Clothing, supplies needed for Afghanistan children

Professor Alan Case is back in Afghanistan and asking faculty, staff and students to help with a drive for children's clothing and school supplies. Needed are shoes and clothes, both new and "gently used" but clean, as well as pens, pencils, paper, notebooks and the like. "It is hard for me to describe the level of poverty and destruction that is present," writes Case, who is serving his second tour of duty in Afghanistan. Clothing and supplies may be dropped into a box in the lobby of Wheelwright Auditorium during working hours. Monetary contributions may also be made, and buckets will be passed at sports games and around campus. The drive will continue through February.

Be a CCU ECO-Rep

Coastal students can earn extra money and help make CCU more environmentally friendly by becoming ECO representatives.

ECO representatives are students who learn about environmental issues and organize environmental actions in their residence halls and around campus. Participants learn to help bring about individual change on campus and become stewards for the environment. If interested, attend a meeting on Monday, Feb. 6 at 4 p.m. in Edwards, room 164.

Nominations sought for Lackey award

Nominations are being sought for the Ronald D. Lackey Service Award, which will be presented at the annual Honors Convocation on Tuesday, April 25. Only students who are nominated will be considered. You are invited to nominate students who meet the following criteria:

- in good academic standing
- will graduate in May 2006 or December 2006
- have been significantly involved in campus organizations
- have provided leadership and service that has benefited the campus
- have contributed significantly to the quality of campus life

Nominations are due by 4:30 p.m. on Friday, Feb. 24. Information forms from nominees are due by 4:30 p.m., on Friday, March 24.

Nomination forms are located at: <http://www.coastal.edu/students/affairs/lackeyaward>.

Treelee MacAnn is currently exhibiting a screenprint, Route 104 Along the Glacial Ridge #1, in the 19th Parkside National Small Print Exhibition at the University of Wisconsin-Parkside in Kenosha, Wisc.

She is also exhibiting two screenprints at the Danforth Museum of Art in Framingham, Mass. The exhibit is titled The New Landscape, a Boston Printmakers juried member's show. The exhibit runs from Jan. 29 to April 2.

MacAnn recently juried "Watermark 2006, Works on Paper," a National Juried Exhibition at Southeastern Community College in Whiteville, N.C. The show runs from Feb. 6 to March 3. Approximately 150 works were submitted from within the United States. Twenty-nine works were selected for exhibition and present a wide range of media including: printmaking, drawing, watercolor, photography, collage and digital art.

Charles Wright has been elected chair of the new county arts organization, Horry County Arts and Cultural Events (ACE). A board of directors has also been elected, and the organization is working to build ACE as a strong advocate and support mechanism for all arts groups and individuals in Horry County.

To my Coastal Carolina University Family,
Please know that your visits, calls, cards and all other expressions of kindness are helping my family and me find comfort in our very challenging time. We are very grateful.
Sincerely,

Preston L. McKever-Floyd
