Richard Collin featured in final segment of Open Book Series

Richard O. Collin will present Sex, Lies, and Political Science on Tuesday, April 16 at 7 p.m., in GCEC 003 as part of the Waccamaw Regional Studies Center's special five-part series, "Charles Joyner Presents the Open Book Series." The program is free and open to the public.

The series features Coastal faculty and administrators who shared their careers and lives in higher education – their best and worst moments, and what made them devote their lives to higher education.

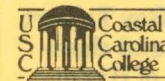

Collin has been a writer and analyst of contemporary political affairs for more than 25 years. His graduate studies at Harvard University were interrupted when he was called to active duty from the U.S. Army; he spent two years in the Pentagon as a briefing officer, serving under the Army's Deputy Chief of Staff for Intelligence. Becoming a civilian official for the Defense Intelligence Agency, Collin was stationed in Rome for five years, serving as Chief of the Intelligence Collection Branch of the DIA stationed in Italy.

In the early 1970s, Collin travelled extensively in the Middle East and parts of Africa. During this period, he witnessed the beginning of the civil war in Lebanon, the start of the famine in Sub-Saharan Africa, the last years of the civil war in Oman, and the events leading to the fall of the Shah of Iran and the capture of the American hostages.

Collin completed his graduate work at Oxford University, where he received his doctorate in 1983. He joined the Department of Government at Coastal in 1984 and was promoted to full professor in 1989. Collin was elected Distinguished Professor of the Year in 1987-1988 by Coastal students.

As a scholar, Collin has studied the roots of political violence: he has interviewed Palestinian guerrillas, Red Brigades militants, and a former leader of the Irish Republican Army. His latest book, about Italian terrorism in the early 1980s, is called Winter of Fire: The Abduction of General Dozier and the Fall of the Red Brigades. It was published in September 1989.

The Open Book Series is sponsored by Coastal's Waccamaw Center for Regional Studies under the direction of Charles Joyner, Burroughs Distinguished Professor of Southern History and Culture. Other Coastal faculty and administrators who have presented are Gerald Groves, professor of English; Sally Z. Hare, dean of Graduate and Continuing Education; Roy Talbert Jr., professor of history and chair-elect of the Department of History; and Sally M. Horner, vice chancellor for Planning and Fiscal Affairs. ~

Coastal to hold graduate registration, advisement for summer 1991

Coastal graduate students may schedule appointments for advisement to be held Monday, April 22 through Friday, April 26 from 3 to 5 p.m.

Graduate registration for summer 1991 will be held in the Graduate Office from Monday, April 22 through Friday, April 26 from 3 to 5 p.m. Graduate students who take advantage of the early registration period may avoid the lines during June registration and will enjoy a better selection of classes.

USC graduate courses are offered at Coastal in the areas of education, librarianship, English, mathematics, psychology, history, government, art education, journalism, social work, public health administration, and several other disciplines. USC also offers courses at Coastal leading to the Professional MBA degree and the master of engineering degree.

For more information about registration or eligibility requirements, contact the Graduate Office, ext. 2671. ~

Job Fair for Seniors scheduled

Coastal is hosting Job Fair For Seniors in the Graduate and Continuing Education Center on Saturday, April 20 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The event is free and open to the public.

Co-sponsored by Graduate and Continuing Education and the Waccamaw Area Agency on Aging, Job Fair For Seniors provides an opportunity for those who are age 55 and older to meet representatives from area businesses that hire older adults as full-time, part-time and volunteer employees.

Mini-seminars on topics such as age discrimination and job interviewing also will be held.

For more information, call the Waccamaw Area Agency on Aging, ext. 2132. ~

Marine Science for Junior Scholars registration opens

Marine Science for Junior Scholars, a program conducted through the Department of Marine Science, will be held June 16 to 29 at the college. Application deadline is April 30.

The program provides two weeks of intensive exposure to the various aspects of marine science for top rising ninth- and 10th-grade students from South Carolina. Since the program's inception four years ago, more than 120 students have participated in extensive field, laboratory and classroom work while studying the biological, geological, chemical and physical processes of South Carolina's shore. For scientific excursions, students have access to Coastal's 32-foot research vessel, MS Coastal. Laboratory analysis is completed back on campus under the supervision of the Department of Marine Science faculty.

Participants stay in the residence halls on campus. The program is $750; financial assistance is available. To be eligible for the program, a student must be 14 years old by June 16 and be identified as a Junior Scholar by his or her school.

For an application or more information, contact project director Amy Nelson, ext. 2228 or 2219. ~ and $4 for students.

The Glass Menagerie is presented by Coastal Carolina Theater.

First produced professionally in 1945, The Glass Menagerie is considered by many to be Williams' finest achievement. Set in spring 1939, it is a gripping comment on pre-World War I America. The conflict between an artist's soul and the confines of Depression-era America, and between the soft determination of the memories of antebellum Mississippi and the reality of the industrial revolution, give the play the energy that drives it forward.

Directed by Charles Whetzel, the lighting and costume design for the play is by Ken Parks.

Doris Hudson, who plays the mother, Amanda, is a language arts teacher and director of theater at Conway High School. She has appeared on the Wheelwright stage in Bell Book and Candle and South Pacific, and she directed Morning's at Seven for the Theater of the Republic last spring.

Auburn Boyd, who plays Amanda's daughter, Laura, is a Coastal sophomore majoring in dramatic arts. Last seen as Anna in And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little, Boyd also has appeared in Bus Stop.

Michael Kelly, who plays Amanda's son, Tom, is a Coastal senior majoring in dramatic arts. In addition to his acting, Kelly works in the Coastal scene shop. His most recent appearance was in the 1991 Spring Arts Festival Readers Theater production of The Third World War.

David Russell plays the gentleman caller. A familiar face to area audiences, Russell last appeared in the Theater of the Republic's production of How Our Other Half Loves. At Coastal, his work includes roles in Scapino and The Tempest.

Tickets are available from the Wheelwright Box Office Monday through Friday from noon to 5 p.m. and from noon to 5 p.m. Saturday, April 20 and Sunday, April 21.

For more information, call the Wheelwright Box Office at 349-2502.

Coastal offers Painting With Ilona

Impressionist artist and teacher Ilona Royce-Smithkin will offer a special painting class in two sessions Monday, April 29 to Friday, May 3 and Monday, May 6 to Friday, May 10 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Cherokee Motor Inn, 2207 South Ocean Boulevard, Myrtle Beach. The course is $95 plus the cost of materials. Royce-Smithkin will cover oil painting, portraits, landscapes, seascapes and still lifes during each session.

For registration information, call Graduate and Continuing Education, ext. 2672. ~

Women's issues courses workshops set

Two special courses relating to women's issues are being offered at Coastal beginning Monday, April 15 and ending Thursday, May 9.

Understanding Yourself is a four-part non-credit course in a lively lecture-discussion format. Participants will gain an awareness of the power thinking has on feelings and behavior. Mary Tobin, Ph.D., will lead the class that meets the following Mondays: April 15, 22, 29, and May 6 from 6:15 to 7:45 p.m.

How to get What You Want, a four-part non-credit course, will be held the following Thursdays: April 18, 25, and May 2 and 9 from 6:15 to 7:45 p.m. Instructor and counselor Tim Loebis will help class participants learn how to free the energy held in emotions and discover techniques to clear the emotional roadblocks that sabotage personal success.

Each course is $35.

To register, call Graduate and Continuing Education, ext. 2672. ~

Coastal to host Canadian-American language conference in Ontario

The Canadian-American Whole Language Conference featuring educators Ken and Yetta Goodman will be held Friday, May 24 and Saturday, May 25 at the Cleary International Centre in Windsor, Ontario.

The conference is sponsored by Coastal, the Windsor Public School Board and Windsor Roman Catholic Separate School.

The conference is open to educators, parents and interested others. Registration is $95 and special lodging rates are available. Enrollment is limited; early registration is requested.

More than 60 sessions presented by educators from throughout Canada and the United States are included in the two-day conference. Topics include literacy development, censorship, behavioral adjustment, problem readers, storytelling, creative writing, tradebook reading, computers in the writing process, poetry, whole language centers, visual literacy, newspapers, psychology, and more.

Keynote speakers Ken and Yetta Goodman direct the Program in Language and Literacy at the University of Arizona.

Coastal sponsors summer academic trip to Mexico

Coastal is sponsoring the college's first summer academic program to Mexico. On May 11, a group of students will leave Coastal for Guanajuato, Mexico, located approximately 250 miles northwest of Mexico City.

During the five-week session, students will earn six hours of college credit in conversational Spanish and Mexican literature while they are taught by Spanish Professor Ed Hood and a faculty member from the University of Guanajuato. Included in the program are trips to Guadalajara, San Miguel de Allende and other areas of interest. The group will return to South Carolina June 17.

The price of the trip is $1,950 and includes air fare to and from Myrtle Beach, lodging, meals and tuition. Enrollment is limited.

For more information, contact Geoff Parsons in the Office of International Programs no later than Friday, April 26, ext. 2054. ~
