Chancellor gets NCAA post

Chancellor Eaglin has been elected to the 1991 NCAA Presidents Commission.

As one of 44 commission members representing more than 290 NCAA member schools in the nation, Eaglin will serve as an at-large Division I-AAA representative. Coastal is a Division I-AAA non-football member of the NCAA.

"I am flattered that I have been chosen to represent as prestigious an organization as the NCAA. A seat on the NCAA Presidents Commission allows a great opportunity for Coastal to be recognized at the national level," Eaglin said.

Eaglin is the only Division I representative of the 1991 commission from South Carolina. He officially becomes a member of the commission Jan. 7 and will serve a four-year term.

The commission includes representatives from NCAA conferences including the ACC, Big Eight, Big Ten, Big West, Pac-10 and SEC.

To become a commission member, NCAA college or university presidents or chancellors must receive six nominations and then be elected by the presidents or chancellors of member schools.

The primary function of the presidents commission is to represent the interests of presidents and chancellors in major policy issues in college athletics.

Garland gets state continuing education award

Audrey Garland, director of continuing education, has been named the South Carolina Association of Higher Continuing Education's Outstanding Continuing Education Professional.

The award was presented to Garland at the SCAHCE annual conference held in Hilton Head in November.

Garland has spearheaded Coastal's Continuing Education Program from offering 30 short courses to a complex operation of major conferences, credit and non-credit offerings and a number of community service programs. Today, Coastal's Graduate and Continuing Education Center has an enrollment of more than 1,000 graduate students, 500 undergraduate students and 4,000 non-credit students.

Garland has been instrumental in the creation and development of programs including the Conference on Women, Whole Language Conference for Educators, Third Quarter for Senior Citizens, Marine Science for Junior Scholars and the Children at Risk Conference, which has received national and regional honors.

"It is ironic that the quality that makes Garland such an outstanding professional in continuing education too often keeps her from receiving recognition because she is usually behind the scenes, developing programs, supporting faculty and students, finding ways to further continuing education in our state," said Sally Hare, dean of Graduate and Continuing Education at Coastal. "Her concern is promoting programs that support the non-traditional learner and that positively affect the quality of life in our area and in our state," Hare said.

While completing her master's degree from the University of South Carolina, Garland joined the Coastal staff in 1981 as a graduate assistant in the Graduate and Continuing Education Center. Garland is completing her doctorate in education. She earned her bachelor's degree from Winthrop College. ~

NCAA

The commission has the power to: review any activity of the NCAA; place items on the agenda for any meeting of the council or any NCAA convention; commission studies of intercollegiate athletic issues and urge certain courses of action; sponsor legislation and establish final sequence of proposals directly to any NCAA Convention; call a special convention; designate specific proposals for which roll-call vote of eligible voters will be mandatory; and approve the appointment of the NCAA executive director.

The presidents commission is an independent body in relation to the other entities of the NCAA administrative structure. However, it works cooperatively with the NCAA Council, the NCAA Administrative Committee and the national office staff. It is staffed and funded by the association.

Meetings of the presidents commission are usually held three times a year. The 1991 NCAA Convention will be held Jan. 8 in Nashville, Tenn.

Eaglin became chancellor of Coastal in 1985. Under his leadership, Coastal boasts more than 4,100 students today and is one of the fastest growing colleges in the Southeast.

Eaglin has always had an interest in university-level athletics; he was a four-year letterman in tennis while attending Southeast Missouri State University and is presently vice chairman of the Big South Athletic Council. Eaglin has been active over the years in youth soccer, basketball and baseball programs. ~

Coastal offers jazz history class

Coastal is offering a jazz history course, The Organic Evolution of American Indigenous Classical Music. Taught by jazz legend and Surfside Beach resident Doc Holladay, the class will meet Tuesdays from Jan. 15 to April 30 from 7 to 9 p.m.

The three-credit course is open for undergraduate credit as well as for graduate credit. The community is welcome to enroll for the course as a non-credit offering.

Holladay, a baritone saxophonist, has toured with the orchestras of Duke Ellington, Dizzy Gillespie, Tommy Dorsey and Woody Herman, among others. Holladay has recorded and performed with many musicians including Ella Fitzgerald, Herbie Hancock, Dinah Washington and Duke Pearson.

In addition to the saxophone,

Holladay plays clarinet, bass clarinet, flute, oboe and English horn. He has appeared on numerous recordings with many jazz greats, including the Duke Ellington Orchestra.

Holladay earned his Ph.D. in ethnomusicology in 1972 from Wesleyan University. He has taught music in elementary and high schools, colleges and universities.

The course will cover the evolution of jazz from tribal Africa to post-Civil War New Orleans, to Chicago, New York and to Kansas City, through swing, bebop and the avant garde. The course is listed as CMUS 310, Selected Topics for undergraduate credit and as MUSC 544, Topics in Music History for graduate credit.

Michie leads search for nation's oldest settlement

Professor Jim Michie and a team of workers have been in the Georgetown County woods searching for the United States' oldest settlement.

Michie and the team of four hired workers and approximately 35 volunteers are looking for San Miguel de Gualdape, a 1526 Spanish settlement believed to be the nation's earliest.

With a $10,300 grant from the Georgetown County Historical Society, the eight-week field work began in mid-November on the Belle Baruch Foundation property, just south of Pawleys Island on the east side of Winyah Bay.

The field work for the dig will continue into late January and will be followed by six to eight weeks of processing and cataloging the artifacts, according to Pat Doyle of the Georgetown County Historical Society.

"We were looking for an archaeologist," Doyle said of the historical society's search for someone to lead the dig. "We were particularly interested in Jim Michie and he expressed interest to us after his work at Wachesaw."

Michie's book, Richmond Hill Plantation 1810-1868, is based on his work unearthing Richmond Hill, an antebellum rice plantation in the Waccamaw Neck area. From 1983 to 1988, the South Carolina Institute of Archaeology and Anthropology of the University of South Carolina conducted a series of investigations that led to the rediscovery of Richmond Hill. Today, Richmond Hill is part of the Wachesaw Plantation development.

Locating the search for San Miguel de Gualdape on the Baruch property is based on Spanish documents that place the settlement somewhere south of the Cape Fear River to Winyah Bay, Michie said.

"Paul Quattlebaum was the first historian to sit down and pull all of the documents together to come up with a theory on where the settlement was located. We're trying to test the validity of that theory," Michie said.

"Given the relative accuracy or inaccuracy of Spanish documents, this is as good a place as any," Michie said. "We're testing a theory that claims approximately 600 Spaniards camped in this area for two months before building another ship."

"If we don't find it here, we can discount Quattlebaum's theory. If it's not here, we can close a window and try some other place," Michie said. "You have to be patient in this business."

Although the team has not found a trace of the Spanish settlement, other artifacts have been found: pieces of pottery that span some 3,500 years and colonial pieces such as clay smoking pipes and dishware.

"There are benefits spinning off of all of this," Michie said. "We're beginning to recognize the Indian settlements of the area and we're also finding remnants of antebellum plantations." ~

Freshmen achievers get welcome to Phi Eta Sigma

Coastal has honored more than 60 students for scholastic achievement by inducting them into Phi Eta Sigma, a freshman honor society.

In a ceremony held in Wheelwright Auditorium, 59 student charter members and 10 honorary charter members were inducted. Among the group were chapter president Susan Gray and her mother, Verna Hofmann.

The charter for the Coastal chapter of Phi Eta Sigma was presented to Chancellor Eaglin by James Foy of Auburn University. Foy is the grand secretary-treasurer of the society.

The installation represents the 200th performed since 1950 and makes Coastal the 250th active chapter of Phi Eta Sigma in the nation. Three other chapters in South Carolina are at the USC Columbia, Clemson and Furman universities.

The students inducted into Phi Eta Sigma are: Patsy Alexander, Cheryl Andersen, Stacia Baker, Sharon Barnhill, Jennifer Barnwell, Kimberly Beverly, Kelly Blake, Paula Blanton, Matthew Bohling, Jason Bowen, Jill Bryan, Nadine Butler, Jason Carlyon, David Crumlich, Jennifer Doss, Meira Dozier, Rachelle Drakeford, Karen Dulik, Steve Fabrizio, Leah Godsey, Patricia Grant, Susan Gray, Lyda Greene, Abdallah Haddad, Vonda Hamilton, Chandra Hilton, Verna Hofmann, Wendy Hooks, Marie Irvin, Shannon Jackson, Michelle Johnson, Judy Jones, Mark Kasari, Amy Lang, Sonja LaRue, Michael Lee, Patricia Lynch, Melissa McDuffie, Donna Mitchell, Elaine Obenshain, Christine O'Rourke, Peggy Pacileo, Pamela Perritt, Kjersti Pratt, Ruby Price, Donna

Radcliffe, Anna Rose, Kimberly Rubi, Rodolfo Rubi, Dena Russell, Nicolle Rutherford, Chad Smith, John Springer, Leisa Stille, Ester Suggs, Carolyn Tyner, Todd Underwood, Tony Whiteman and Tamara Willard.

Honorary charter members are: William Baxley, John Durrell, Chancellor Eaglin, Sally Horner, Ron Ingle, Elizabeth Puskar, Edward Singleton, Lynne Smith, Robert Squatriglia and Dennis Wiseman. ~

Coastal students win national advertising honors

A team of Coastal students has received second place in a national advertising contest.

Hilmar Arnason of Iceland, Nigel Gresham of Granada, Hal Morrison of Myrtle Beach and Jennifer Okala of Queens, N.Y. developed a marketing plan for specialty advertising products. The students are enrolled in the Wall School of Business Administration and Computer Science.

The Specialty Advertising Association, a Dallas-based trade organization of specialty advertising executives, designed the pilot project with May Kay Cosmetics. The Coastal students developed a marketing plan that included a demographic profile, pricing structure, a calendar equipped with beauty tips and a perfume-scented pen.

Three of the four teams from Coastal entered in the competition were winners in the Southeast region. Along with Arnason, Gresham, Morrison and Okala, regional winners from Coastal are Jesse Glasglow, Norma Floyd and Sherry Pharr of Conway, Sharon Kephart of Morristown, N.J. and Vicki Pazoga of Middletown, N.Y.

Ed Cerny said he gave students enrolled in his advertising class a choice of forming teams of no more than four students and entering this competition or entering a contest sponsored by the International Newspaper Association. Cerny is waiting for the results of the INA competition. ~

Jill Sessoms' article "Painless Punctuation Pedagogy" has been accepted for publication in the February 1991 issue of Teaching English in the Two-Year College, a referred journal and publication of the National Council of Teachers of English.

John Vrooman has recently returned from Germany. Vrooman was one of eight faculty members from colleges and universities across the nation selected to go to Germany and observe the first elections in the country as a reunified state.

Paul Rice has a poem, "Timber Rattler" in the December 1990 issue of Poetry. Founded in 1912, Poetry is the oldest and most prestigious magazine devoted entirely to verse. Rice is a member of the 1990-1991 South Carolina Arts Commission Readers Circuit. He has published his poems and articles in numerous literary magazines.

Tom Jones has been appointed to serve on the logistics committee at the Arts Presenters conference in New York. The Association of Performing Arts Presenters is a national association that includes college, university and community organizations that present arts programs throughout the country. The logistics committee is responsible for the running of the various functions of the conference. The 12-person committee was selected from colleges and universities in the United States.

Ed Cerny hosted a motivation and goal-setting workshop for approximately 50 middle management employees of Burroughs and Collins Company, Inc. The Dec. 18 session was held at Myrtlewood Golf Club. ~
