Waccamaw Center for Historical and Cultural Studies gets Exxon grant

For the second time, Coastal has been awarded a grant from Exxon Corporation to be used to support Coastal Educational Foundation in establishing and fortifying the Waccamaw Center for Historical and Cultural Studies. Jim Michie, professor and associate director of the center, conducts archaeological research on South Carolina antebellum rice growing plantations as well as into indigenous pre-historic cultures.

Exxon has contributed approximately $2,000 in volunteer involvement grants in the last two years as well as $3,750 in educational matching funds. In addition to program support, the volunteer involvement grant monies have been used to equip the research team with materials for field work, including a trailer to transport equipment to and from the sites, a surveyor's transit to map research properties, trowels and shovels.

"The badly needed equipment will be used in our archaeological research," said Michie. "This gift enables us to continue to do historic and prehistoric research in the area." Michie led the search for what is believed to be the nation's earliest Spanish settlement – San Miguel de Gualdape – in Georgetown County in winter 1990-1991. Much of Michie's work is presently based around Richmond Hill Plantation, an antebellum rice plantation in Murrells Inlet.

Exxon grant

Richmond Hill is part of the Wachesaw Plantation development.

"Exxon donates millions of dollars each year to causes such as this," said Walter Berner, who arranged the grant for Coastal. Now retired, Berner was project manager/director for Exxon Research and Engineering Company for 38 years. He lives at Wachesaw Plantation. "We wanted to make sure that the developers of this project preserved the artifacts and historical sites on the property," Berner said.

"Any Exxon employees and annuitants who donate their time to such causes can apply for the grant," he said. Berner is the volunteer coordinator of the annual Coastal Plantations Golf Tournament at Wachesaw Plantation, the proceeds of which assist Coastal Educational Foundation in its support of the Waccamaw Center for Historical and Cultural Studies. More than $49,000 has been raised since the tournament was initiated three years ago.

Chancellor Ron Eaglin said, "It is due to the commitment of community members like Walt Berner that Coastal's academic programs have been greatly strengthened in the past years. We are grateful for Berner's assistance and leadership that have enhanced the ability to attract and retain volunteers as well as corporate support for Coastal Carolina College."

S.C. Board of Accountancy meets on campus

The Wall School of Business Administration and Computer Science hosted the September meeting of the South Carolina Board of Accountancy on Sept. 26. This is the second time that Coastal has been chosen as the site for the organization's meeting. Accounting students received a unique learning experience by being invited to observe the board at work. ~

A Message from the Chancellor . . .

All of you are aware of the difficult fiscal situation which exists at Coastal Carolina College. It has affected every part of our campus, including athletics. I have been forced to cut their budget severely for the coming year.

Over the past three years, Tony's Italian Restaurant in North Myrtle Beach has sponsored a fund-raising dinner for the athletic program. They would like to continue this tradition and are trying to raise over $30,000 during three nights in November. Bonnie and I would like for each of you to consider participating in the dinner. All of the profits will go directly to the athletic program. During the past three years they have raised in excess of $50,000. The cost of the meal is $30 per person and the dates are November 5, 6, and 7, with seatings from 6 to 7 p.m. and from 8 to 9 p.m. Tickets may be purchased from the athletic department or from my office.

In the past three years there has been little participation from the college. If at all possible, I encourage you to participate and identify yourself as a faculty or staff member from our institution. Many of our programs can only exist with this type of enthusiasm from our community and our support. There are other events during the year that are equally as important and will raise money for needed programs in the arts for our campus. By giving our support to this endeavor, it encourages others to help us with all of the needs of our institution; therefore, I highly encourage you, if possible, to attend.

Bonnie and I plan to attend the November 6 dinner from 8 to 9 p.m. I hope to see many of you there.

Ron Eaglin

Benefits meetings scheduled

The annual open enrollment meetings for faculty and staff will be October 2 with sessions at 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. in SC 205. Representatives from the system division of human resources and Jefferson-Pilot will present information relative to benefit changes. Benefits information packets will also be distributed. All permanent faculty and staff members are urged to attend for information on benefits changes and how it affects employees.

For more information, contact Barbara Jackson at extension 2134. ~

This Week is published every Monday by the Public Relations Office. Information to be included should be submitted by noon the Wednesday before publication.

Coastal Carolina College is an affirmative action, equal opportunity institution.

Just a reminder . . .

As previously announced, questions from staff members regarding Coastal Carolina's relationship with the USC System are being collected in the Human Resources Office.

Graduate school videoconference scheduled

A videoconference entitled What is a Graduate School and How Do You Select One will be presented Thursday, October 3 at 1 p.m. in KH 109. Anyone who is considering graduate education, especially those undergraduates in science and engineering, are welcome to attend. Sponsored by the School of Natural and Applied Sciences, the program will also be helpful for department heads, career counselors, faculty advisors, high school counselors, and parents.

For more information, contact Carl Freeman at extension 2203. ~

New faculty member

Coastal welcomes Herb Thompson as a new faculty member at Coastal. His position as athletic academic advisor is funded by an NCAA grant. Thompson will be responsible for the academic advisement of the college's athletes, direct athletes to academic support and counseling services, coordinate and monitor study hall, and assist the compliance officer with NCAA regulations.

Thompson has a bachelor's degree in physical education and recreation from Howard University, Washington, D.C. and an masters degree in recreation administration from Southern University, Baton Rouge, Louisiana. ~

Career Information Fair bring students and employers together

Coastal's Career Placement Office is sponsoring a Career Information Fair on Wednesday, October 9 from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. in Kimbel Gymnasium. Coastal, Horry-Georgetown Technical College, Francis Marion College, and Coker College students are encouraged to attend. The event is free and open to the public.

Area and regional employers representing banking and financial services, retail, education, government agencies, public utilities, computer services, health care, and the hotel and tourism industries will be available to talk to students, alumni, and community members who are exploring career options. Graduate school representatives will also be present.

For more information, call Mollie Starbuck at extension 2341. ~

Cox Cable presents educational conference on campus

Cox Cable South Carolina, Inc. in conjunction with Horry County Schools will sponsor "Beyond the Blackboard" an educational conference on the use of commercial-free cable in the classroom programming Wednesday, October 2 from 4 to 7 p.m. in the Graduate and Continuing Education Center. The program is free but reservations are required. Registration will begin at 3:45 p.m. and a drawing for a VCR will be held at 4 p.m. for registered participants. Coastal's senior education majors, faculty, and staff are invited to attend.

The three-hour session will expose participants to innovative techniques incorporating commercial-free cable programming throughout the educational curriculum. CNN, Nickelodeon, The Discovery Channel, and the Weather Channel will provide programming information along with support material.

Cox Cable provides free cable service to the 11 Horry County schools in their franchise area. This conference meets Horry County School District's established requirements for three certificate renewal points.

For reservations or more information, contact Carol Harvill or Mary Anne Moore at 448-7858. ~

USA TODAY searches for nation's best college students

USA TODAY, in cooperation with four higher education associations, is beginning its annual search for the nation's best college students. Sixty of them will be named to the 1992 All-USA Academic Team.

USA TODAY uses the word "team" to draw a parallel to athletic honors and to send a message that academic skills deserve at least equal recognition to scoring touchdowns and sinking jump shots.

Students selected to the first, second, and third teams will be featured in a special section of the newspaper, planned for mid-February. The 20 first-team members will be invited to receive their awards at a ceremony in Washington, D.C.

Each of the first team members will receive a $2,500 cash award.

Any full-time undergraduate is eligible. Each nomination must be signed by a faculty member familiar with the student's work and an administrator.

Criteria for the team were developed in consultation with the co-sponsors, the National Association of Independent Colleges and Universities, the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges, the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education, and the Council for Advancement and Support of Education.

Winners will be selected by a panel of educators, chosen in cooperation with the co-sponsors.

The criteria are designed to find students who excel not only in scholarship, but in leadership roles on and off campus.

The key element, to be given most weight by the judges, will be a student's outstanding original academic or intellectual product. The judges will be influenced by the student's ability to describe that outstanding endeavor in his/her own words. They will not read an author's work, see an artist's painting, or hear a composer's music. They will rely solely on the student's ability to describe the effort in writing, supplemented by recommendations from the nominating professor and up to three other persons of the nominee's choice.

Faculty who are interested in nominating Coastal students may pick up nomination forms in the Public Relations Office. The entry deadline is November 30. ~
