Coastal Holds Marine Science Program For Top Junior Scholars

Thirty-one of South Carolina's top ninth grade students are presently attending a two-week Junior Scholars program in marine science at Coastal. The program is offered to the top three percent of rising ninth grade students throughout the state.

The program, which began July 17, allows students to learn about marine science and how understanding the marine processes in the area is critical to the utilization and preservation of the area environments. Students will study biological, geological, chemical, and physical science principles.

Activities include studying the coastal environment, as well as participating in scuba lessons, washovers, crabbing, sediment testing, and wave measurements. Tours are also scheduled throughout the session, and a briefing on beach erosion and management of Folly Beach will be given by Gered Lennon of the South Carolina Coastal Council, Monday, July 25, in Charleston.

Professor Richard Dame, chair of the Science Department at Coastal, is director of the program.

USC Cheerleading Day Camp To Be Held At Coastal

The University of South Carolina Cheerleaders will conduct a day camp at Coastal, Monday, July 25, through Thursday, July 28, from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. in Kimbel Gymnasium. The day camp will be for ages 6 through 18 years of age and is open to individuals as well as cheerleading squads.

Instruction will be conducted in cheers, dance routines, tumbling, partner stunts, and pyramids. Training will include seminars on safety, physical fitness, and a "Just Say No" segment. Participants will be divided by age groups and ability.

There will be a special appearance by the Gamecock mascot, "Cocky," and awards will be presented at the end of the day camp.

Registration forms are available at Coastal's Athletic Department or participants can register on the first day of the day camp. The registration fee is $50 per person, with a limited enrollment.

For further information, contact Bill Boggs, assistant director of the USC Gamecock Club and cheerleading coach/spirit advisor in Columbia, at 777-4276 or 777-8531.
