48 Teams Compete In USC Coastal Carolina College Academic Bowl

The first Academic Bowl at USC Coastal Carolina College, held on Friday, April 28 and Saturday, April 29, had students participating from 48 high schools and middle schools throughout South Carolina and Georgia for academic quiz team competition.

The purpose of the two-day competition was to provide an opportunity where students could be recognized academically in a fun, but challenging atmosphere.

According to Ed Andersen, continuing education coordinator, there was a feeling of excitement on the Coastal campus when the students gathered to compete academically.

Andersen said, "It enabled students to gather with students from other schools in a group setting," he said. "It was a great socialization/learning experience for the students. I was amazed with the students," he said. "It was a joy to have them here on campus."

Dennis Wiseman, dean of the School of Education and Health Professions, and a moderator for the event, said the college recognizes the need for the development of programs such as the academic bowl, for students in the future.

"Coastal Carolina College believes that it has a major responsibility of providing outreach programs that will acknowledge the academic excellence of students throughout the state," said Wiseman. "We would like to make the academic bowl an annual spring event at the college and continue with other academic programs for students."

Students involved in the competition were divided into teams based on grade level. Grades nine through 12 competed in the upper division category, and middle school through ninth grade students competed in the lower division.

Wiseman said that students were very positive and supportive of each other, concentrating on team achievement, rather than individual recognition.

"While all of the students wanted to win, they also wanted others to do well," said Wiseman. "There was a tremendous drive and high energy level among team members and a keen awareness of competitive spirit. It was especially rewarding to see the teams participating from Horry County do so well with St. James Middle School receiving the first place trophy in the lower division competition."

Dr. David Millard, assistant dean of humanities and fine arts and a judge for the competition, also was pleased with the performances from the students.

"One of the real pleasures of being a judge, was noticing that team members were going beyond factual data, and were having a good time," said Millard. "The competition was enormously successful for its first year."

Millard said that the winning team also was able to carry home more than a trophy as first-place achievers.

"We were pleased to initiate and award a full-tuition scholarship to Midland Valley High School from Aiken, South Carolina, the winning upper-division team," said Millard. "The recipient of the scholarship will later be determined by their school."

The top six teams also received trophies and team members each received individual achievement awards.

Others involved with the competition were honor students Michael Brady, William Lewis, Lisa Thompson, Karen Dulik, Stephanie Hatchell, Donna Radcliffe and Todd Ward. Conway High School students Matt Talbert, Cedric Brown and Julie Tardiff were timekeepers and scorekeepers. Conway High School faculty member Irby Koon was a moderator.

Coastal Plantations Golf Tournament To Benefit Program Of Archaeology At Coastal

The first Coastal Plantations Golf Tournament will be held June 17, 1989 at Wachesaw Plantation. This is a benefit to support a program of archaeology at USC Coastal Carolina College to be headed by James L. Michie. Professor Michie has worked over the last several years investigating the sites of colonial and antebellum plantations along the Waccamaw River and has spoken several times at Brookgreen Gardens. An archaeology program at Coastal Carolina College will provide the basis for continued progress in exploring the physical history of this unique area.

The tournament will be open to both men and women with a shotgun start at 9 a.m. The format is 18-hole net stroke play, best ball of the foursome. During the tournament, non-golfers can enjoy a tour, conducted by Professor Michie, of the several archaeological sites at Wachesaw. Immediately following golf, there will be a buffet and awards ceremony on the riverfront deck at Kimbel's.

Tax-free contributions to the Coastal Educational Foundation, Inc. will be $100 per player. Non-golfers can enjoy the buffet for an additional donation of $15. Reservations can be made by calling Nadine Godwin, 349-2014, 448-1481 or 546-0234, ext. 2014, or the Wachesaw Pro Shop, 357-1500 or 1-800-922-5834.

Coastal To Present "A Healthy Lifestyle" Seminars

In an effort to promote a better life through improved health, Coastal will present "A Healthy Lifestyle," a series of free health seminars that are open to the public.

The seminars will be held from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at three locations. The first seminar will be held Monday, May 8 at Loris High School; the second will be held Monday, May 15 at Green Sea-Floyds High School; and the final seminar will be held Monday, May 22 at Aynor High School.

The seminars will discuss several health-related issues that include how to live a healthier life; how emotional well-being affects health; health risk factors; and how to live a longer life.

Dr. Marshall Parker, assistant dean of education and health professions and director of the physical education center at Coastal is coordinator of the seminars.

The seminars are sponsored by The Center for Rural Development through the Department of Education and Health Professions at the college.

For more information, contact Aubie Melot, coordinator of the program, ext. 2617.

Coastal Carolina College Director Receives National Award

Dr. Sally Hare, assistant vice chancellor for academic affairs and director of continuing education and graduate studies, was recently selected as the recipient of a national award from the National University Continuing Education Association (NUCEA) for service to the field of community development practice.

The Service to the Field of Community Development Practice award is given annually to honor the long-term service and achievements of the highest caliber by an individual or individuals to the field of community development practice.

Hare was chosen as this year's recipient based on the quality of work in the Department of Graduate and Continuing Education at Coastal. The department works specifically with teachers, counselors, children at risk, and literacy in the state and region.

Hare will attend the NUCEA conference in Salt Lake City, Utah to accept the award.
