THE PARKING MADNESS CONTINUES

The Coastal Carolina University Fine Arts Department in its report of the 2011 fiscal year was released earlier this month and shows that Coastal earned more money in parking fines than in the actual sale of parking decals, $13,760 more, to be exact. This kind of information only raises more frustration among a student population that is already up in arms about Coastal’s current parking situation.

In fact, Coastal’s situation is not as bad as the fact that sharing only one parking lot with over 9,000 students in less yet to one weekend and adjust. As a result of the non-compliance of students, the two ticketed violations on campus are parking without a decal and residents of University Place parking in non-designated areas, according to CCC’s Department of Public Safety (DPS).

Coastal student comments from University Village, Kiiskadee, the Market Common, etc., are losing spaces to students in University Place, Quail Creek, and the College Park areas, which are all within reasonable walking distance to campus.

This news should not come as any sort of surprise. Coastal is one of the few schools in our state that still offers residence halls at their on-campus dormitories. Parking spaces are usually limited on most college campuses and if someone is going to be restricted from having a car, it might as well be the freshmen since they are restricted to few on campus anyway.

However, Coastal’s situation is an exception. Being sandwiched between the two high-traffic volume highways 501 and 344 makes getting around the Conway/Myrtle Beach area difficult without a car. Not to mention the over 50 percent of incoming freshmen are from an average of 460-500 miles away from South Carolina.

Major Philip Moore, Head of Police Operations for DPS understands the student complaints.

“A lot of groups click when talking, but one must know the sound to know the language. The four dancers invite the audience to participate by asking them to repeat after them. They recited the alphabet and taught how to say each word with different clicks.

The beginning of the performance portrayed the four dancers in traditional outfits, which included white beads strung across their chests, white fur around their calves and animal furs around their waists.

The dancers would bang bongo drums and incorporate a whittle into every dance they performed. With each step, the dancers showed exaggerated facial expressions, children’s laughter echoed throughout the auditorium with each step. The elaborate dance moves incorporate stomping, clapping and even shouting.

“The performance was great,” said Beverly Meadows, a Conway resident. “They are very talented and it was very heartfelt.”

Towards the end of the show, the dancers invited the entire audience to stand up and contribute a few of their own dance moves. Not one person in the auditorium remained seated.

“I really loved the culture and how they go about things,” said freshman Tamera Williams. “I loved how it was multi-cultural, not just Afro-African Americans.”

Nahum Mangera, a student at Coastal Carolina, seemed to enjoy the event more than the other attendees. The performance held a special place in her heart because she is originally from South Africa.

“It was really good, I even cried during the performance,” said Mangera. “It just really made me miss home.”

Coastal Carolina offers many more shows through the rest of the semester. For more information, visit www.coastal.edu/culturalarts.
MINORITY TO MAJORITY

CHRISTIAN GAMBLE

College students are a minority. According to the Almanac of Higher Education there are only 20.5 million college students in the US. Compare this to the US population that totals over 300 mil­lion, and you find college students only make up 6.5 percent.

Knowing college students are considered a minority and the presidential elections will be held in the up-and-coming Fall semester, CCU clubs such as NAACP are working to make students on campus more politically aware.

NAACP will be hosting a student debate on Wednesday, Feb. 15 entitled Minority to Majority: Your Vote Counts. The word minority has noth­ing to do with ethnicity according to junior and NAACP member Talitha James, who said the event is focusing on the minority of college stu­dents as a whole.

“We are the minority as college students,” said James. “But soon we will be the majority because we will be the working faces of America.”

James believes that motivating college students to vote can have a major effect on the 2012 presidential elections, such as it did in the 2008 election.

The NAACP program was created after the GOP Debate in Myrtle Beach. James said that af­ter watching, she and other members of the orga­nization were disturbed by some of the comments that were brought up during the debate.

“We were wondering if people on campus were aware of what was being said and what were their opinions on the matter,” said James.

During the event, students can expect to hear topics on subject matter such as abortion, veteran rights, education and the federal deficit. James said a leader of the protest. “The people present are going to be good to see how our genera­tion feels about things that are going on,” said James. “Most of the things you hear on the news are about politics. Let’s see how the normal everyday college student feels.”

World: Two killed in shooting in Dalca
According to Reuters, Yemeni troops opened fire in the southern province of Dalca on Feb. 9, killing two people. The victims were part of a boy­cott of the election to replace President Ali Abdal­lah. After months of pressure, Yemen is in a state of shambles, as it has lost control of much of the country.

The Defense Forces located at military positions overlooking the town opened fire on thousands of people protesting against the upcoming presiden­tial elections,” said a leader of the protest.

A senior officer died immediately, along with another man who was standing on a nearby hotel balcony. Twelve others were injured in the shooting.

Security is one of the main issues currently in Yemen, as enemies to violence in Dalca be­ing caused by the goals of the southern separatists, northern Shi'ite rebels and Islamic militants within the country.

National: Facebook “defriending” leads to murder of Tennessee couple
According to Reuters, a Tennessee couple was murdered in their home last month over what seems to be the couple’s “defriending” of the sus­pects’ daughter on Facebook.

“It’s the worst thing I’ve ever seen,” said John­son County Sheriff Mike Reeves. “We’ve had mur­ders, but nothing like this. This is just senseless.”

The suspects, Marvin Potter, 60, and Jamie Card, 38, were arrested on Feb. 7 and charged with two counts of first-degree murder.

Potter returns to court next week for a bond hearing as he has an attorney, and Card, a sec­ond cousin of one of the victims, was appointed an attorney and has a bond set at $75,000 for each count of murder.

State: Myrtle Beach man arrested on attempt­ed murder charge
According to The Sun-News, Horry County Police arrested 27-year-old Kendall Green on Feb. 9 on an attempted murder charge.

According to officials, officers entered Secrets Nightclub at 2:45 a.m. Feb. 9 for a wanted person at the bar. Green then ran out of the club and into a wooded area. Officers then utilized the depart­ment’s bloodhound tracking team and located Green about 10 minutes later.

The charges Green faces stem from a Sept. 25 incident where officers were called to a local hos­pital to investigate a gunshot wound. The investi­gation found the victim was struck in the head with a pistol and that the left leg at Raef Street in Myrtle Beach.

Green is currently being held at J.L. Reuben Long Detention Center pending a bond hearing.
COASTAL GRADUATE ON AMERICAN IDOL

KRISTA GIERLACH

Coastal Carolina University graduate Elie Testone of Kimmel, N.J., is a contestant on American Idol's 11th season. She attended CCU in 2001 to receive a degree in music. In Testone's last year at Coastal, she performed in Edwards Recital Hall for a classical voice recital as well as a larger recital at Whirlbewird in which she filled the house, according to professor and vocal teacher Dawnyl Bankston, her vocal teacher for 3 years. Bankston and Testone worked closely together and performed duets in 2005. Although their voices are vastly different, they made a unique blend as they sang harmonies together in Whirlbewird.

"Sometimes instead of me singing my songs, I let her sing them," said Bankston.

Bankston has been doing popular music since the '70s and feels this truly infuses Testone's music. "I teach people how to sing efficiently. She did not rest on her own. You sing in an elliptical, deep voice," said Bankston.

At Coastal, Testone performed often in Whirlbewird and held a popular music concert called "Art of Soul." The Music Department used to attend a weekly gathering on Wednesdays for pizza and entertainment put on by Testone. She currently sang with Pop 101 under Dan O'Reilly, in addition to working professionally throughout Conway and Myrtle Beach.

In her final semester at Coastal, Testone also studied with Voice Teacher Pati Edwards. A little over a year after graduation, Testone moved to Charleston, SC to continue her career.

She currently plays in several bands both here and in Charleston; according to Bankston, one of them is called "Shingles."

In Charleston, her career is successful, as she is known for covering James Brown songs. Bankston was even noted as "Singer of the Year" in an article in the Charleston City Newspaper last year.

"She always knew how toprobante herself; she has a very high energy personality," said Bankston. "She's always trying to do too many things, but somehow it always works out."
COPIE WITH COLD SEASON

ALEXX ALTMAN

Trying to avoid the sneezing, coughing, hacking, runny nose season? Unfortunately, it is almost impossible to escape this time of year without some sort of cold or flu infection.

And with Valentine’s Day nearing, you might want to avoid the germ-ridden door handles.

Not to mention, not everyone is nice enough to wash their hands when sneezing or coughing.

To try and cut down on the cold information at Coastal here are a few tips from Health Promotion professor Jessica Lowry:

1. Wash your hands frequently with warm soap and water. This is critical since students come in contact with so many germs and bacteria throughout the day on campus.
2. Wear appropriate clothing for outdoor temperatures. With the weather changing from day to day it is important to dress appropriately.
3. "Eat well and exercise. Both are going to help keep your immune system strong."
4. "Don’t share drinking cups or utensils."
5. "Use disinfectant around your living spaces to help ward off germs."

Carrie Smith, a senior Mass major, battled sickness already this semester.

"I actually had a cold at the beginning of January and now I’m getting sick again," said Smith.

For Smith, taking vitamin C and drinking orange juice seemed to help.

The easiest way to avoid getting sick, she said, was to "stay away from friends when they are sick," said Smith.

Remember the next time you sit next to someone backing up a lung, it might be best to wash your hands.

SMOKESMASH BASH

CHAD YATES

If you have seen the movie “The Social Network” or are at all familiar with the origin of Facebook, you are more likely than familiar with Facebook the idea that gave rise to modern Facebook, which compared two individuals and allowed a user to rate who was “hottest.”

Now, almost ten years later, a new version of the highly controversial website is featured by the popular bastatoon.com website. The section of the site titled Smokeshash allows users to submit photos of college girls to be compared with other college girls across the nation.

Where this website differs from Faccemash, however, is that the website requires the first and last name of the girl being submitted to ask for permission via Facebook. If the girl is chosen to be featured on the website and she consents, she is then given the opportunity to submit further photos and create a "gallery."

So what, though?

As of two weeks ago, Coastal Carolina University was ranked number one in the AF Top 25 section as having one of the "hottest" campuses in the nation. These numbers have since changed, but that definitely goes to show the website is making its impact felt on campus.

"It’s no way surprised by Coastal’s rank on the website. Every time I walk around campus I’m surrounded by beautiful women and that rank is just a testament to that," said Vince Clark, senior Finance major.

But while some students might enjoy this distinction, others think the website as a whole is less than fantastic.

"I think it’s just another superficial and pointless thing," said Paige Darlington, junior Exercise Science major. "It could also be a bad thing because it may drive people to go to these schools based on the appearances of the students."

5. The student who thinks no one else can hear his music.
6. The front row middle section people.
7. The obnoxious gym cheerer.
8. The student who falls asleep every class and finds the need to tell everyone about it.
9. The student who constantly challenges every one of the professor’s points.
10. The student who asks a question about something the professor just finished explaining.

EQUESTRIANS RIDE TO REGIONALS

LEAH BARCELONA

Two members of the Coastal Carolina Equestrian Team will continue to ride.

Demi Mahoney, a junior Sociology major and Marina Brito, a junior Psychology major, are the first riders at Coastal Carolina to advance to regionals. Regionals take place on March 24 in North Carolina.

"This is a huge accomplishment for us, we're real competitors for other schools," said Mahoney. "The team is the reason I'm still at Coastal and it has created something special for me to have throughout college and pass along to others."

Mahoney is the Vice President of the Equestrian Team. She founded the club in the Spring of 2010 along with current president Cappy Phalen.

"I've been riding since I was six years old," said Mahoney. "I took time off in high school to focus on soccer, but later decided my heart was no longer on the field."

On the flip side, Brito said the first time she hopped on a horse was in August of 2010 when she joined the team. She joined the team at the beginning of her sophomore year and hopes to continue well after college.

"I will try my absolute hardest to continue riding once I leave Coastal," said Brito. "I need to do something. I'm not going to let that old lady that needs a leg up because she can't mount up on her own."

The Intercollegiate Home Show Association (IHSA) requires riders to complete a minimum number of lessons before competing. "On a good day, I'll be taking 10 and take two lessons with my coach," said Mahoney. "Then I do two or three times a week on my own with my horse."

It hasn't been an easy street for the team, though, as they faced some very large obstacles along the way. They recently relocated their team to a different farm with a new coach within a month span.

"We are comfortable, settled into a new place and could not have asked for a better transition," said Mahoney. "We are comfortable, settled into a new place and could not have asked for a better transition," said Mahoney. "We are comfortable, settled into a new place and could not have asked for a better transition."

Equestrian Team須继续参加地区赛

Demi Mahoney，一名三年级社会学专业的学生和Marina Brito，一名三年级心理学专业的学生，是继续参加地区赛的第一批骑手。

“这是一个巨大的成就对我们来说，我们是真正的竞争对手其他学校，”Mahoney说。“团队就是我依然留在海岸的原因，它为我创造了一种特殊的东西，让我在大学期间和他人分享。”

Mahoney是Equestrian队的副主席。她创办了该俱乐部在2010年春天，与目前的主席Cappy Phalen

“我从六岁就开始骑马了，”Mahoney说。“我在高中时从骑马转为足球，但后来我决定我的心脏不再在球场上。

在另一方面，Brito说第一次骑马是在2010年8月，她加入该队。她在大学二年级时加入该队，并希望在大学毕业后继续骑马。

“我将尽我最大的努力继续骑马，一旦我离开海岸，”Brito说。“我需要做点什么。我不会让那位老奶奶因为腿不好无法骑马。"

国际校际家展协会（IHSA）要求骑手完成最少的训练课程才能参加比赛。“在好天，我会骑10次，然后和我的教练上两堂课，”Mahoney说。“然后我会在一周内做两到三次，自己骑马。

这并不是一个容易的旅程对队来说，因为它们面对了一些非常大的障碍。他们最近将球队迁移到一个新的农场和新的教练在一个月内。

“我们很舒服，已经安顿在一个新地方，我们不可能要求更好的过渡，”Mahoney说。“我们很舒服，已经安顿在一个新地方，我们不可能要求更好的过渡。”

Did You Know February is also Black History Month

We dedicate this month to Black History to celebrate the contributions that African Americans have made to help shape our nation.

These are just a few people who helped shape our culture and history.

W.E.B. Du Bois, led the NAACP after its founding in 1909.

George Washington Carver developed 300 new crops from peanuts alone. He discovered peanut oil, coffee, flour, ink, dyes, plastics.

Jackie Robinson, breaks color barrier when he signed with the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1947.

我们专为这个月奉献给黑人历史，以庆祝非洲裔美国人对塑造我们国家的贡献。

这些只是少数几个人帮助塑造我们的文化和历史。

This one’s for all the girls. Ever walk into class and hear someone complaining about waking up for an 8 a.m. class or how tired they are because they were out until 2 a.m. the night before? I guarantee it’s not an athlete. Not because most of us are so uptight, we just happen to be up all night. It’s not a complaint because I know I get scholarship money and the opportunity to compete at a Division I level, something I always dreamed of. It’s just that someone drives me crazy when college students are complaining about being tired at an early class.

Let me let you in on a little of the Coastal Georgia track and field history. For fun, I’ll throw in my newspaper obligations too.

Monday morning starts early… 6 a.m. early, that’s when I have weight lifting pretty much every Monday morning. I get out of that around 7:30 and have just enough time to shower before meeting the delivery ladies on campus to get the paper.

Then it’s off to deliver The Chanticleer from 8 until 10:30. No rest yet, then I head home to change into workout clothes and it’s off to the track for a workout from 11 until about 1, then I usually head to the shower room for stretching and a ice bath and finally get home about 2 p.m. At this point I can catch my breath, but just for a bit because I have to be in another room for 4 p.m. class. That runs until 5:15, then it’s off to the newspaper office to prepare for our weekly staff meetings, which run until about 7 p.m. Then I’m finally done… and that’s just Monday.

Wednesday are the same, without the paper.

Go for the Degree, Leave with a Ring

Christian Gamble

You go to college to get married, right? Well, at least that is what my divorced mother likes to say. Because the truth is not even found a prospective suitor anymore for her has even caused her to question my sexuality. My typical scenario of meeting someone in public and burping loudly out loud are now justifications to say I like a ring a lot.

I am currently conning their daughters to find husbands in college. As a friend of five underaged and engaged college friends, I believe the universe...

A successful woman is still measured as one with a husband and of a family. The only difference now is that society has placed “career” at the end of the list to modernize that idea.

Openly admitting one does not want to become that “ideal woman” can cause that woman to be placed under a microscope, opening her up to scrutiny.

The idea of having a successful career first and then a marriage causes career-minded like me to predict a life of unhappiness. My mother even believes that one day I will pick back home with hundreds of kids in tow and end up in the way of my loneliness.

I know some college woman fear this idea. The few that do find that “girl” happily grab their parents’ car keys before leaving the right hand and extend their left hand to the prospect of marriage they have been holding their fingers for many years.

Sure, marriage is cool. But for those women who want to achieve career success, continue to be independent and ultimately find that man, the last thing you need is someone telling you to be married off to someone you are not in love with.

So what’s the point of me ranting about this? It kind of, no, no kind of, really pisses me off the standards of modern high-hip have diminished to THAT.

Let’s go out to it you this way. What do you think Tupac or Biggie would say if they heard that? I think one of two things would happen. I think they would either 1) tear them a new one in an ACTUAL true story or 2) quit rapping altogether out of pure spine that they are associated with THAT.

So, if you have the time to get good rest, take it because of some of which they cheat that time. That is why I don’t know if you catch yourself about being tired because you goofed off online until 3 a.m. and had to wake up for that damn 10 a.m. class. Just keep it to yourself!

Where Has All The Music Gone?

Chad Yates

So this week, I had a hard time deciding on what to write as my editorial. Normally, it comes fairly easily to me what to write about. A lot of times, things will just come to me, whether its something that pissed me off throughout the week, something I noticed, learned or whatever. However, this week was different.

At first, I really didn’t have a clue as to what to write about. I just thought of some of the lyrics on YouTube that I know all about. I then googled that topic, I checked out the related videos, and found something that absolutely blew my mind.

It’s a movie song titled “Get a Job” by a group called “Spud” by the rapper who calls himself Lil’ Flip.

I thought about putting some of those lyrics in here to give you a slight taste of just how horrible the music is. After second thought, however, I realized that it is in no way shape or form appropriate. Just know that the lyrics are those of a poorly made five year old combined with a beat so horribly slowed down that it’s conceivable it was made by Kelsey himself.

So what’s the point of me ranting about this? It kind of, no, no kind of, really pisses me off how the music is.

Go Ask The Mighty Oz

Dear Oz,

My boyfriend and I are, like many college couples, actually active. For a while now he has been urging me to go on some sort of birth control like an IUD or condoms and I have been denying him, just because I don’t feel like the idea of having some foreign object inside me. When my boyfriend first brought up the idea, I said no, he backed off, but lately he has been become more insistent. Should I just give in or fight? Can you help me find a compromise?

Sincerely,

-Completely Confused

Dear Comically Confused,

I understand the point that your boyfriend makes. A layer of synthetic skin between all those densely arranged reactive nerve cells certainly dull the fireworks a bit. First and foremost, you should make decisions that you are comfortable with. Would it make you feel uncomfortable with the pill? He needs to respect your decision, keep using condoms, and wait until you are comfortable with other forms of birth control before leaving the gloves in the drawer. He has no right to be pushy because you have more to make at the issue on pregnancy. If you did give in, you’d be frightfully, but unbearably, take the pill, would you always remember to take it on time? Would you always remember to take that you sacrificed your comfort (and potentially your health) for his pleasures? I say keep an open mind, take the time to do the research yourself, and minimize the influence of your boyfriend’s genius in the decision-making process.

When it comes to these kinds of deeply personal decisions you need to trust your gut. Any oral sex is better than your gut over your head. I would go on forever with different options you may have as far as different types of contraceptives you could use, but due to limited space, I urge you to visit WebMD.com and search the key phrase “Birth Control Facts” in the best regards.

Oz

I am requesting your letters and e-mails to facilitate earnest and helpful communication regarding anything you that you feel troubling, confusing, hopeless, or frightening. I will be happy to address scenarios ranging from the light-hearted to the hopeless, or frightening. I will be happy to address your letters by an envelope to The Chanticleer office (Phow Couch, 205).

Please sign your letters by an anonymous title that you wish to be addressed by (if you don’t, I will have to come up with one for you).

Thank you to all of my writers and The Chanticleer readers in advance for their participation.

When you are not teaching, what are you doing? Playing golf and reading.

What is your greatest accomplishment? Doctor of Business Administration (and teaching a 60 to golf over 18 holes).

Who is your Hero and why? Ronald Reagan, because he was elected at a time much like now when the country needed bold leadership to fight the wrongs suffered under three failed presidencies (Nixon, Ford and Carter). In our case now, it's Bush and Obama. It's too bad that there are no Ronald Reagans out there on the political horizon.

Words of wisdom for students: The keys to success: show up, step up and demonstrate commitment.

I guess the first one wasn't bad enough.

Gone (Feb. 24)
In this suspense thriller, Emilie (Adrianne Seyfried) comes home from work to find that her sister Molly has been abducted. As Parrish had escaped from a serial killer just one year before, she is certain the same killer is now after her sister. WOMEN’S TENNIS PERFECT AGAINST USC UPSTATE

KIM SHERAYKO

On Feb. 8th, Coastal Carolina’s Women’s Tennis swept USC Upstate 7-0. The Lady Chant won each of their singles and doubles matches.

Maria Hecker and Kourtney Kowal set the tone for CCU with their 8-6 victory in their doubles match. Miki Bonen and Diana Mortlock, followed by Mikela Kristoferson and Katie Ronachet, won their respective doubles matches 8-7.

Coastal also dominated their single matches. Bienna, Mortlock, Kristoferson, Ronachet, and Kowal won their matches in straight sets. Hecker won her set in comeback fashion after dropping her first set.

Coastal fans packed Kimbel Arena with excitement on Feb. 7 for the Chantuns’ home game against Charleston Southern. CCU was trailing 49-38 with 9:12 left in the second half, but with 7:32 remaining in the game, the Chants recovered to take a 54-52 lead.

The game remained close throughout, with CCU holding a 57-53 lead with 3:48 remaining in the game. Charleston Southern closed the gap to 59-57 with 2:21 left in the game.

CCU continued to push the lead, going up 64-57 with 1:43 left. Charleston Southern cut the lead to 66-61 with 1:26 left.

The Chants went on to win the game, 66-58.

CHRIS GRADNIGO: CCU’S TOP PLAY MACHINE

TJ SUNDBERG

Chris Gradnigo is doing his best to upset Jerome Simpson this year in the SportsCenter Top Ten rankings.

Gradnigo has a knack for making the big dunk this season. To quote coach Cliff Ellis, “He’s been nothing short of ‘RIDUNKULOUS’ this season.”

Although his first top play was number one against Georgia, his last one was a monster. He absolutely posterized Charleston Southern’s 6’9” forward Kelvin Martin with a one-handed slam. And if it weren’t for such a good sports night last Tuesday, his alley-oop dunks where he took off from about five feet away from the basket would have certainly been his third top play of the season.

This would also have put him past former Coastal star Jerome Simpson for most in Coastal history.

“Chris brings excitement to the floor for the Chanticleers,” said

KOURTNEY KOWAL

Women’s Tennis

The Prichard City, Ga. native helped the Women’s Tennis team shut out USC Upstate 7-0 on Feb. 4. Kowal teamed up with Maria Hecker in a doubles match to go 8-0. Kowal then went on to win her singles 6-0 and 6-3 for a meet total-shoutout.
RECORDS WERE MEANT TO BE BROKEN

SHANE NORRIS

Only a few weeks out from the Big South Indoor Conference meet, the Chanticleers are setting high marks and breaking records on the track. The men and women of CCU’s track team traveled all the way to Penn State University to showcase their talents at the Nittany Lion Challenge Cup on Feb. 4. The week saw three school records fall and 15 personal bests surpassed. Setting a new standard for the women was the 1600m Relay Team of Santresa Jamison, Erika Peake, Qwetasjah Thompson and Sharmaine Barnes with a school record time of 4:36.42, besting the previous best by almost a full second.

Peake also had a strong showing in the 200m dash, taking second place and setting a new personal best time of 23.57 to tie for second in the 5000m dash.

Freshman Letitia Sowman blazed her previous best time in the 5000m by 31 seconds to set a new best time of 17:20.31.

On the men’s side, success was spread across the track and field events, as three personal bests and a school record were set in the jumps and five personal bests and a school record were set on the track. In the 400m dash, freshman DeAndre Lipcomb set a new school record with a time of 50.25. The men also performed well in the 60m hurdles with three personal bests and a top-10 finish. Shane Norris led the way, placing eighth with a time of 8.36, followed by Torvon Gre in 14th at 6.49 and Russell Kanner in 19th at 6.49.

In the jumps, freshman Regina Nelson recorded the second best jump in school history with a leap of 6’8.75” to take eighth place. In the long jump, two Chants shined as freshmen Tyler Askew and Rahem Frederic placed fourth and fifth, respectively. Askew’s jump of 23’5.75” set a new school record and Frederic’s leap of 23’2.5” took the second best spot in the record book. Askew also fared well in the 500m dash, with a time of 6.84 to take third place at the meet.

CCU WOMEN’S SOCCER INTRODUCES ELEVEN NEW RECRUITS

KIM SHERAYKO

Coach Paul Hogan kicked off the 2012 women’s soccer season by introducing 11 new student-athletes who committed to CCU. The 2012 recruiting mark Hogan’s 2nd class at Coastal.

“We have high expectations for this class and I know they will be prepared, both physically and mentally, when they arrive on campus in August,” said Hogan in a press release. “These ladies know how, and expect, to win.”

The 2012 signing class includes: midfielders Ali Antounahai, Jordan Davis, Olivia Frost, Darthir Kelley and Justine Tiger; defenders Camille Christie and Megan Wignery; forwards Charlotte Ratcliff and Jacqueline Rigal; as well as goalkeeper Faith Farley and Aly Gillard.

Kelly and Christie are considered “three star” recruits, according to TopDrawerSoccer.com. Hogan believes the newly-committed Chanticleers will excel on and off the field.

“Additionally, each of these ladies has a reputation of excelling in the classroom,” said Hogan. “They all have a love for Coastal Carolina and will be great ambassadors for our University.”

TJ’S TAKE

TJ SUNDBERG

This Friday, Coastal Carolina’s campus is going to be booming. And I mean booming. This can only mean one thing: it’s baseball season at Coastal Carolina.

Aside from the last two Big South Conference tournaments, I have never seen more school spirit at a Coastal athletic event in my two years here than I have at opening day in Conway. NCAA baseball is perhaps one of the most understated and underappreciated sports out there, but man is it exciting to watch. These kids are playing their asses off for a shot at the big leagues, one of the hardest things to do in sports. Sure, most college baseball players who stop on the field get drafted, but actually making it is the hard part.

Personally, I love everything about the game of baseball, so I love the fact that it is one of our best athletic programs at the school. And if anyone knew the time and effort these players put into their game, they’d appreciate the game more, too. See you out there Friday. Go Chants, the road to Omaha starts now.
