Columbia access numbers change, lines added

To improve telephone capabilities a T1 link has been established between USC Columbia and Coastal. This link increases the number of voice circuits and data transmission speeds between the two campuses. The access code for the Columbia lines have been changed to 51 (replacing 61, 62, 63, and 65).

Faculty and staff are encouraged to use the Columbia lines whenever possible to make all long distance calls. This will save approximately 20 percent of the long distance fees compared to using the Conway lines.

To place a long distance call, dial 51 to access Columbia's switch, then 9 to access a local Columbia line, and then dial 1 plus the number you wish to call.

The access code for the Salkehatchie campus has been changed from 54 to 58. To call Salkehatchie, dial 51 to access the Columbia switch, then dial 58 to access the Salkehatchie switch. You may then dial an extension number or 0 to ring the switchboard.

Alcohol film available

"Chalk Talk Revised" with Father Martin is the seminal film on the disease of alcoholism by one of the most well-known and well-respected educators in the field. Originally entitled "Chalk Talk on Alcohol," the film was made for the U.S. Navy in 1972. It is considered the principal educational vehicle on the subject of alcoholism by the armed services, industry, medical facilities, and treatment centers. It is as accurate today as when it was first produced. The film is an entertaining look at a very serious subject and is appropriate for all audiences.

This film is available on videotape in the media collection and may be requested by title or accession number 902. For more information contact, Margaret Fain, ext. 2410. ∞

Coastal Carolina People

S. Paul Rice, assistant professor of English, was recently named by the South Carolina Arts Commission to its 1990-91 Readers Circuit Roster. Rice and other writers will be available for readings and workshops throughout the state. Rice also gave the opening poetry reading of the 1990 Spoleto Sundown Poetry Series in Charleston. The series began fourteen years ago and had presented festival goers with readings by some of the South's best-known poets.

Paul Peterson, professor of political science, recently received a $4,300 research fellowship grant from the Earhart Foundation to support his work on a book-length manuscript, The Political Science of the Federalist.

Dr. Karen D. Carpenter, assistant professor of nursing, has been elected to the board of directors of the Horry County American Association of Critical Care Nurses. The purpose of this new chapter of AACN is to promote the health and welfare of those experiencing critical illness by advancing the science and art of critical care nursing. Carpenter is also serving on the publicity committee for the chapter.

Dr. Subhash Saxena, professor of mathematics and chair of the department, recently represented Coastal on the locally produced program, Southern Style with Diane DeVaughn-Stokes. Saxena also was interviewed for an article in the The Sun News which related to the math education reforms and math conferences held at Coastal.

Cathy McPherson, public relations director, has been elected vice president for membership of the Coastal Advertising Federation, a local professional organization affiliated with the American Advertising Federation. ∞

Media Collection hours to resume

Media Collection hours through Sunday, August 26 are 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday, closed Saturday and Sunday. Regular fall semester hours will resume Monday, August 27. ∞

Cafeteria to open Oct. 1

Construction on the campus cafeteria is expected to be completed by October 1. Services will resume upon completion of the project. ∞

Coastal hosts Central American students

Coastal is hosting a group of eight students from Central America beginning this month. The Central American Scholarship Program (CASP) has chosen this group of highly motivated young men and women, between the ages of 21 and 25, to study in the United States. After having spent the spring semester at USC Columbia receiving English instruction, these students will spend the 18 months at Coastal taking courses that will prepare them to operate businesses when they return home.

Part of their visit in the U.S. includes living experiences with American families. Coastal's international program is looking for families, particularly in the Quail Creek and College Park areas, who would be interested in sharing their homes with one or more of these students for six months. The program has funds available to compensate host families for additional expenses they incur. After the six-month host family experience, students will move into student housing or make other arrangements for the remainder of their stay.

Anyone interested in the host family program may contact Geoff Parsons, ext. 2054. ∞
