Commencement exercises set for May 6

Catherine H. Lewis

Coastal Carolina will recognize approximately 329 candidates for graduation during commencement exercises Saturday, May 6 at 10 a.m. at the campus soccer stadium. The public is welcome.

Clemson University President Philip H. Prince will deliver the commencement address.

Prince was named the 12th president of Clemson University Sept. 30, 1994. Prince has a long history of support for higher education through years of service as a member of the Clemson University Board of Trustees and the Clemson University Foundation Board of Directors.

Prince has been self-employed from 1985 to 1994 as a business consultant/investor based in Mount Pleasant, S.C. He was president and vice president of Synco Properties in Charlotte, N.C. from 1983 to 1985; senior vice president of the American Express Company in New York from 1978 to 1983; and vice president of Milliken and Company of Spartanburg from 1967 to 1978.

Prince earned a bachelor's degree from Clemson University in 1949. He has undertaken graduate studies at Columbia University-NYC School of General Studies, King College in Bristol, Tenn., and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill's Executive Program. He will receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Public Service.

Catherine Heniford Lewis served as the head librarian for the Horry County Memorial Library for 27 years, from 1960 to 1987. She was librarian at Coastal Carolina Junior College in 1958 to 1960. Lewis also was reviewer and bibliographer for the U.S. Information Agency, assistant librarian for the School of Advanced International Studies in Washington, D.C., and bibliographer for the Library of Congress Copyright Office.

Lewis is a member of the board of directors of Pee Dee Heritage Center. She has been a lecturer at Coastal and has served as chair of the board of directors of Playcard Environmental Education Center.

The South Carolina State Library presented Lewis with its Distinguished Service Award in 1987. Lewis received the Community Award of Merit from Coastal Carolina College in 1984, and the institution named her an Honorary Founder in 1990. In 1993, she received the Waccamaw Award in recognition of distinguished contributions to the study of Southern history from what is now Coastal's Waccamaw Center for Cultural and Historical Studies. She also has received the Ernest Edward Richardson Award for service to the Horry

R. Cathcart Smith

County Historical Society, and the Coastal Educational Foundation, Inc., Award. Lewis received the Field and Herald Woman of the Year Award for the first time in 1973, and again in 1982.

Lewis received a bachelor's degree in English and Latin from Coker College in 1943, a master's degree in English from the University of North Carolina in 1945, and a bachelor's degree in library science from the University of North Carolina in 1948.

Lewis lives in Conway.

Lewis will receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters.

R. Cathcart Smith was appointed by former Gov. Carroll D. Campbell Jr. to serve as a member of the first Board of Trustees of Coastal Carolina University, a position he held from July 1993 until March 1995. As part of his more than 40 years of service to Coastal, Smith also was a founder and first president of the Coastal Educational Foundation, Inc. At the state level, he was vice chair of the South Carolina Board of Education. He was a member of the South Carolina Commission on Higher Education from 1971 to 1978; he served as chair of the commission from 1972 to 1978.

A retired physician, Smith received a bachelor's degree from The Citadel in 1935, and was graduated from Duke Medical University in 1939. In 1975, Smith received the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters from the University of South Carolina. In 1977, he received the honorary degree of Doctor of Science from The Citadel.

In 1985, Smith opened Baskerville Medical Clinic in Pawleys Island to serve the medically indigent of the Waccamaw Neck area.

In 1978, Smith received the Order of the Palmetto, which was established in 1970 by former Gov. John West to recognize distinguished individuals for outstanding service to the state.

Smith lives in Murrells Inlet.

Smith will receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Public Service.

In case of inclement weather, the ceremony will be held in Kimbel Gymnasium; a closed-circuit broadcast also will be shown in Wheelwright Auditorium. Rain tickets for admission to the gymnasium will be issued to degree candidates prior to rehearsal Friday, May 5. ♦

Students awarded for academic achievement at Honors Convocation

The university honored student academic achievement during the annual Honors Convocation held Tuesday, April 25.

The Faculty's Academic Excellence Award recognizes outstanding academic achievement by a senior student. Selected by a faculty committee with representatives from each school of the university, candidates for this award must attain a minimum cumulative grade point average of 3.5, the endorsement of a faculty adviser, and a record of academic honors throughout their enrollment at Coastal.

The 1994-1995 Faculty's Academic Excellence Award recipient is Melissa Keller. Keller is a marine science major from Cincinnati, Ohio. She recently received an award for her presentation at the South Carolina Academy of Sciences meeting in Greenville, S.C. She is a member of Sigma Zeta Beta Mu national honor society for science and mathematics; Pi Mu Epsilon national honor society for mathematics; and Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities. Keller has been on the president's and dean's academic honor lists at Coastal. She has been awarded several scholarships including the Santee Cooper Environmental Scholarship, Nelson Scholarship and the Cincinnati Scholarship Foundation. Keller has been a student government representative and fishing club member. She has volunteered with Coastal's sedimental lab and participated in research expeditions on the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration research ship Ferrel. She works in Coastal's environmental quality lab and the Center for Marine and Wetland Studies.

The Ronald D. Lackey Service Award, named in honor of a retired faculty member and university chaplain, is given to a senior on the basis of conspicuous service to the university through involvement and leadership in campus organizations. Jennifer Agresta, a political science major from Wheeling, W.Va., was presented the Ronald D. Lackey Service Award. Agresta is a member of Alpha Mu Gamma foreign language honor society; Phi Alpha Delta pre-law fraternity; Who's Who Among American Colleges and Universities; and varsity cheerleader captain. She has been on the dean's academic honor list and is a member of Omicron Delta Kappa leadership honor society; serving as secretary of the organization during the 1993-1994 academic year. Agresta has volunteered at the Horry County Shelter Home.

The Coastal Educational Foundation Distinguished Teaching Award recognizes faculty who have demonstrated excellence in teaching. A student committee solicits nominations from students. Top candidates then receive classroom visitations and are interviewed by the committee. The Distinguished Teaching Award was presented to Linda P. Hollandsworth. An associate professor of English, Hollandsworth joined the Coastal faculty in 1985. She received a Ph.D. in English in 1990 from the Indiana University of Pennsylvania, a master's degree in humanities in 1978 from Hollins College in Roanoke, Va., and a bachelor's degree in theater and speech in 1969 from Greensboro College in Greensboro, N.C. She also is the university's NCAA faculty representative.

The Student Affairs Division Award honors faculty who have made significant contributions to the quality of student life through participation and leadership in the co-curricular activities of the university. The recipient of the Student Affairs Division Award for 1994-1995 is Marios I. Katsioloudes. An associate professor of

Freeman receives Distinguished Professor Emeritus title

Retired faculty member Carl J. Freeman Jr. has been named Distinguished Professor Emeritus. Freeman retired in December after almost 25 years of service to the institution. The Board of Trustees approved the honorary title for Freeman at its April 7 meeting.

Freeman joined the Coastal faculty in 1970 as an instructor of biology. He served as assistant dean of the School of Natural and Applied Sciences from 1988 to 1994. He also was pre-medical adviser and Allied Health Science adviser. Freeman is a 1973-1974 Amoco Outstanding Teacher of the Year Award recipient.

According to Betsy Puskar, there are many Coastal science graduates who attribute their success to

Carl Freeman. "He fundamentally guided each student through the trials and tribulations of applying to medical school, many of whom return to Coastal to see Dr. Freeman and thank him for his advice and support."

Freeman received a Ph.D. in biology from the University of South Carolina in 1974, a master's degree in biology from Virginia Polytechnic Institute in 1963, and a bachelor's degree in biology from the University of Virginia in 1960. Before coming to Coastal, Freeman taught at several colleges and universities including Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Presbyterian College, Converse College and the University of South Carolina.

He lives in Conway. ♦

Faculty and students present

Coastal faculty members and students recently presented their work at the South Carolina Academy of Sciences held April 7 in Greenville, S.C.

- Tom Kantz presented "The phylogeny of two classes of green algae based on cladistic analysis of both rRNA gene sequence data and non-molecular data."
- Susan Libes presented her paper "An Undergraduate Program for Training Environmental Chemists."
- Steve Sheel and Benjoe Juliano presented work they co-authored, "The design analysis and implementation of system interfaces that integrate the Magellan AIV-10 GPS Module and Motorola RPM 4051."
- Kathy Taylor presented her research paper, "Factors influencing marsh grass distribution: Herbivory, competition, physical gradients, and interactive effects." Taylor also co-authored two presentations given by biology students working with her:
- Shannon Mullaly presented "The allelopathic effects of black cherry (Prunus serotina) on three test plant species."
- Michelle Stephens presented "Differences in plant species diversity in subcommunities of a Carolina Bay."
- Amy Ferguson, faculty member and director of the Center for Marine and Wetland Studies' Environmental Quality Lab and faculty member, performed analytical work and assisted students Clint Guyton and Melissa Keller with their research papers.
- Clint Guyton presented "The Impact of Stormwater Runoff on the Water Quality of the Waccamaw River."
- Melissa Keller presented "Estuarine Quality Assessment Using A Dual Indicator Approach: Nitrogen and Phosphorus Results." Keller's work was partially funded by a Santee Cooper Environmental Scholarship. Keller's work was judged the best in her section based on the exceptional quality of her research project. She will receive a certificate and cash award funded by SCAS in cooperation with three chapters of Sigma Xi, the Clemson University, Charleston and Central Savannah River Area chapters. ♦

Coastal hosts breakfast for business leaders

Business leaders in Conway have been invited to the second Breakfast with Coastal event, which will be held Wednesday, May 10 on campus. The series is sponsored by volunteer community leadership organization, the Coastal Advancement Advisory Board, and includes breakfasts with business leaders in the Conway, Myrtle Beach and North Myrtle Beach areas.

At each breakfast, President Ingle will discuss the university and its ambitions, and the need for community involvement and support.

The Coastal Advancement Advisory Board is composed of members representing area businesses and professions who are dedicated to maintaining the quality of growth of the university and its academic programs.

For more information about the Breakfast with Coastal Series, call the Office of Institutional Advancement at extension 2007. ♦

Short takes . . .

Process review scheduled for registration system

A registration process review meeting will be held Thursday, May 11 from 11 a.m. to noon in ADM 003. All faculty and staff who register students on the new Datatel system are requested to attend. The meeting is designed to receive information and discuss the new registration process for registering students for classes. For more information or to register for the meeting, contact Tina Davis at extension 2258.

Faculty/staff overpowers alumni in softball game

The faculty/staff team managed to retain the winner's trophy during the annual faculty/staff vs. alumni softball game held Friday, April 21 on campus. The final score was faculty/staff 18 and alumni 17. The faculty/staff team was coached by Eddie Dyer; the alumni team coach was Jody Davis. The coaches named Reggie Bellamy, who kept score and batting line-up information, as the Most Valuable Player. The event was sponsored by the Alumni Association.

Singleton House event planned

Members of the Singleton House are invited to a Pot Luck gathering on Wednesday, May 3 at the Singleton House at 4:30 p.m. Chicken, burgers and hot dogs will be served. Faculty and staff who are not members are invited to join. Membership dues are $25 per year or $15 per semester. For more information, contact Joan Piroch at extension 2271 or John Eberwein at extension 2231.

Salt water fishing

A comprehensive survey of salt water fishing on the Carolina coast will be presented each Thursday, May 11 from 7 to 9 p.m. on campus. The cost is $10; materials are included. Pre-registration is required. The class will be offered each Thursday through July 6. Topics to be discussed are pier, surf, inlet, inshore and offshore fishing, and slow-trolling live-bait techniques for king mackerel and cobia. The program will be presented by Don Millus, founder and director of the Coastal Carolina Invitational, an intercollegiate fishing match and seminar which is in its 22nd year. Millus is the author of Fishing the Southeast

Coast and A Contemplative Fishing Guide to the Grand Strand. To register or for more information, contact Millus at extension 2431 or 248-2845 during evening hours.

Conway High senior awarded CCU scholarship

Conway High School senior Holly Jacobs is the recipient of a four-year full scholarship to Coastal Carolina University sponsored by the Horry County Higher Education Commission. Jacobs was selected on the basis of the score she received at the 16th Annual Mathematics Contest for High School Students, conducted by Coastal's mathematics department and sponsored by GTE. In addition to the Coastal scholarship, Jacobs will receive a $500 GTE scholarship. The competition is held each spring at the university. In 1995, the competition attracted more than 200 students representing 19 middle and high schools.

Coastal student selected to work with AmeriCorps

Coastal student Brandon Flickner has been selected as a Services of AmeriCorps volunteer and service learning coordinator for the Darlington County School District. Flickner, a junior from Cincinnati, Ohio, is studying elementary education.

Coastal is one of three colleges and universities in South Carolina chosen by the federal government to be a recipient of AmeriCorps Service Learning grants.

AmeriCorps is a national service organization initiated by President Clinton in 1993. The program provides students who have completed two to four years of college the opportunity to be employed in South Carolina classrooms developing and implementing creative and productive projects that build unity and pride in their assigned school district. AmeriCorps provides an opportunity for students to earn a $4,700 scholarship fund for college or to pay existing educational loans, while getting hands-on practice with students from all grades and ethnic and cultural backgrounds.

For more information about the program, contact Coastal's AmeriCorps coordinator Karen Carpenter at extension 2663.

Coastal Carolina People in the News

Greg Cole was recently invited to discuss his dissertation, "The Women Poets of the Generation of 1927," with a Spanish Masters class at USC.

Mary Crowe and Sally Hare have received a grant from the American Association of University Women (AAUW). Their project, Jump for the Sun, is designed to encourage girls and women in science and math. The Coastal Carolina chapter of AAUW participated in Ms. Foundation's Take Your Daughter to Work Day on April 27. Fifteen of Coastal's faculty and staff adopted 22 girls from Whittemore Park Middle School. The girls spent the day accompanying their CCU host to classes, meetings and other daily activities.

Ed Cerny presented a speech on Total Quality Leadership at the annual meeting of the Community Financial Institution of South Carolina held April 29 in Hilton Head.

Steve Hamelman's poems, Blue Sunset and My Platonic Pain, have been selected for publication in the 1995 Anthology, In Other Words, which will be published in fall 1995.

Tom Jones chaired a panel and presented a paper, "Landford Wilson's America, A View of the Tally Plays," at the Popular Culture and American Culture Association Conference held recently in Philadelphia, Penn.

Bob Lundgren has joined the Office of the Comptroller as staff accountant. His responsibilities include working with cash balances deposited with the State Treasurer. He also will assume budget duties in assisting the executive vice president for planning and fiscal affairs with implementation of the ten-funds budgets and will be working with budget officers as a budget liaison. Lundgren was employed as controller for the Massachusetts Audubon Society for the past 13 years. His office is located in EMS 234; his campus telephone extension is 2464.

Jim Michie presented a paper, "Diachronic Architectural Change at the Planter's House: The Oaks Plantation," at the 21st Annual Conference on South Carolina Archaeology held recently at USC in Columbia. He also was a discussant and participant in the Workshop/Conference on Prehistoric Ceramics of South Carolina, sponsored by the Archaeology Division of the United States Forestry Commission.

Joyce Parker attended the College Composition and Communication Conference held recently in Washington, D.C. She attended workshops on Teaching English as a Second Language and about student evaluations. Highlights of the conference included presentations by Edward O. Wilson, a Harvard Pulitzer Prize winner who discussed his new book, The Diversity of Life; Joy Harjo, a native American of the Creek tribe who read poetry; and Pam Houston, who presented spectacular settings of the American West and read from her book, Cowboys Are My Weakness.

Nelljean Rice presented a paper, "The Radio Homemakers: On the Air and In the Books," at the Popular Culture Convention in Philadelphia.

Sam Syme has been selected as one of 25 participants in a Quebec Summer Seminar to be held in Montreal and Quebec City from June 14 to 20. Sponsored by the Center for the Study of Canada at SUNY Plattsburgh, the program will include a wide range of topics, including the history and geography of the province, issue of Native relations and the separatist referendum scheduled for fall 1995.

Voice students win awards

Coastal junior Melissa Winslow received an Honorable Mention rating in the National Association of Teachers of Singing (ANTS) Mid-Atlantic Regional Auditions held April 8 at Wake Forest University.

The regional competition includes participants from Maryland, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia and Washington, D.C.

To be eligible for the regional auditions, Winslow competed in auditions at the state level which were held at USC in Columbia in March where she received an Honor rating.

Coastal junior Patricia Collins also competed at the state level and received an Excellent rating.

For the competitions, both Winslow and Collins performed ten to 12 minutes of music from an art song and opera repertoire. Jordan Alexander and alumna Dee Anne Bishop provided piano accompaniment.

Winslow and Collins are students of Karen Berry. ♦

Gerontology course offered

A course, Gerontology for the Service Provider, will be offered May 15 through June 2 as part of the 1995 May semester. The course is available for three hours of undergraduate credit (PSYC 489), or for non-credit. Continuing Education Units will be awarded to those registering for non-credit. The course has been approved by the Board of Social Work Examiners for continuing education for social workers.

The course is designed to provide a comprehensive overview of the process of delivering service to mature adults. Information presented in the course is designed to examine the service delivery process in light of current and future needs of the growing older adult population. Course topics will include:

William E. Hills will instruct the course.

For more information, call the Office of Continuing Education at extension 2665.
