NEH chairman to deliver May commencement address

William R. Ferris Jr., chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities, will speak at Coastal Carolina University's May commencement exercises, scheduled for May 9.

Ferris, an eminent author, editor, folklorist and filmmaker, was the founding director of the Center for the Study of Southern Culture at the University of Mississippi in Oxford, which is recognized as a model for regional studies centers.

A professor of anthropology and a prolific author, Ferris spearheaded the creation of the groundbreaking Encyclopedia of Southern Culture, published in 1989. Containing entries of every aspect of southern culture and widely recognized as a major reference work linking popular, folk and academic cultures, the volume was nominated for a Pulitzer Prize.

Ferris' books include Blues from the Delta (1970), Images of the South: Visits with Eudora Welty and Walker Evans (1978), Local Color (1982) and Ray Lum's Tales of Horses, Mules and Men (1982). His film Mississippi Blues (1983) was featured at the Cannes Film Festival. Ferris served as a consultant on the films The Color Purple (1985) and Crossroads (1985), and for 10 years he hosted Highway 61, a weekly blues music program that airs on Mississippi Public Radio.

Born in Vicksburg, Miss., in 1942, Ferris earned a bachelor's degree from Davidson College, a master's degree in folklore from the University of Pennsylvania, a master's degree in English literature from Northwestern University, and a Ph.D. in folklore from the University of Pennsylvania. He has taught at Jackson State University in Mississippi (1970 to 1972) and Yale University (1972 to 1979).

Coastal chosen as site for USC master's degree program

Beginning in June 1998, the University of South Carolina's program leading to the interdisciplinary master of arts degree in natural sciences (IMA-NS) will be offered at Coastal Carolina University.

The addition of this program at Coastal is part of a statewide effort to provide more and better prepared science teachers in the state's elementary and middle schools. The South Carolina State Systemic Initiative (SC-SSI), a five year program funded by a $9.8 million grant from the National Science Foundation to improve science and mathematics education in the state, specifically calls for the expansion of the IMA-NS program. Coastal will be the state's third site for the program, which is currently being offered at USC Columbia and USC Aiken.

The program is accredited by the National Council for the Accreditation of Teacher Education and requires a minimum of 33 semester hours of graduate-level course work. The curriculum consists of four core courses (life science, earth science, physical science, and environmental earth science for teachers), an independent study course and an advanced course in educational research and assessment.

Chris Marsh, director of the Waccamaw Math and Science Hub and associate professor of biology at Coastal, will serve as on-site program coordinator. Courses will be taught by USC and Coastal Carolina University faculty, and some courses will be offered via distance learning technology.

"The IMA-NS differs from the traditional master's program," said Marsh. "It is unique in that it offers a variety of science content courses to elementary and middle school teachers who did not receive such training during their pre-service education."

For more information about the interdisciplinary master of arts degree in natural science, contact Chris Marsh at extension 2207. ♦

Lifelong Learning Society Intersession offers courses

Lifelong Learning Society (LLS), an academic enrichment program for adults sponsored by Coastal Carolina University, will offer seven new courses during April and May.

Courses will be held once a week for a four-week period, and each course will be one and one-half hours long. The cost per course is $20 for LLS members and $25 for nonmembers. All classes will be held in the Wall Building. For more information or to register, contact the Division of Extended Learning and Public Services at extension 2665 or 2673 or e-mail: janice@coastal.edu

The following courses will be offered:

Mondays, April 20 to May 11

- Habit or Hooked – 1 to 2:30 p.m.; Instructor: Joan Clark – When does a habit become an addiction? This course will help you decide.
- The Turbulent '60s – 3 to 4:30 p.m.; Facilitator: Trenna Metts – Discuss significant issues of this influential decade of political turmoil, mass protest and cultural upheaval. Textbook required.

Tuesdays, April 21 to May 12

- Will You Outlive Your Money? – 1 to 2:30 p.m.; Instructor: Russell A. Bell – Tips on making sure your money lasts as long as you do.
- Positive Communication – 1 to 2:30 p.m.; Instructor: Marilee Bell – Learn the importance of nonverbal communication, how to be a better listener and to encourage positive behavior.

Thursdays, April 23 to May 14

- Computers and Society – 1:30 to 3 p.m.; Facilitator: Peter Balsamo – Explore the influence of computers on modern life; discuss issues regarding right to privacy, censorship and universal access.
- The Great Depression – 1:30 to 3 p.m.; Facilitator: Judy Fontana – Examine the economic and human implications of this 20th century calamity. Textbook required.
- Un Poquito de Español: A Little Bit of Spanish – 3 to 4:30 p.m.; Instructor: Jennifer Shinaberger – Learn basic pronunciation, names of greetings, numbers, colors, and how to order food. ♦

Calling All Colors conference builds race unity

Coastal Carolina University hosted Calling All Colors '98, a race unity conference for third- through eighth-graders, on Saturday, March 14 on campus.

The conference, developed by Coastal's Center for Education and Community, gave young people the opportunity to talk about their feelings and experiences regarding race relations and to learn about other people's ideas for building cross-cultural bridges.

The guest speaker was Florida Yeldell, a longtime educator and expert on black history in Georgetown County. The event also included small group discussions, brainstorming sessions, drama, art and more.

Approximately 90 students participated in Calling All Colors '98, according to Sally Hare, director of the Center for Education and Community, sponsor of the event. ♦

Professor honored with lifetime achievement award

James L. Michie, associate director of the Waccamaw Center for Historical and Cultural Studies, has been awarded the Robert L. Stephenson Lifetime Achievement Award by the South Carolina Institute of Archaeology and Anthropology (SCIAA). The award, named for a longtime director of the institute, is the highest honor the organization bestows. Michie is the fourth recipient of the award.

Michie joined the Coastal faculty in 1990. A native of Florence, S.C., he earned a bachelor's degree from the University of South Carolina in 1976 and a master's degree from the University of Tennessee in 1987.

Michie, whose interests include both historic and prehistoric archaeology, has done extensive work on South Carolina plantations. He has investigated portions of the coast from Daufuskie Island to the Waccamaw Neck, as well as sites in the interior of the state. His book, Richmond Hill Plantation 1810 - 1868: The Discovery of Antebellum Life on a Waccamaw Rice Plantation, was published in 1990. Michie has directed archaeological excavations at The Oaks at Brookgreen Gardens, Old Fort Congaree in Lexington County, and many other sites.

In 1970, while he was a student at the University of South Carolina, Michie invented a gasoline powered sifting screen for archaeological digs which has become widely used by archaeologists.

"No one knows South Carolina archeology better than Jim," said Bruce RippetEAU, director of SCIAA. "One of his special gifts is the ability to communicate his knowledge about archaeology to audiences unfamiliar with the subject. His brilliant gifts as a storyteller and his willingness to share his great knowledge have made many friends for archaeology in this state."

Michie is a cofounder of the Archaeological Society of South Carolina. He has served as the society's president, vice president, editor and as a member of its board of directors. ♦

Jim Michie is now living at Jordan Care Center on Highway 378 in Conway, room 227.

High school math contest held on campus

The Department of Mathematics will host the 19th annual Mathematics Contest for high school students on Friday, March 27. More than 170 high school students representing 18 schools are expected to participate in the competition.

The competition is funded, in part, by a grant from GTE to Coastal Educational Foundation, Inc. The 1998 contest marks the seventh year of sponsorship by GTE. The Horry County Higher Education Commission will award the top senior finisher from Horry County a full tuition scholarship to attend Coastal Carolina University for four years and major in mathematics. This winner also will be awarded $500 in scholarship funds derived from the GTE gift.

Participating high schools are: Academy for the Arts, Science and Technology, AC Flora, Aynor, Carolina Forest, Conway, Conway Christian, Dobyns-Bennett, Georgetown, Green Sea Floyds, Hammond, James Island, Johnsonville, Loris, Myrtle Beach, North Myrtle Beach, South Carolina Governor's School for Science and Mathematics, Summerville and Waccamaw Academy.

Students in the competition will be given one-hour examinations consisting of written, objective questions. Participants compete for individual awards on two levels: Level I questions are taken from Algebra I, Algebra II and Geometry; Level II questions are taken from Algebra, Geometry, Advanced Algebra and Trigonometry. For each school, the top three scores in each level will be added together to determine a team score.

An awards presentation follows the competition. First, second and third place winners will receive Texas Instruments 83 graphing calculators. Trophies will be awarded to all team winners.

Registration begins at 9:30 a.m. in the Wall Auditorium. Examinations will be held from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., and the awards presentation will be held at 2 p.m. in the Wall Auditorium.

For more information, contact Steve West at extension 2075. ♦

Get involved

Would you like to have
... a free pizza party for your office?
... a Coastal Carolina University T-shirt?
... bragging rights for a year?
Here is a great way to boost team spirit in your office.

The Horry County WalkAmerica for the March of Dimes campaign is in progress and your support is needed. Therefore, the campus office that raises the most funds for Coastal's WalkAmerica for the March of Dimes team will win a FREE PIZZA PARTY furnished by Pizza Hut in Conway.

The Office of Marketing Communications is furnishing 10 Coastal Carolina T-SHIRTS to be given away at the discretion of the winning office. BRAGGING RIGHTS and a framed certificate to announce the winner also will be presented.

It's fun — it's quick — it's easy — and it's for a great cause. Get involved today and support the fight against birth defects — together we can make a difference.

In addition, any individual money collector who raises $75 or more will receive an official 1998 WalkAmerica T-shirt.

The contest ends Friday, March 27 at noon.

COASTAL CAROLINA PEOPLE

Faculty and staff are encouraged to submit information to be included in the "Coastal Carolina People" section of On Campus. Information will be published following the presentation or activity.

Peter Balsamo and Billy Hills gave presentations at the 24th Annual Meeting of the Association for Gerontology in Higher Education held in Winston-Salem, Feb. 19 to 22. Balsamo presented "The Use and Application of the Information Technologies by Older Adults/Retirees" and Hills presented "Prepackaged Independent Distance Learning in Gerontology: Service Rural and Urban Areas." Coastal Carolina University will host the 26th AGHE Conference in February 2000 with Hills chairing the local arrangements committee. Approximately 500 participants from throughout the nation are expected to attend.

Lisa Barboun and Suzanne Thompson attended the annual conference of the Southeast Association for Language Learning at the College of Charleston, March 6 and 7. The conference theme was "Instructional Methodologies in the Language Learning Center," with sessions focusing on using technology to enhance foreign language teaching.

Alys Culhane attended the Southeast Writing Center Conference held in Charleston. She also was a presenter, at the Georgia/Carolinas College English Association Conference held Feb. 26 and 27. Two of Culhane's English 102 students, Amy Hiatt and Julie Martin, also were presenters. In addition, Culhane's poem "Dog Dreams" will be published in Wellspring and "Rocks" will be published in Ananzella.

Linda Hollandsworth presented "Students Charting Errors: Accepting Responsibility for Learning to Write," which was co-written with Peter Lecouras, at the Georgia/Carolinas English Association Conference held at Coastal Carolina, Feb. 27 and 28.

Ron Ingle, Buddy Sasser, Linda Hollandsworth, and Gina Markland represented Coastal Carolina at the annual meeting of the Big South Athletics Conference held in conjunction with the Big South Basketball Tournament in Lynchburg, Va., Feb. 24 to 27.

Marios Katsiolouides presented three papers at the annual meeting of the South Western Federation of Administrative Disciplines (SWFAD) held in Dallas, Texas, March 4 to 7. The first two papers were cases: "Santee Cooper" and "Small Wonders, Inc." and the third was a research paper in progress, titled "Cyprus and the European Union."

Gary Kritz presented a paper, "A Strategic Blueprint to Increase Snack Food Sales: I Just Can't Stop Eating Those Snacks," at the American Society of Business and Behavioral Sciences Conference held in Las Vegas, Feb. 24. The paper also was published in the Proceedings. Kritz also has been inducted into the Indiana University chapter of Beta Gamma Sigma, an honorary fraternity sponsored by the AACSB, an accrediting agency for business schools. Kritz earned his Ph.D. in marketing at Indiana University in 1997.

Claudia McCollough chaired a panel, "Ethics in Finance," at the Association of Applied and Professional Ethics Conference held in Dallas, Texas, Feb. 27. The panel consisted of leading figures in the field of finance from academic and professional sectors. The international conference attracts participants worldwide and is attended by 600 to 800 participants each year.

Prashant Sangiry, Subhash Saxena and Ioana Mihaila were actively involved in the 77th annual meeting of the Southeastern Section of the Mathematical Association of America held in Charleston, March 13 and 14. Billy Stockton, a Coastal student, and Sheila Page, a Coastal graduate, also attended the meeting. Stockton presented a paper on "Generalization of Cantor Set," Sangiry presented his paper "A Study of Numerical Solutions of Differential Equations," and Mihaila presented "The Business about the Business."

Tom Secrest presented three papers that he co-authored with other Coastal faculty at the 1998 Annual Meeting of the American Society of Business and Behavioral Sciences held Feb. 22 to 25. Jim Eason was the lead author of the first paper titled "Development and Implementation of a Distance Learning Course for Principles of Management." Jack Kendree was lead author of the paper "System Constraints in Local Level Labor Force Data." Secrest, Peter Barr and Sharon Thompson collaborated on the paper "A Model for Assessing Community Health." All three papers have been published in the Conference Proceedings.

Writer, performer to present dramatic reading

Ntozake Shange, a playwright, novelist, poet and performer, will give a dramatic reading from her works on April 14 at 7 p.m. in Wheelwright Auditorium. Tickets are $5 for the general public; Coastal students are admitted free.

Shange's most famous work is the Obie Award-winning play for colored girls who have considered suicide/when the rainbow is enuf, which was an off-Broadway hit in 1976 and won critical acclaim as a PBS television drama. Her poetic works include Three Pieces, which won a Los Angeles Times Book Award for poetry, nappe edges, Natural Disasters and Other Festive Occasions and I live in music. Her latest work is Liliane: Resurrection of the Daughter, her third novel, published in 1994.

Born in Trenton, N.J., Shange's father was a physician and her mother a social worker. The family later moved to St. Louis, where they befriended musicians Miles Davis, Dizzy Gillespie, Ike and Tina Turner, as well as black activist W.E.B. DuBois. She earned a bachelor's degree from Barnard College and a master's degree in American studies from the University of Southern California.

A dedicated educator, Shange has taught courses in literature, feminist aesthetics and performance art at Rice University, Villanova and the Maryland Institute of Art. She has received the Medal of Excellence from Columbia University, the 1993 Lila Acheson Wallace Reader's Digest Award, as well as honorary degrees from the University of Missouri and Haverford College.

Shange's performance is sponsored by Coastal's chapter of the NAACP, the Student Government Association, the African American Association, the School of Humanities and Fine Arts, the Cultural Affairs Committee and the Office of Minority Student Services.
