New members appointed to Higher Education Commission

Thomas Eshleman, Delan Stevens and John M. Vaught III have been named to the Horry County Higher Education.

The Horry County Higher Education Commission was formed in 1959 by the South Carolina General Assembly to develop higher education opportunities in the county. The organization has played a significant role in the development of Coastal Carolina University.

Thomas Eshleman of Myrtle Beach is a health inspector for the South Carolina Department of Health and Environmental Control. He earned a bachelor's degree in general business from Coastal Carolina University in 1989.

Delan Stevens of Conway is an office sales group leader at Coastal Federal Savings Bank. He earned a bachelor's degree in political science from Coastal Carolina University in 1979. Stevens is a past president of the Conway Jaycees and a past member of the board of directors of the Conway Chamber of Commerce.

John M. Vaught III of Conway is head of the Electronic Engineering Technology Department at Horry Georgetown Technical College. He earned a bachelor's degree in electrical engineering in 1973 and a master's degree in electrical engineering in 1994, both from the University of South Carolina. Vaught is president of the Conway Area Chamber of Commerce and the Waccamaw Sertoma Club.

Other members of the Horry County Higher Education Commission are: J. Keith Blanton, James T. Carroll, William F. Davis, John Dawsey, Robert Elvington, Joan Gause, J.C. Hipp, R. Bruce Langston, Daniel W.R. Moore Sr., Julie S. Parker, Robert Rabon and George L. Williams Sr. Ex-officio members are: Johnny C. Allen, Clay D. Brittain, Tracy Edge, H. Franklin Burroughs, Ronald R. Ingle and Gerrita Postlewait.

The Horry County Higher Education Commission meets quarterly. ♦

Noted South Carolina historian to speak at Coastal Historian Walter B. Edgar, a noted authority on South Carolina history, will deliver two lectures on the topic "South Carolina's Search for Order and Community" on April 13 and April 27 at Coastal Carolina. The lectures are free and open to the public.

Edgar will lecture on the following topics:

- "Ignited by War: Economic Development and Social Change" – Monday, April 13 at 3 p.m. in Admissions Building 003.
- "Changes and Challenges: South Carolina Today" – Monday, April 27 at 3 p.m. in the Wall School of Business Auditorium.

Walter Edgar is Claude Neuffer Professor of History and director for the Institute of Southern Studies at the University of South Carolina. He has written a new history of South Carolina which is scheduled to be published in autumn 1998 by the University of South Carolina Press.

Edgar is the author or editor of 14 books on South Carolina and the American South. He founded and served as the first director of USC's acclaimed Public History Program.

Edgar's lectures are sponsored by the Waccamaw Center for Cultural and Historical Studies, the research center for Coastal's School of Humanities and Fine Arts. The center is directed by Charles Joyner, Burroughs Distinguished Professor of Southern History and Culture.

Doing business on the Internet is seminar topic

Coastal Carolina University and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce will present a live distance learning event, "Searching for the Online Goldmine: Making Money and Growing Your Business on the Internet" on Wednesday, April 8 from 12:30 to 3:30 p.m. in the Wall Auditorium. This program, sponsored by IBM, will teach participants how to capitalize on the Internet's unique networking and marketing capabilities.

Participants will learn from case studies of business owners who use the web creatively as well as from a panel of presenters including webmasters and representatives from IBM. Sherry Henry, assistant administrator for the Small Business Administration's Office of Women-Owned Businesses, will serve as one of the panelists.

The seminar will offer advice on how to reach new markets and tap into the vast array of information available on the Internet. Other topics include security, common obstacles and the importance of updating a web site.

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce is the world's largest business federation, representing more than 3 million businesses and organizations of every size, sector and region.

Joseph W. Holliday Endowed Scholarship established

A $30,000 scholarship honoring the late Joseph W. Holliday has been established at Coastal Carolina University to benefit deserving students from Aynor High School.

The Joseph W. Holliday Endowed Scholarship was created by members of Joseph W. Holliday's immediate family in order to provide higher education opportunities for Aynor area students. The scholarship will provide an annual award of $1,000 or more beginning May 1998.

A native of Galivants Ferry, Joseph W. Holliday was one of the original founders of Coastal Carolina University. He served on the Coastal Educational Foundation, Inc., in many capacities, including chairman, from 1954 until his death in 1981.

For more information about the Joseph W. Holliday Endowed Scholarship, contact Coastal's Office of University Advancement at extension 2007. ♦

Conway author to give public reading

Conway native Sheri Reynolds, whose 1995 novel The Rapture of Canaan was chosen as an Oprah Winfrey Book Club selection last year, will read from her works on Friday, April 17 at 6 p.m. in Wheelwright Auditorium. The event is free and open to the public.

A 1985 graduate of Conway High School, Reynolds' other novels include Bitterroot Landing (1994) and A Gracious Plenty (1997). Reynolds earned a bachelor's degree from Davidson College in 1989 and a master's degree from Virginia Commonwealth University in 1992. She is an assistant professor of creative writing at Old Dominion University in Norfolk and a visiting assistant professor of English at The College of William and Mary.

For more information, contact Jill Sessoms, chair of Coastal's Department of English, at extension 2432. ♦

Cultural Celebration to be held in Spadoni Park

Coastal Carolina University's seventh annual Cultural Celebration festival will be held Wednesday, April 8 from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. in Spadoni Park. The event is free and open to the public. Ethnic foods and arts and crafts will be on sale throughout the day.

"As the Grand Strand continues to expand, the variety of cultures represented in the area increases as well," said Geoff Parsons, director of Coastal's International Programs and co-chair of the event. "This festival is a great opportunity to experience the food, clothes, music and customs of many diverse cultures." The event is being co-chaired by Erica Jones, a sophomore psychology major from West Palm Beach, Fla.

The festival will feature entertainment from many international cultures. Scheduled performers include: Mariachi Juvenil Guadalajara, a Mexican mariachi band; Coastal's Baháí Club, which will perform a set of step dances and Middle Eastern dances; the Coastal Carolina University Gospel Choir; All 'Dat Jazz, Coastal's vocal jazz ensemble; Myrtle Beach Regional Pipe Band; Caribbean Steel and Strings, an authentic steel band from Trinidad; Killamanjaro, an African drum and dance band; and a jazz dance group from Myrtle Beach High School.

Ethnic foods will be provided by Broadway Bluz/Thai Cafe, KNH/Middle East Restaurant, Tienda La Chilanquita Mexican Restaurant, Yum Young's Barbecue, Philoptochos, a Greek women's club, will sell Greek pastries and coffees; and Scott's British Shoppe will sell desserts.

Other vendors participating in the festival include: Evan's Book Outlet, Yofi Silver Jewelry, Reggae Vibes (CDs and tapes), The Vision Village (arts and crafts) and Campus Cargo and The Greek Shop (Greek merchandise).

In case of inclement weather, the event will be postponed until April 15.

For more information, contact Pat Singleton-Young at extension 2304 or Geoff Parsons at extension 2054. ♦

Professor publishes two new books

Charles Joyner, Burroughs Distinguished Professor of Southern History and Culture at Coastal Carolina University, has two new book length publications in print.

Joyner's new edition of Julia Peterkin's Green Thursday has been published by the University of Georgia Press, and his book Southern Writers and their Worlds has been announced for an April release in paperback by Louisiana State University Press.

A summer resident of Murrells Inlet, Julia Peterkin (1880 - 1961) used the Waccamaw region as the setting for her three classic novels Black April, Bright Skin and Scarlet Sister Mary, winner of the 1929 Pulitzer Prize for fiction. These books also have been reissued in new editions by the University of Georgia Press.

Peterkin's first book, Green Thursday, was a story-cycle, a form developed by James Joyce in Dubliners and perfected by William Faulkner in Go Down, Moses

Information sessions about bachelor's degree program

Coastal Carolina University offers an information session outlining a unique degree program which enables adults to earn a Bachelor's of Arts in Interdisciplinary Studies degree (BAIS). The program is designed especially for individuals who: need a bachelor's degree in order to compete for better jobs, have a college background but wish to obtain a degree, need to arrange classes around work schedules, have long-range plans for attending graduate school, or are interested in enhancing communication skills.

Information sessions outlining the BAIS program requirements will be held on April 9, May 14, June 11, July 16 and Aug. 13 in the Wall School of

The changing college student topic of teleconference

An interactive teleconference, "The Changing American College Student: Implications for the Freshman Year and Beyond," will be broadcast Tuesday, April 21 from 1 to 4 p.m. in ADM 003. The program, which is free and open to faculty and staff, is designed to help participants understand the characteristics and expectations of today's college students.

The teleconference is based on the nationally known 32-year Cooperative Institutional Research Program study of the changing characteristics of American freshman, developed by Alexander W. Astin and directed by Linda Sax; the 26-year history of the freshman seminar at the University of South Carolina, directed by John Gardner; and research conducted since 1987 by the National Resource Center for The Freshman Year

Women's Advocacy Center sponsors "Garden of Hope" dedication

Coastal's Women's Advocacy Center will sponsor a "Garden of Hope" dedication Wednesday, April 15 at 12:30 p.m. in Spadoni Park. The ceremony is being held in conjunction with Victims' Rights Week, April 15 to 18. Students, faculty and staff are invited to attend.

The program will include two speakers who will briefly share a message of hope for victims of abuse or violence. The Women's Advocacy Center strives to draw attention to the problem of domestic violence and abuse against women and to affirm the campus' commitment to recognize this growing problem and work towards

Self-defense class for women offered

Would you know how to effectively defend yourself in case you are attacked? Don't wait until it's too late to find out.

and by Eudora Welty in The Golden Apples.

In his foreward, Joyner points out that Peterkin was acclaimed by such reviewers as W.E.B. DuBois for her acute portraits of African American life in her native South Carolina, free from the sentimental and demeaning stereotypes prevalent in her time.

Joyner's book Southern Writers and their Worlds was co-written with Christopher Morris, Susan A. Eacker, Anne Goodwyn Jones and Bertram Wyatt-Brown. According to one reviewer, these five historians and literary critics are "redrawing the landscape of the literary South."

Another critic notes that "Charles Joyner offers an eloquent look at Nat Turner's insurrection of 1831 and William Styron's 1967 novel about the event, providing a much-needed reassessment of Styron's controversial decision to write The Confessions of Nat Turner in the first person." ♦

Business Building, room 118. All sessions will be held at 6:15 p.m.

The BAIS degree at Coastal is a structured but flexible program that allows individuals to design a degree incorporating prior education and work experiences while addressing career aspirations. Courses are available through a combination of day, evening and Independent Distance Learning classes in order to accommodate the diverse schedules and educational needs of adult learners.

Experience and Students in Transition on a variety of programs designed to improve the first college year.

The teleconference will be moderated by Carolyn Sawyer with Astin, Sax, Gardner, David B. Ellis and Carolyn Sawyer.

Participants will have the opportunity, via telephone and facsimile, to pose campus-specific questions to the panelists.

Topics to be addressed include a variety of questions and issues such as who today's new students are and how college can make a difference for these students. Past, present and future trends also will be discussed.

For more information about either teleconference, contact Joe Mazurkiewicz at extension 2315 or Tammy Ott at extension 2941. ♦ prevention. An interpretive dance also will be part of the program. Participants will be invited to remember and honor a female victim of violence with a flower in the "Garden of Hope."

Select members of the Board of Advisers of the Women's Advocacy Center are available to speak to classes or small groups on the subject of abuse and violence against women.

For more information, contact Stacy Cretzmeyer at extension 2900. ♦

The cost is $20 per student which includes an instruction manual and incidentals.

Faculty and staff are encouraged to submit information to be included in the "Coastal Carolina People" section of On Campus. Information will be published following the presentation or activity.

Peter Balsamo presented "Coastal Carolina University Independent Distance Learning Program: The 80/20 Principle" at the Alliance 2020 Distance Education conference held in Myrtle Beach.

Pat Bennett and Geoff Parsons organized the fifth annual South Carolina International Studies Conference held at Columbia College, March 28. Steve Nagle is the executive director of the South Carolina Consortium for International Studies (SCCIS), which is an organization comprising 17 members colleges and universities. The primary mission of SCCIS is to develop global perspectives and wider cross-cultural understanding by stimulating interest in international studies throughout the state and at all academic levels. The collaborative effort of business and community leaders with educators at different levels offers the best mix for the analysis and evaluation of internationalization issues affecting our state and nation. The conference theme was "Good Ideas for Internationalizing the Curriculum, the Community, and the Workplace." More than 100 participants represented the state's universities, colleges, technical colleges, high schools, middle schools and churches. Undergraduates from more than six countries also attended. Coastal was represented by two faculty members, two staff members and five students.

Nancy H. Burton has been re-elected to a fifth term on the South Carolina Executive Board for the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation, and has served as an officer for four years. She also has served on the March of Dimes Horry County Executive Board for 11 years.

Stacy Cretzmeyer was named a member of the editorial board of The Family Journal, an international publication of the International Association of Marriage and Family Counselors. She also recently attended the 1998 Annual Conference of the Southern College Health Association, "Expanding the Paradigm: Mind, Body, Spirit" held at Duke University. At the conference, she also met with the Eating Disorders Treatment Team and the director of the Women's Center at Duke to learn more about current approaches to counseling students with eating disorders on university campuses.

Eddie Dyer has had an article accepted by the Education Law Reporter and the Education Law Quarterly, publications of the West Company of St. Paul, Minn. The article, "The Banning of Confederate Symbols in the Public Schools: Preventing Disruption or Avoiding Discomfort?" deals with the First Amendment rights of public school students to symbolic political expression.

Sharon Gilman and Rob Young served as scientific and rules judges at the National Ocean Sciences Bowl (NOSB) held at the University of South Carolina in March. Coastal students Becky Green, Larissa Muollo and Heather Phillips, served as team score runners. The NOSB is intended to broaden the awareness and understanding of our dependency on the oceans and the critical value of ocean research among high school student, educators, parents, as well as the public, and to recognize excellence among students interested in ocean studies and to help them become the next generation of marine scientist and leaders.

Gary Kritz has been accepted into the Visiting Professor Program, sponsored by The Advertising Educational Foundation for Summer 1998. This competitive internship program places professors from various disciplines, including marketing, advertising and management, in real life advertising agencies, media departments of consumer packaged goods and/or pharmaceutical companies, or market research firms for a period of three weeks. Professors are integrated into on-going projects and work in teams for perspective clients. The experiences are then brought back to the classroom and integrated into appropriate curriculums. Kritz also had a paper, titled "Product Trial Attribute Framing Effects: An Extension," published in the Journal of Business and Behavioral Sciences, Fall 1997 edition. This refereed journal accepts papers from management, marketing, finance, accounting, MIS and sociology.

Elizabeth Puskar presented a workshop session at the annual Women in Psychology meeting held in Baltimore. Puskar presented the programs and activities which are included in the National Science Foundation (NSF) grant awarded to Mary Crowe and Sally Hare, discussing her role as evaluator of certain segments of the grant.

Sylvia Kenig Snyder attended the annual meeting of the Association for Gerontology in Higher Education held in Winston-Salem, N.C., March 19 to 22. She participated in a workshop on Social Security and attended sessions on women's retirement and related issues.

Joan Piroch was recently elected chair-elect of the Association of Heads of Departments of Psychology (AHDP). The organization is part of the Southeastern Psychological Association. The AHDP currently represents 271 colleges and universities in 13 states. Piroch will serve as chair-elect for 1998-1999, and will chair the organization from 1999 to 2001.

Subhash Saxena presented the opening plenary address at the 77th annual meeting of the Southeastern Section of the Mathematical Association of America, held in Charleston, March 13 and 14. His address was titled "A New Paradigm for Teaching and Research in Geometry." As a member of the executive committee, Saxena was actively involved in the deliberations of the executive committee and also participated in the departmental liaisons' breakfast.

Sharon Thompson presented a paper, "Sociocultural Influences on the Desire to be Thin Among Seventh Graders," at the Ninth Annual Art and Science of Health Promotion National Conference held in Monterey, Calif., March 26. Thompson also has been serving as an editorial consultant for Sex Roles: A Journal of Research for articles related to body image and eating disorders.
