Presidential Search campus forums held

A series of forums have been held on campus over the summer months on Coastal's presidential search.

Forums remaining in August will provide an opportunity for faculty and students to voice their opinions on what attributes the next president should have. The time and place will be announced soon.

The executive search firm has been conducting the meetings; the firm works closely with the 12-person search committee that will ultimately make the recommendation to the board of trustees. Comments made in the meetings are recorded anonymously with respect to individuals and the areas they represent.

Last week's staff meeting included discussion of whether the new president should be from the South or South Carolina, the importance of vision, team building and community involvement.

HCHEC hosts independence luncheon

Fifteen years ago, on July 23, 1991, the HEHEC joined by the Coastal Educational Foundation passed a motion to "begin the process of establishing Coastal Carolina College as a free-standing, independent, state-supported institution of higher learning..."

To mark the anniversary of Coastal's establishment of independence as an institute of higher learning separate from the University of South Carolina system, the Horry County Higher Education Commission is hosting a luncheon for those who were in attendance at the 1991 meeting on Monday, July 24 at 11:30 a.m. in the Brooks Stadium Hospitality Suite.
