university's annual honors convocation held in April.

They are:

- Julie Marie Anderton of Leesport, Pa.
- Ralph Argondizzo of North Myrtle Beach, S.C.
- Christine D. Avant of Georgetown, S.C.
- Tara Britt of Greencastle, Pa.
- Carrie Lynn Burdick of Thompson, Conn.
- Barbara A. Castellion of Trafford, Pa.
- Angela Kay Coleman of Lees Summit, Md.

- David L. Cooper of Myrtle Beach, S.C.
- Tiffany Crawford of Pikesville, Md.
- Apryl M. Dunkle of Dayton, Ohio
- Adalia B. Ellis of Florence, S. C.
- Joanne Galenski of Terryville, Conn.
- Robert C. Helmstetler of Germany
- Kristi Brown Johnson of Conway, S.C.
- Tracy Lambert of Marion, S.C.
- Janet Lawrence of Conway, S.C.
- Amy Paige McElveen of Loris, S.C.
- Mark Miller of Greenville, S.C.
- Deana Motta of Spotswood, N.J.
- Chrystal Michelle O'Quinn of Loris, S.C.
- Sandra B. Overcash of Conway, S.C.
- Colette Pawlyk of Tomkins Cove, N.Y.
- Robert D. Peterson of Rockford, Ill.
- Jordan Nicole Roberts of Baxter, Tenn.
- Ginny Sedlack of Myrtle Beach, S.C.
- Susan Catherine Shelley of Conway, S.C.
- Donald W. Shock of St. Jacob, Ill.
- Greg Simpson of Myrtle Beach, S.C.
- Treda Smith of Petersburg, Va.
- Audur Yr Sveinsdottir of Myrtle Beach, S.C. ♦

Coastal hosts Columbia City Ballet's Where The Wild Things Are

The Columbia City Ballet's production of "Where the Wild Things Are" will be presented at Wheelwright Auditorium on Thursday, March 12 at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $15, $5 for students.

Adapted from Maurice Sendak's popular 1963 children's book, "Where the Wild Things Are," the ballet is a massive, colorful production featuring giant puppets, animated scenery and zany human and animal characters. Created by author-illustrator Sendak and celebrated choreographer Septime Webre, the ballet had its world premiere in Savannah, Ga., as part of the 1996 Summer Olympics. About a boy who imagines a forest inhabited by fantastic creatures whom he tames with a magic trick, the story has appealed to adults as well as children for more than 30 years.

Matinee performances of this production, part of the Columbia City Ballet's Children's Season, will be presented in Wheelwright Auditorium to students from 14 schools in Horry and Georgetown counties.

The cultural and artistic components of this program are funded in part by the Horry Cultural Arts Council and the South Carolina Arts Commission, which receive support from the National Endowment for the Arts and the Accommodations Tax Advisory Committee. The program also is sponsored by Target stores and Coastal Carolina University.

For tickets or more information, contact the Wheelwright Box Office at extension 2502. ♦

University hosts Sigma Zeta annual meeting

Sigma Zeta, a national honor society for math and science students, will hold its annual conference at Coastal from March 12 to 14.

The conference will include more than 20 presentations of scholarly papers by college and university students from across the United States, including students from Coastal Carolina University, according to Susan Libes, professor of marine science and chemistry.

"We also have planned field trips to Waites Island, Huntington Beach State Park, the Baruch Marine Laboratory at Hobcaw Barony, AVX Corporation, Brookgreen Gardens, Ripley's Aquarium and Alligator Adventure," said Libes, who is also a faculty adviser to Coastal's chapter of Sigma Zeta. "The field trips will introduce students from other areas to the Grand Strand and show them some of the kinds of opportunities that exist for graduates with math and science backgrounds."

Joseph Pinson, professor of biology, and Prashant Sansgiry, associate professor of mathematics, also are faculty advisers to the organization.

Founded in 1925, Sigma Zeta has more than 40 chapters throughout the nation and is the first honor society for science majors to be established at Coastal.

For more information, contact Libes at extension 2218. ♦

Jump for the Sun students teach science workshops

A group of middle school students from Horry County Schools is about to find out what it's like on the other side of the teacher's desk. All 24 sixth- to ninth-grade students participating in Coastal Carolina University's Jump for the Sun program, a project designed to encourage girls to pursue studies in math and science, will teach classes at the South Carolina Children's Museum in Myrtle Beach on Friday, March 13. Their pupils will be 65 to 70 students from Lakewood and Socastee elementary schools.

According to Martha Fout, teacher in residence for the Jump for the Sun program, the student teachers, working in groups of six, will present lessons on various aspects of the topic "Balancing the Ecosystem."

"This is the culmination of a years' work for these girls, as well as for their parents and the 12 teachers from Horry County Schools who were involved in the project," said Fout. "For one Friday each month since August 1997, they have met at Coastal for field exercises, analysis and discussions relating to ecosystems, a topic they collectively chose to study at the beginning of the program."

The Jump for the Sun program is funded through a $900,000 grant – the largest grant in Coastal's history – from the National Science Foundation. The purpose of the project is to involve students, parents and educators in motivating female students in math and science and to create a more positive climate for the teaching of science in primary and secondary schools. In addition to student projects, the multi-faceted program includes workshops for parents and families of the students. Funds from the grant also have been used to develop a new course in biology for education majors at Coastal.

For more information about Jump for the Sun, contact Coastal's Center for Education and Community at extension 2678. ♦

New interactive Internet courses offered

Coastal's Division of Extended Learning and Public Services has begun a partnership with "Education To Go," a leading developer and provider of interactive online classes through the Internet, to offer a variety of six-week computer classes. More than 10 different courses will be available in 30 sections through August 1998.

"In today's fast-paced world, many of us find it difficult to take time away from work and family to attend classes for our professional and personal development," said Peter Balsamo, dean of Extended Learning. "One of the primary advantages of Internet courses is that you can 'attend class' any time or place you choose. All you have to do is log into your e-mailbox. Participants can contact instructors at any time during the course."

Courses available through Education To Go include: Introduction to the Internet, Creating Web

Pages, Creating Web Graphics, Introduction to PC Troubleshooting, Quicken for Windows, Windows File and Disk Management, Microsoft Front Page, and Microsoft Access. Participants must have access to an e-mail address, an Internet web browser (Netscape, Internet Explorer) and Microsoft Windows 3.1 or 95.

The registration fee for each course is $59; and $49 for members of Coastal's Lifelong Learning Society.

Through a special partnership between Coastal Carolina University and Horry Telephone Cooperative (HTC), registrants who are new Internet subscribers are eligible to get two months of Internet service for $10 a month.

For more details, course descriptions or registration information contact Trena Metts at 349-2694 or e-mail: metts@coastal.edu or visit the website: www.coastal.edu/extlearn. ♦

University professor featured in television documentary

Charles Joyner, Burroughs Distinguished Professor of Southern History and Culture, was a featured commentator on the national television presentation of God's Gonna Trouble the Water in February 1998.

God's Gonna Trouble the Water is a documentary about African Americans of the South Carolina lowcountry and sea islands, and about the Gullah culture that their ancestors created.

Joyner, author of Down by the Riverside, an award-winning study of Gullah culture on the rice plantations of the Waccamaw, spoke about the cultural significance of the spirituals created by the lowcountry slaves in South Carolina and about whether Gullah culture can survive.

Joyner was a consultant for the documentary, which was narrated by Ruby Dee. It was produced by Teresa Bruce and directed by Paul Keyserling for SCETV. ♦

Summer courses offered in Oxford and London

Coastal Carolina University's Office of International Programs will sponsor a three-week study trip to Oxford and London, England, from Saturday, July 4 to Sunday, July 26.

The program is open to Coastal students as well as students from other colleges and universities. Non-Coastal students must provide transient approval from their home institution before applying for the trip. Space is limited; early registration is recommended.

Students may earn six credit-hours by enrolling in one of the following modules:

- Images of England (POLI 344, HIST 337); instructor: Richard Oliver Collin
- Shakespeare and His Contemporaries (ENGL 424A, ENGL 424B); instructor: Randall Wells

Participants will live at Hughes-Parry Hall, a dormitory facility of the City College of London, and Harris-Manchester College, located in the historic heart of Oxford.

The course will include visits to the Houses of Parliament, Buckingham Palace, Whitehall, Stonehenge and other sites related to individual interest.

Plays which will be seen by students in the Shakespeare course include The Merchant of Venice and As You Like It at London's Globe Theatre and The Tempest, Two Gentlemen of Verona and Twelfth Night at Stratford-Upon-Avon.

The total cost of the program, including airfare, room and board and the listed excursions, is determined by the expenses related to the individual course of study. These expenses range from $2,925 to $3,225, plus tuition. An abbreviated 12-day non-credit trip is also available for $2,110.

For more information, contact Geoff Parsons in the Office of International Programs at extension 2054 or e-mail: parsons@coastal.edu. ♦

1998 Homecoming King and Queen named

The 1998 Homecoming King and Queen of Coastal Carolina University were crowned as part of the university's Homecoming celebration Saturday, Feb. 21.

John Caprio, a senior interdisciplinary studies major from Caldwell, N.J., was named 1998 Homecoming King and Danielle Politi, a senior psychology major from Madison, N.J., was named Homecoming Queen.

Caprio was sponsored by Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, and Politi was sponsored by Gamma Phi Beta sorority.

Derek Miller, a senior management major from Anderson, S.C., was named Homecoming Prince and Kiera Session, a senior physical education major from Andrews, S.C., was named Homecoming Princess. Miller was sponsored by Sigma Nu fraternity, and Session was sponsored by Coastal's African American Association, the Coastal Carolina University Gospel Choir, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority and Delta Sigma Theta sorority.

Thirteen male students and 14 female students vied for Homecoming King and Queen honors. The recipients were crowned by the 1997 Homecoming King and Queen, Kyle Burns and Suzette Levesque, during halftime of the Chanticleer basketball game against Elon College.

Students are chosen based on a campus election held prior to the presentation of the court.

The Homecoming Court is sponsored by the Coastal Productions board and the Office of Student Activities. ♦

COASTAL CAROLINA PEOPLE

Faculty and staff are encouraged to submit information to be included in the "Coastal Carolina People" section of On Campus. Information will be published following the presentation or activity.

- James Blackburn gave a presentation on the 17th century French painter, titled "Light and Shadows of George de Latour," at the La Ronde meeting, Feb. 6. He also presented "Brief Look at Scotland's History and Culture" at the International Club's monthly dinner program, March 2.
- Vicki Gardner attended the third annual Update on Alcoholism and Substance Abuse Treatment Conference in Charleston, Feb. 21. The conference was sponsored by the MUSC Center for Drug and Alcohol Programs. An extensive session was conducted on nicotine dependence and new treatments for smoking cessation success.
- Paul Peterson and Jack Riley presented papers at the Annual Meeting of the South Carolina Political Science Association held at Columbia College on Feb. 28. Peterson's paper was titled "On the Nature of the American Political Order: Recent Scholarship on the Declaration of Independence;" Riley's paper was titled "James Wilson and Natural Right." Peterson also was elected vice president for the association and will serve as program chair for the 1999 meeting to be held at Coastal.
- Philip Powell presented "A Romp Through the History of French Music" for the La Ronde annual banquet held at the Dunes Golf and Beach Club, Feb. 27.

Bachelor's degree program information sessions

Coastal Carolina University offers an information session outlining a unique degree program which enables adults to earn a Bachelor's of Arts in Interdisciplinary Studies degree (BAIS). The program is designed especially for individuals who: need a bachelor's degree in order to compete for better jobs, have a college background but wish to obtain a degree, need to arrange classes around work schedules, have long-range plans for attending graduate school, or are interested in enhancing communication skills.

Information sessions outlining the BAIS program requirements will be held on March 12, April 9, May 14, June 11, July 16 and Aug. 13 in the Wall School of Business Building, room 118. All sessions will be held at 6:15 p.m.

- Nelljean Rice has a chapter, "A Tale of Three Cakes: On the Air and in the Books," published in Recipes for Reading: Community Cookbooks, Stories, Histories. The book is edited by Anne L. Bower and published by University of Massachusetts Press. Rice also presented a paper, titled "Beatrice Witte Ravenel: Forgotten Poet of the South Carolina Lowcountry," at the Georgia/C Carolinas College English Association meeting held Feb. 26 and 27.
- Robin Edwards Russell, and her husband David, announce the March 2 arrival of their newborn triplets: James Edward Foster Russell (4 lbs., 14 ozs.), Mary Miranda Todd Russell (4 lbs, 10 ozs.) and Grainger Lee Williams Russell (4 lbs., 3 ozs.)
- Jill Sessoms attended the Academic Chairpersons Conference in Orlando, Fla., Feb. 11 to 13. Sessoms was one of 225 department chairs attending the meeting. Topics ranged from developing leadership skills to dealing with difficult faculty and conflict management.
- Dennis Wiseman participated as a panelist in the first televised broadcast of the "Open Book-Open Mind" book discussion series produced by Horry County School. The book selected as first in the series is Jefferson's Children: Education and the Promise of American Culture by Leon Botstein, president of Bard College.

Wall School of Business Building, room 118. All sessions will be held at 6:15 p.m.

The BAIS degree at Coastal is a structured but flexible program that allows individuals to design a degree incorporating prior education and work experiences while addressing career aspirations. Courses are available through a combination of day, evening and Independent Distance Learning classes in order to accommodate the diverse schedules and educational needs of adult learners.

To register for an information session, contact Coastal's Division of Extended Learning and Public Services at extension 2665 or by e-mail: janice@coastal.edu ♦

English professor publishes textbook

Randall A. Wells, professor of English and speech, has written a composition textbook, Stretch: Explore, Explain, Persuade, published in 1998 by Prentice Hall.

The book, which compares the practice of writing to the process of a physical workout, is designed to "limber up the writing joints," according to Wells. The book includes writing exercises based on a selection of short stories, essays, poems, and more.

The book also includes short pieces by more than 60 Coastal Carolina University students and makes reference to many local places and events.

Coastal students and graduates whose work is featured as models include: Adnan Alie, Bryce Becker, Kimberlie Chandler, Sarah Christenson, Megan A. Coker, Kathy Coleman, Abby Gants, Dorothy Green, Istana Hauber, Catherine Johnstono, Kit Kadlec, Andrew S. Karns, Bryan Monroe, Sherry Todd Murrell, Laurie Ann Occhipinti, Michele Paddy, Bob Peterson, James Ruff, Charlene Slugoski, Kyle Thrash and others.

Several Coastal faculty and staff members also are represented in the book, by their work and in the acknowledgements.

Wells joined the Coastal faculty in 1973. He earned a bachelor's degree in English from the University of Illinois-Urbana in 1965, a master's degree in English from the University of Connecticut in 1966, and a Ph.D. from the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill in 1972. Wells also is the author of Along the Waccamaw: A Yankee Discovers a Home by the River, published by Algonquin in 1990.

The book is on reserve in Kimbel Library. ♦

Grant supplies films

Kimbel Library has received 15 new Latin American videos through a Mellon Foundation grant provided by Tulane University. For the 11th consecutive year, Tulane's Center for Latin American Studies has funded the purchase of materials for the Kimbel Library. The $500 award is part of the Louisiana university's outreach effort aimed at enhancing Latin American studies throughout the southeastern United States.

The videos are largely feature-length films produced in Latin America. Most are in Spanish or Portuguese with English subtitles.

Among this year's acquisitions are The Buried Mirror, Reflections on Spain and the New World, a five-part series which explores the diversity of peoples, cultures and histories that make up the Hispanic world.

Coastal has a collection of 150 Latin American feature and documentary films acquired through the Tulane/Mellon grant.

Cultural Celebration set for April 8

Coastal Carolina University's seventh annual Cultural Celebration festival is scheduled for Wednesday, April 8 from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. in Spadoni Park. Featuring a variety of musical performances, ethnic food, arts and crafts from many international cultures, the festival is free and open to the public.

As part of a new feature of the festival this year, students, faculty, staff and friends of the university who have interesting objects, artifacts, papers, pictures, or other items representative of a particular national or ethnic culture are invited to display them as exhibits during the event.

Anyone who would like to participate can contact Pat Singleton-Young at 2304 or Geoff Parsons at 2054. ♦
