Rutgers suicide impacts campuses across America

The suicide of Tyler Clementi, a student at Rutgers University whose roommate secretly recorded him moments before leaping off a dorm-room window, has put the national spotlight on "gender shaming" of lesbian and gay youth.

Relatively few people knew Clementi before he jumped from the George Washington Bridge on Sept. 22, but the wake from his act is felt around the world. It was just three weeks ago that the 18-year-old freshman's body was discovered in the Hudson River, but already his name has become known around the world.

The young violinist took his life after his roommate, Dharun Kauri, 18, of Plainfield, N.J., set up a webcam and watched the live scene with a friend, Molly Viteli, 18, of Princeton, N.J., in her room in the same dormitory, according to authorities. Both have since been charged with invasion of privacy.

According to prosecutors, Clementi found out about the webcam afterward and had filed a complaint with the resident assistant. He posted the Facebook message, "I am going to jump from the gw bridge sorry before he got in his car and drove to the George Washington Bridge. He jumped on Sept. 22. It took a week to find his body. Hollywood stars lined up to televise suicide announcements in his name Ellen DeGeneres posted a personal tribute to Clementi on her website. Almost every major media outlet in the country devoted time to the story and tens of thousands of people participated in internet memorial to the Ridgefield student.

Why has this struck such a nerve?

"Unfortunately, ‘incivility’ appears to be a growing problem these days," says Jesus Casellas, director of Counseling Services at Coastal Carolina University. "It seems that we hear more and more stories of how people are using technology to invade the privacy of others and treat them disrespectfully."

Cassidy says she has seen a number of videos posted to Facebook and YouTube last that CCDU students have taped others

CCU professor receives Fulbright Grant

Gary Stegall, piano music professor, receives Fulbright Grant to study Belgian composer

TARA SMITH ASST EDITOR

Coastal Carolina University's Gary Stegall, piano music professor, has been awarded a five month Fulbright Scholar grant to conduct research during the Spring 2011 semester at the Royal Conservatory of Music and the Royal Albertine Library in Brussels, Belgium. Stegall will study late Belgian composer Joseph Jongen and on Brussels' cultural 19th century Brussels.

Stegall previously studied Jongen 1983 on a rotary grant while and think it can help students become better musicians.

"It's an interesting character who is a very reflective of the country of Belgium," said Stegall.

The professor also lived in Brussels for a short period of time and said he's excited to return. Stegall describes Belgium as multicultural, bilingual, and says that south of the country is influenced by French culture and the northern part of the country as Flemish. He also describes the people as "patient" and "friendly.

Stegall also says Jongen, who recently gained recognition in Belgium in the late, was also influenced by both French and Flemish culture.

"There is an interesting character who is a very reflective of the country of Belgium," said Stegall.

"The Fulbright Program is a way for students to go on scholarly leave. While in Belgium, he plans to revisit and connect with friends he made in Belgium from his previous visit.

Stegall has had a career as a soloist and chamber musician and has performed in the United States, Europe, South America, Asia, Africa, and Canada.

The Fulbright Program of grants for international educational exchange for scholars, educators, graduate students and professionals. The program was founded in 1946 by the late Arkansas Senator William Fulbright and was established to build goodwill between the United States and the rest of the world.

Over two month process from July to August 2009, six months to be notified of his award in March 2010 and was not able to announce his plans to leave for Belgium until September because the University had to approve his to go on scholarly leave. number of students in the library that has previously only been seen during mid-

We have increased door counts by 20 percent and students who come to the library between 24 to 26 p.m., said Burd.

offering Counseling Services, which is available to people who have been victimized by any type of harassment or buling, including the GLBT (Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual, Transgendered) population.

We can help people process the feelings that are produced by being a victim and help them figure out how to better protect themselves in the future," says Cassidy. Unfortunately, people who are willing to victimize others don't generally come to us asking for help in changing their behavior. CCU can and will offer education on civility but ultimately I think the only way we can get better at getting others to be civil is by not standing by and tolerating it when they do something to harm others.

Robert Jenkot, a CCU sociology professor, is working on revising the PRIDE student organization; while Cassidy works to lead a group of CCU staff and faculty in developing a Safe Zone program this year.

This is a program that exists at many Universities where faculty and staff and students engage in training and become des-gnated as a person who is open, inviting and willing to talk about the issues for which they might otherwise experience prejudice and discrimination," says Cassidy. Typically, once someone becomes Safe Zone certified, they get a sticker or button that they plug on their door which tells the GLBT population that they are a safe person to talk with and be open.

Counseling services has the Love Another Day campaign which refers students to its website. The campaign offers many resources about suicide prevention and to talk to someone who might be suicidal.

"It's so sad because there should have been help for Tyler, and maybe there was but he probably didn't know where to go," said 18-year-old CCU freshman Rebecca Shorsting. "It's already so overwhelming and he probably thought he was alone in the process.

In 2008, Refuge was targeting young adults between the 18 and 30-year-old age group, and offers in-member guidance and advice. Refuge also out-touches to the local community and countries such as the Dominican Republic. The organization helps students and others who need a safe person to talk with and be open.

Burd wrote in a recent letter: "How we cover sex tapes are leaked all the time. Those girls aren't jumping off bridges." Jordan Justin Louis agrees.

"If a girl has sex with a guy in a college dorm - she might be teased about it. It's wrong but it's reality. In order to avoid that girls don't have sex in dorms," said Louis. "If this Tyler kid didn't want to be teased about being gay why was he having sex with a guy in a dorm?"

According to Deborah Boone, associate professor of communication at CCU, students hold responsibility and can put a stop to these occurrences. Boone teaches a gender communication course at CCU and says when she starts the unit on transsexuality, the GLBT social movements, she always seem to most remember the "studs" and the girls. As the number of students in the GLBT population increases, there has been a need for people who are willing to take a stand and stand up for those who are bullied, according to Cassidy.

The organization provides coffee, food, and transportation, and helps students feel more comfortable in their environment.

Acceptance and responsibility: Dwindles with each tragedy

You probably read the title and thought, "oh no! This can't be happening to me!" But it is. The events of last week in Orlando, Florida have been devastating. People have been killed and injured, and there are questions of why and how this could have happened.

TARA SMITHEDITOR

The fact that a 16-year-old and a 15-year-old killed themselves because of lack of acceptance and were victims of bullying alone bothers me. But something that's a bit more unnerving is that these people felt like the only way to resolve this issue was to end their lives.

TO THE EDITOR

I believe that it is not only the student, but also a mixture of the school, the peers and other influences that the student may face. I believe that this is a systemic issue that needs to be addressed.

CCU welcomes NASCAR and M&M’s Racing to campus

Rooster's Cornette
Contributor

Coastal Carolina University's NASCAR Kinetics Team will host a free public viewing party of the upcoming NASCAR race at Martinsville on Sunday, Oct. 24 from 12 to 6 p.m. in the field house at Browning Stadium. The event is sponsored by M&M's Racing. Vendors will provide free food and coupons, various entertainment activities for children and adults, information on NASCAR and itsfoundation. The CCU NASCAR Kinetics Team will also have a give-away of NASCAR, M&M's racing, and Darlington Raceway items at the event.

This viewing party is part of a national competition called NASCAR Kinetics Marketing in Motion. CCU is one of eight selected universities in the program this year. All eight universities were chosen based on their marketing programs and the students' eagerness to gain real-world practice and knowledge.

Five CCU students were selected for participation in this year's fall semester program. The students include Chris Adams from Scher- berging, Ill., Russell Beard, from Greensboro, North Carolina; B.J. Embert, from Columbus, Ohio; Dwayne Howard, from Surfside Beach, and Laura Font from Freehills, N.C.

The winning university will receive the grand prize of an all-expenses paid trip to the NASCAR Speedpark in Florida for the NASCAR Race. Students will represent their university and community, while interacting with prominent NASCARR and NASCAR Partner business professionals.

Annual Alcohol Awareness Week spotlights drinking and driving

Tara Smith
Ass. Editor

Counseling services is hosting its annual Alcohol Awareness Week to educate Coastal Carolina University's student community about the risks, choices and consequences of alcohol. The week began Friday, Oct. 8 with the STOP-LOSS D.U.I. simulator on Prince Lawn and ends Oct. 11. Participants were able to experience being behind the wheel under the influence of alcohol and the dangers that go with it.

"We want to spread the word of the concerns of driving under the influence," said Chris Denovest-Haines, counselor.

Counseling services presents Alcohol Awareness Week every year for not just returning students, but mostly for freshmen.

"We try to get this crucial information to our students, especially the newer ones coming in," said Haines. "They probably haven't had the freedom the before with all the risks and challenges in college life and we want to prepare them by giving them as much information and as much education as possible."

The carnival for Alcohol Awareness Week will be held on Monday, Oct. 11 on Prince Lawn from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Volunteers will have a booth displaying the effects of alcohol and alcohol safety and will present an interactive game for participants. The booth has attracted the most attention and has the most effective alcohol education methods will win a $100 cash prize. Counselors will also be doing screenings to assess a student's dependence on alcohol. Also, students will have an opportunity to win an iPod.

Counseling services presented its "Psych Film" series on Oct. 6 which pertains to each topic counseling services is covering. The film showed for Alcohol Awareness week is the HBO documentary "Addiction," which tells the stories of people who have alcohol dependence. Also, during Alcohol Awareness Week, counseling services will host "Drug Out Wednesday," an event to educate students about marijuana. Students will be able to complete a drug assessment with a counselor and also have the opportunity to win an iPod.

Though Alcohol Awareness Week wasn't open students from drinking, Haines says she wants to students to make better and safer choices whenever alcohol is involved.

"We want [the students] to be able to have some fun," said Haines. "We want to provide the information in a fun way so they may make safer choices than they would have without the information. It's very important that they get this information early."

Chanticleers played a home game against Liberty last Monday. The Chanticleers played against a tough offensive Liberty team. In the 5th minute of the game, senior Anna Tupy scored her third goal of the season. The goal came off of a corner kick by sophomore Morgan Thomas. The corner kick by Thomas was kicked into the box and Tupy headed the ball in over the Liberty goalie's hands to score. Tupy and Thomas were the leaders in the game for the Chanticleers.

The Chanticleers played a tough defense by shutting down a good Liberty offense to only three shots on goal and no goals. The Chanticleers held possession of the ball throughout the game which kept the Liberty offense away from shots on net and would lead to a CCU shutout. This shutout was the third shutout for the Chanticleers this season. Though the Chants scored only one goal, they had many chances throughout the game.

The victory moves the Chanticleers to 5-6 on the season and 1-1 in the conference and the Chanticleers look to improve their record at home in the future.

Coastal Carolina University volleyball falls 3-0 to WU

The Coastal Carolina University volleyball team fell to 10-9 on the season after a loss to Winthrop last Tuesday. The Chanticleers played tough throughout the match, having led throughout, but could not maintain it. "We held the lead throughout the match," volleyball Coach Kristen Bauer said about Tuesday matches. "We just could not hold onto the lead."

Errors hurt the Chanticleurs. "We had too many errors on the court. We played hard but the errors hurt us," said Bauer. "We need to be more error-free and smoother against top teams. We can't commit so many errors."

Despite the tough match, Cheisy Kimes finished with eighteen kills which would lead the Chanticleers in the match. Cheisy Kimes played great on offense. She really contributed to the team and really played hard giving us all those kills," said Bauer.

The Chanticleers had a 21-17 lead in the first set of their match against Winthrop. Winthrop would come back to tie the game at 24-24 and later win the set 26-24. "We could not hold onto the lead and we committed too many errors and mistakes. We let Winthrop get too many runs especially the one late in the game and it hurt us in the end."

Despite a strong effort in the second set, the Chanticleers let up another late run by the Eagles, and the Chanticleers lost the second set 25-20. Winthrop would take a 2-0 lead into the third set. CCU hung in with Winthrop in the beginning but fell behind due to errors. The Chanticleurs would pull the score within two at 17-15 but would fall in the set 25-19, losing the match 3-0. The loss snapped the team match win streak by the Chanticleurs.

"If we are going to want to improve our conference record, we are going to need to be able to play getting off the bus. We are going to be playing some of the top teams in our conference and we are going to have to be able to play on the road if we want to win." The Chanticleers have an undefeated record at home this season but a less than .500 record when away from the Kenbel Arena.

CAPTAIN OF THE CHANTICLEER HOCKEY TEAM READY TO FACE TOP TEAMS

Coastal Carolina University has started up a roller hockey travel team for the first time in school history. Nathan Montgomery is the man behind all of it. "I started the organization from scratch and it has really taken off. It has now become a team that will travel to different colleges. Coastal's schedule includes teams such as the University of South Carolina, Georgia Tech and North Carolina State."

"We are dominating in the local league we are in now to prepare for an upcoming tournament," said Montgomery. "We have watched film on the teams we will face in the tournament and we are good enough to play against them. Even though it is our first year, we will be able to play well against top teams."

Coastal's travel team is playing in a local league on Wednesday nights to prepare for the tournaments. "We are going to learn as the season goes on," said Montgomery. "We will learn to play as a team and learn to trust each other as the year moves forward.

"We are excited. It's going to be a lot of fun traveling to these schools and we look forward to playing in these tournaments," said Montgomery.

Women's soccer wins first home game

Chanticleers played a home game against Liberty last Monday. The Chanticleers played against a tough offensive Liberty team. In the 5th minute of the game, senior Anna Tupy scored her third goal of the season. The goal came off of a corner kick by sophomore Morgan Thomas. The corner kick by Thomas was kicked into the box and Tupy headed the ball in over the Liberty goalie's hands to score. Tupy and Thomas were the leaders in the game for the Chanticleers.

The Chanticleers played a tough defense by shutting down a good Liberty offense to only three shots on goal and no goals. The Chanticleers held possession of the ball throughout the game which kept the Liberty offense away from shots on net and would lead to a CCU shutout. This shutout was the third shutout for the Chanticleers this season. Though the Chants scored only one goal, they had many chances throughout the game.

The victory moves the Chanticleers to 5-6 on the season and 1-1 in the conference and the Chanticleers look to improve their record at home in the future.

Costume Shopping

Spirit Halloween, a costume and decoration shop, has opened the empty Circuit City off of Seaboard Street in Myrtle Beach. The store opened Sept. 3 in the more than 10,000-square-foot space. The shop has been in other Myrtle Beach and Waccawannaw Pottery in previous years, and the larger Circuit City space has allowed for an expanded decor and children’s costume section.

Imaginations, Inc. a costume and accessories retailer, is located at 3237 Waccawannaw Blvd., in Myrtle Beach.

Recipes to Keep You Warm on Fall Nights

Homemade Apple Cider Ingredients

1 tsp ground allspice
1 tsp cinnamon
1 tsp ground cloves
4 quarts apple cider (ideally fresh)

Directions

1. In a large pot, combine all ingredients and bring to a boil. Reduce heat to low, cover and simmer for about 10 minutes or until flavors have melded.

2. Strain through a fine mesh sieve and serve hot.

Creamy Hot Chocolate

Ingredients

1/2 cup unsweetened cocoa powder
1/4 cup sugar
1 tsp chocolate milk
1/2 cup heavy cream
1/2 tsp vanilla extract

Directions

1. In a medium saucepan, combine cocoa powder and sugar. Stir in milk and cream. Bring to a boil, then remove from heat and stir in vanilla. Serve hot.

Chicken Chili

Ingredients

1 lb ground beef
1 onion, chopped
2 garlic cloves, minced
2 cups chicken broth
1 can (15 oz) diced tomatoes
1 can (15 oz) corn
1 can (14.5 oz) black beans
1 cup water
1/4 tsp salt
1/4 tsp black pepper

Directions

1. In a large saucepan or Dutch oven, cook beef, onion, and garlic over medium heat until beef is browned. Drain excess fat.

2. Add chicken broth and spices to the pan. Bring to a boil, then reduce heat and simmer for 15 minutes.

3. Add diced tomatoes and let simmer for an additional 5 minutes.
