Investigative reporter to lecture on Middle East

Dale Van Atta, one of the youngest and most widely syndicated columnists and investigative reporters in the world, will lecture at Coastal Monday, April 1 at 7:30 p.m. in Wheelwright Auditorium. His topic will be From Khomeini to Hussein: Showdown in the Desert.

Van Atta shares the byline with Jack Anderson in Washington Merry Go Round which has an estimated 50 million daily readers. He holds the key to many doors untried by or locked to other reporters. His persistence in tracking the truth has won him the scrutiny and fury of Presidents, CIA directors, and world leaders from Brezhnev to Yassar Arafat. The FBI has refused to release his file, and he has won the dubious distinction of having his garbage secretly searched by the National Institutes of Health and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms to track his sources of leaked information.

Van Atta has been nominated for seven Pulitzer Prizes for investigative journalism. His most recent nomination was for uncovering the complex Iran-Contra arms for hostages deal.

Van Atta's speeches focus on the hidden forces and motives at work behind every major news story. He paints a complete picture of national and international events and supports his insights with thoroughly-researched facts as well as his own personal experiences.

Since the Ayatollah Khomeini came to power in Iran, U.S. policy in the Middle East has changed dramatically. Van Atta has followed the events closely and has been one of the country's premier sources of information. He was the first to report that Iranian controlled terrorists were responsible for the 1983 bombing of the U.S. Marine Compound in Beirut; in April of 1986, the American public first learned that Reagan Administration officials were selling arms to "moderate factions" in Iran by reading Van Atta's column; and he was the first to point out the danger of Saddam Hussein, while the U.S. government was still supplying Iraq with weapons and economic aid.

His trips to the Middle East have brought him face to face with terrorism, hostage sights, and such Arab leaders as King Hussein, Yasser Arafat, and Tariq Aziz.

The Kimbel Lecture Series is free and open to the public. Tickets are not required; seating is on a first-come, first-served basis. ~

Business etiquette consultant, author to sign books

Ann Chadwell Humphries, author of The Right Moves: A Collection of Strategies for Business, will hold a book signing at the bookstore Wednesday, March 20 at 3 p.m.

Humphries is the founder of ETICON, a Columbia-based etiquette consulting company. She also is a business etiquette columnist for The State; her column is distributed nationally by Knight-Ridder. Humphries conducts business etiquette workshops throughout the Southeast for groups from the employees of mainstream corporations to college athletes.

For more information, contact Mollie Starbuck. ~

Judge Sidney Floyd to speak at Coastal

Judge Sidney Floyd will speak at Coastal Wednesday, March 20 at 10:30 a.m. in KH 201. Floyd's topic will be a tax case involving the state of South Carolina and federal military retirees. The lecture is free and open to the public.

Floyd, an Horry County native, is a graduate of the University of South Carolina School of Law in Columbia. His undergraduate degree is from USC Columbia. He served in the Korean War.

Floyd practiced law from 1956 to 1977 before becoming a circuit court judge. He was in the legislature for eight years prior to being named a circuit court judge.

The lecture is sponsored by the student chapter of the National Association of Accountants at Coastal.

For more information, contact Linda Henderson or Coastal student Kathy Babb, ext. 2649. ~

Concert Choir plans trip to Atlanta

The Coastal Carolina Concert Choir invites faculty, staff, students, and community members to join them on a visit to the Georgia Renaissance Festival in Atlanta, May 10 through 12. This festival, held every weekend in April through June, has been listed as one of the outstanding tourist events in the Southeast.

The trip includes transportation, accommodations at the Courtyard Marriott Hotel, a three-course tavern meal, a steak and ale dinner, brunch, and a Shakespearean play. An additional highlight of the trip will be a city tour of Atlanta, featuring a visit to the Cyclorama and the new Coca-Cola pavilion.

Only a few spaces are available and seats will be filled on a first-come, first-served basis.

The cost of the trip per person is $250 double or $220 quad.

For reservations or additional information, contact Carolyn Cox, ext. 2513, or Susi Clayton at 238-1773. ~

Coastal Carolina People

Douglas Nelson recently participated as a member of the beach erosion modeling team in Rome, Italy. The purpose was to synthesize previous research into a computer program that would help the Italians forecast changes in their shorelines. Two field trips were taken to examine the variation in their beaches. Additional trips are proposed to continue improving the predictive capabilities of the computer model.~
