MATHEMATICS PROFESSOR GETS SYSTEM-WIDE AWARD FOR FOUR-YEAR CAMPUSES

Subhash Saxena of the School of Mathematics and Computer Science was named USC-Educational Foundation Distinguished Teacher of the Year for Four-Year Campuses in the University of South Carolina System. This is the second consecutive year a Coastal Carolina College faculty member has received the honor. Last year's "Distinguished Teacher of the Year for Four-Year Campuses" was Claudia Cleary of the School of Humanities. Dr. Saxena went before a 16-member panel in Columbia and gave a presentation followed by a 15-minute question and answer session. Competing for the award with Dr. Saxena were faculty members from USC-Spartanburg and USC-Aiken. "I didn't really think I would win because we won last year," said Dr. Saxena. "I was surprised and told my son, Anil, (a high school student who won Coastal's recent Level II Individual Mathematics Competition) that he wasn't the only one in the family to get awards." Dr. Saxena went to the Columbia competition after being named Coastal's Teacher of the Year.

WKZQ WANTS HELP FROM STUDENT SPORTS FANS

Below is a letter from WKZQ-Radio:

"WKZQ-AM Radio Station is expanding its "SportsScene" and wants help from students looking for starts in a sportscasting career, or who are avid fans keeping up with local golf, tennis, softball, bowling or recreation activities. Many of you have been telling us this area needs a weekly sports program that covers it all; well, we agree. "SportsScene Plus" debuts later this month on WKZQ-AM 1520. It will air every Friday, giving all the local, regional and national sports information you need, plus comments from people directly involved. We also have a different studio guest each week to talk about a local sports event or activity. The program host is Jeff McMurdy, three-time winner of the South Carolina Associated Press Radio Sports Reporting Award. If you would like to get involved in the production of "SportsScene Plus," call Jeff McMurdy between 8 a.m. and 3 p.m. weekdays and let him know what specific sports events you could help with for the broadcast. There is no pay, simply a labor of love with a chance to learn more about broadcasting. The 30-minute show will be uninterrupted by commercials. You can contact McMurdy on the WKZQ Newsline at 626-9821."
