Credit union moving

Carolina Collegiate Credit Union will move from University Hall, room 100 to Sands Hall, the building the post office is located in, at 1 p.m. today, Oct. 29.

"Change A Light" to save energy

Coastal students, faculty and staff can swap out old, energy-inefficient light bulbs for new, energy saving CFL (compact fluorescent light) bulbs on Wednesday, Oct. 31 as part of the "Change A Light" campaign. This energy awareness drive is sponsored by the CCU Campus and Community Sustainability Initiative and Santee Cooper.

To get your new bulbs, drop by Prince Lawn between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. The CFL bulbs, provided by Santee Cooper and the Sierra Club-Winyah Group, cost more than incandescent bulbs but use a fraction of the energy and last 10 times as long.

The Change A Light exchange at CCU recognizes the first anniversary of the dedication of the Green Power Solar Pavilions on East Chanticleer Drive. The bulb campaign is part of the Energy Star program, a federal effort in which more than 900,000 people have pledged to change some 2.3 million light bulbs. The goal of the program is to save more than $61,243,000 in energy costs and prevent more than 955,000 pounds of greenhouse gas emissions nationwide.

For more information, contact Marissa Mitzner, Coastal's student sustainability coordinator, at mgmitzne@coastal.edu.

Montana legislator/professor to speak

Author Franke Wilmer will speak on Thursday, Nov. 1 at 4 p.m. on "Sex, Clones, Free Speech, and Banning the U.N. in the Montana State Legislature." Her talk will focus on connecting local/state politics with global politics. Wilmer is a former chair at the University of Montana and a specialist in human rights research who successfully ran for the Montana state legislature. Wilmer is involved in many local/global issues and has some interesting reflections on how politics is changing at the local level due to global forces and vice versa, according to Pam Martin. The lecture will be in the Edwards Recital Hall with a light reception sponsored by the Globalist Club to follow. This talk is co-sponsored by Women & Gender Studies & Student Activities and Leadership.

Submit poetry, art and short stories to Archarios

The Coastal Carolina literary art magazine, Archarios, is accepting art and literature submissions the week of Nov. 5 to 9. All submissions can be dropped off in the Student Center, room 206-I, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Students may also submit written pieces via e-mail through the Archarios Web site.
