Coastal Theater presents production of early Brecht play "In the Jungle of the Cities"

An early play by the eminent German playwright Bertolt Brecht, In the Jungle of the Cities, will be presented in an experimental production by Coastal Carolina University Theater Friday, April 16 and Saturday, April 17 at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday, April 18 at 3 p.m. in Wheelwright Auditorium. Admission is $8; $5 for non-Coastal students; Coastal students are admitted free.

"In the Jungle of the Cities, Brecht's third play, about Chicago gangsters in the early years of this century, has all the strengths and weaknesses of an early work by a great playwright," said David Millard, co-director of the production with Robin Edwards Russell. "All his revolutionary themes and ideas are present in an embryonic form."

Bertolt Brecht (1898-1956), considered one of the most original playwrights of the first half of the 20th century, used the theater as a forum for his Marxist-influenced theories about society, politics, and philosophy. His best known works include The Threepenny Opera (1928), Mother Courage and Her Children (1941) and The Caucasian Chalk Circle (1948).

In keeping with Brecht's defiance of traditional theatrical conventions, Coastal's production will employ unorthodox techniques. Mike Gilbert, assistant professor of German, adapted the text for this production by comparing three standard translations with the original. Although In the Jungle of the Cities will be presented in English (except for several short connective speeches in German), the text of the play will be projected on a screen as the action progresses on the stage. The sets by Andrew Wilson, instructor of art, and the costumes by Babs Patrick recall the dada art movement of the 1920s. The sound environment for the production is created by Coastal alumnus Steven Sadler. The lighting design is by Brian Carter.

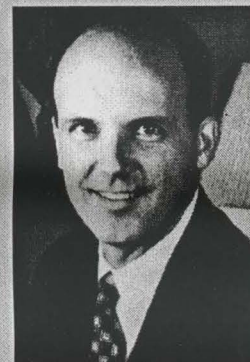

The cast is composed of 13 Coastal students, including Kris Lauber and Ashley Cribb in the leading roles. "The students have been wonderfully responsive to this project," said Millard. "It is a 'laboratory' production in the best sense of the word, and the most interesting and challenging project Robin Russell and I have directed in my 15 years at Coastal."

For ticket information, contact the Wheelwright Box Office at extension 2502.

Coastal hosts 1999 Coastal Economic Conference

"Managing Change" is the theme of Coastal's 1999 Coastal Economic Conference, scheduled for Thursday, April 8 from 2 to 5 p.m. in the Wall Auditorium. The conference will feature presentations by area business leaders on the challenges area business and organizations face in keeping pace with the rapid growth of the area and the continuous development of new technologies. Presented by the E. Craig Wall Sr. School of Business Administration at Coastal, the annual seminar focuses on business-related issues in the Horry County-Grand Strand area.

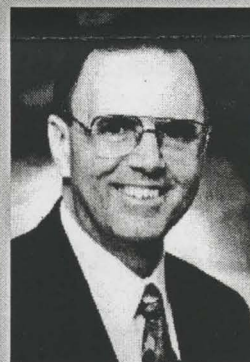

Presenters at the 1999 conference include:

• W. Jennings Duncan, president of Conway National Bank

• Harold C. Stowe, president and CEO of Canal Industries, Inc.

• Douglas P. Wendel, president and CEO of Burroughs and Chapin Company, Inc.

The event is free and open to the public but registration is required. For more information or to register, contact the Wall School of Business at extension 2071.

Coastal's Cultural Celebration festival features food, music, entertainment

Coastal's eighth annual Cultural Celebration festival will be held Wednesday, April 14, on the Coastal campus. The day-long festival will include ethnic food and entertainment from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. in Spadoni Park. A concert of international music by Coastal faculty and students will follow in Wheelwright Auditorium at 3 p.m. The festivities will conclude with a performance by the Chuck Davis African American Dance Ensemble in Wheelwright Auditorium at 6 p.m. All events are free and open to the public. Food, books and other merchandise will be available for sale.

"Each year we organize this colorful event to celebrate the richness and diversity of the many cultures that make up this country and the world," said José Sanjinés, co-chair of the event. "We will have food, dance, music and, with a little luck, lots of sunshine and warm hearts." Latrice Bell, a junior political science major from Mullins, S.C., is also co-chairing the event.

The festival will feature entertainment from many international cultures. Scheduled performers include: the Lowcountry Pipers, a troupe of bagpipers who will perform traditional Scottish music; John Lehotsky, an accordionist specializing in Italian, Irish, Polish and German music; and "Zanobia" (Marshall Easterling), who will perform Middle Eastern dances including sword balancing.

"Music in the European Tradition," a concert in Wheelwright Auditorium from 3 to 4 p.m., will feature Coastal music faculty David Bankston, Anne Denbow-Gilbert, Philip Powell and Gary Stegall as well as Coastal students Chris Bergamo, Beth Johnson, Scarlet Lee and Kristen Pino. They will perform songs in Spanish, French, German and Latin.

The nationally acclaimed Chuck Davis African American Dance Ensemble will perform authentic African dances from 6 to 7:30 p.m. in Wheelwright Auditorium.

In case of inclement weather, the outdoor portion of the event will be held on April 21. The concert and the Chuck Davis African American Dance Ensemble performance will take place as scheduled on April 14.

For more information, contact Pat Singleton-Young at extension 2304.

Coastal Carolina People

Faculty and staff are encouraged to submit information to be included in the "Coastal Carolina People" section of On Campus. Information will be published following the presentation or activity.

- John Beard and Jill Sessoms recently attended the Conference of College Composition and Communication held in Atlanta, March 25-27.
- Darla Domke-Damonte presented "Reviewing Scientific Papers" at the Southwest Academy of Management (SWAM) meeting in Houston, Texas, March 11-13.
- Ed Dyer, Paul Peterson and Jack Riley attended and participated in the 1999 Annual Meeting of the South Carolina

Political Science Association which was held at Coastal on Feb. 27. Dyer chaired the panel and presented, "Teaching American Government: Methods and Outcomes." Peterson served as program chair for the meeting and also served as moderator of a plenary session on the 1998 elections in South Carolina. Peterson also was elected president of the association. Riley presented "A New Case Born in the City: The Teaching of Machiavelli's Dramas." James Henderson served as chair of the association's Undergraduate Paper Competition Committee.

Trio to perform chamber music at Coastal

The Beau Geste Trio will perform an afternoon of chamber music Sunday, April 11 at 3 p.m. in Coastal's Wall Auditorium. The concert, featuring works by Haydn, Weber, Ravel and Norman Dello Joio, is free and open to the public.

Members of the trio are Kay Borkowski, flute; Robert Jesselson, cello; and Gary Stegall, piano. They will be joined by soprano Susan Lyle.

Stegall, assistant professor of piano/music history, said that this concert will mark the trio's first performance in 18 years. "We used to perform together quite frequently when we were all members of the S.C. Chamber Orchestra Soloists," he said. The name of the group, "Beau Geste," was arrived at by combining the first two letters of each member's surname, according to Stegall. "Of course we had to fiddle with the spelling to make it work."

Kay Borkowski has been the principal flutist of the Jacksonville Symphony, the Fort Wayne Philharmonic, the Augusta Symphony and the South Carolina Philharmonic. She has taught at Columbia College, the University of South Florida and Ohio University.

Robert Jesselson is a professor of music at the University of South Carolina, where he teaches cello and plays in the American Arts Trio. He has been principal cellist of the Orquesta-Sinfonica de Las Palmas in Spain and has performed in recital and with orchestras in Europe, Asia, South America and the United States. In 1998 he was elected national president of the American String Teacher Association.

Gary Stegall has appeared at the Piccolo Spoleto Festival USA and has been a guest artist with the dePasquale String Quartet of the Philadelphia Orchestra, the Los Angeles Solo Repertory Orchestra, the Washington Metropolitan Orchestra, the Charleston Symphony and the Greenville Symphony. He also serves as organist for the First United Methodist Church of Myrtle Beach.

Susan Lyle has performed with the Baltimore Opera Company, the Annapolis Opera, the Calgary Bach Festival Society and the Handel Choir of Baltimore. She was a first place winner in the Annapolis Opera competition and has been a fellowship recipient at the Tanglewood Festival in Massachusetts.

New scholarship opportunities for adult students

Two new scholarships are now available to Coastal's adult students as a result of Coastal's recent affiliation with the Alpha Sigma Lambda (ASL) national honor society.

Students who are at least 22 years old and have a cumulative 3.4 grade point average in at least 30 graded semester hours may apply for one of the seven national ASL Education Foundation scholarships of $900. The scholarships are for the 1999-2000 academic year. Application forms are available at the following Web site: <http://www.ciu.edu/~alsiglam>. Submit completed application forms to Peter Balsamo by Wednesday, April 21. The Registrar's Office must verify grade point average and graded credit earned before the application is submitted. Sealed official transcripts must be attached to the application.

In addition, Coastal's Alpha Pi chapter of ASL has established an incentive scholarship for adults beginning or returning to college to earn a bachelor's degree. Only students age 25 years or older may apply. The award is for up to $500 per semester and the application deadline for the fall 1999 semester award is July 2. For an application, contact Linda Ford at extension 2093.

Continuing adult students, 25 and older, also may compete for the Will Garland Scholarship, established in 1998.

For more information, contact Linda Ford at extension 2093.

Coastal hosts international conference

Coastal Carolina University hosted a gathering of Great Britain's foremost scholars recently at a conference of BrANCH (British American Nineteenth-Century Historians).

Charles Joyner, Burroughs Distinguished Professor of Southern History and Culture, served as host for the event. "This meeting was a real coup for Coastal," he said. "This is the first meeting BrANCH has ever held on this side of the Atlantic ocean, and it is one of the greatest gatherings of British and American scholars ever held anywhere."

Such notable British scholars as Peter Parish of Cambridge, Richard Carwardine of the University of Sheffield, Donald Ratcliffe of the University of Durham, and Michael Tadman of the University of Liverpool, met with such distinguished American counterparts as C. Vann Woodward of Yale, William W. Freehling of the University of Kentucky, Bertram Wyatt-Brown of the National Humanities Center, and Orville Vernon Burton of the University of Illinois.

MUSC professor to give talk at Coastal about region's high stroke rate

Daniel Lackland, associate professor of epidemiology at the Medical University of South Carolina, will give a talk in Coastal's Wall Auditorium on "The Burden of Stroke and Hypertension in the Pee Dee and Other Regions of South Carolina." The lecture is scheduled for Wednesday, April 14 at 7 p.m. as part of the induction ceremony for Coastal's chapter of Alpha Kappa Delta, an international sociology honor society. The event is free and open to the public.

The Pee Dee region of South Carolina has a very high stroke rate, according to Dr. Lackland. His talk will focus on the epidemiology of hypertension and other medical problems associated with strokes. He will present data from his research and suggestions about what can be done to combat the problem.
