COASTAL CAROLINA COLLEGE

A LETTER FROM THE CHANCELLOR TO FACULTY AND STAFF

In the next few weeks, Coastal Carolina will be completing its Faculty and Staff Annual Giving Campaign. You may wonder why we've asked you to contribute money to the place where you work.

There's a good reason. When we ask people in the community to become benefactors of this institution, we like to tell them that this college gets 100 percent support from those who, other than students, benefit most from these donations. I would like to give a few examples of how faculty and staff are helped by private donations and faculty/staff giving.

When you or your colleagues attend conferences, when you receive faculty/staff tuition assistance, and when you have an opportunity for professional development -- remember that none of this would be possible without private donations.

When you have an exceptional student who makes those other difficult days seem worthwhile -- remember that a scholarship could have been one reason why your student chose Coastal Carolina College over another college.

When you see a play, or hear a well-known lecturer, or bring your students to a musical -- remember that private donations subsidize the cultural arts.

When you see the small touches, something as simple as baskets of flowers at Commencement -- remember that these flowers are made possible through private donations.

The college asks you to show your support of Coastal Carolina College.

We wish to remind you, however, that this is a voluntary program. You do not have to participate. Our zeal for this campaign is not a mandate. In the next few weeks, please give the Faculty/Staff Giving Campaign some serious thought.

Sincerely,
Ronald G. Eaglin

ART ASSOCIATION WORKSHOP

The South Carolina Art Association will sponsor a workshop Saturday, Nov. 9 in the Fine Arts Building. The workshop will be open to eastern region members of SCAEA and to art teachers in Horry, Georgetown and Florence counties. At the conference, Dr. Herb Weigand will present a paper on an integrated art/science course for secondary schools.

ARSON INVESTIGATOR TO SPEAK AT COASTAL

A widely-known investigator of fires started from mysterious origins will hold a seminar at 2 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 7 in room 106 of the Science Building. Dr. Richard Henderson of Southeastern Research Laboratories in Florence is a former professor of chemistry at Francis Marion College. His topic for the seminar will be on fire and arson. The lecture is open to the public.

GUARDIAN AD LITEM CONTACT IS ON CAMPUS

The South Carolina Volunteer Guardian ad Litem Program is a child advocacy volunteer program that in this area will be coordinated by Janie Watson on the USC Coastal Carolina College campus.

Through the program, volunteers are appointed by the court to serve as special advocates for the child in cases of family violence. The volunteers interview the child, the child's parents, teachers, neighbors, and social workers to form independent evaluations of what they believe will be best for the child.

Guardian ad Litem is funded through a contract to the S.C. Joint Legislative Committee on Children to the University of South Carolina TRIO Programs. For details about the program, Watson may be contacted at the college. Her extension is 2903.

COMPUTER SERVICES HAS UNIT FOR DEMONSTRATION

Computer Services Division has acquired an IBM Desk-Top 36 for demonstration purposes. The unit is scheduled to remain at Coastal through Dec. 21. The Desk-Top 36 has an RPG compiler, Displaywrite II, Query, and several IBM 36 utility programs. The unit is in the Micro Lab, EMS 208. Computer Services welcomes those who wish to see and use the equipment.
