From air to... oil?

Last week a British company became the first ever to produce “petrol from air.” The company has produced five liters of gasoline since August when it began manufacturing in a small refinery. The process works by taking the carbon dioxide from air and hydrogen from water and turning the elements into petrol. The fuel created is cleaner than the current gasoline we use, and can be used in a regular engine.

Cannabis for a cause

A couple in England was jailed last week after using the fortune they made running a cannabis factory to help poor families in Africa. The couple made around $400,000 growing cannabis plants on their farm over the last six years, but instead of keeping the money they spent it on life-saving surgery and a school for poor children in a Kenyan village. The couple will spend the next three years in jail.

Don’t eat the tuna

A worker at a Bumble Bee Foods plant in California was ‘cooked to death’ in an industrial oven at the plant last week. Police are still trying to determine how the man wound up in the steamer machine. Operations at the plant are currently suspended while an investigation is performed.
Candidates get fired up but youth vote dwindles

After a spectacular debate last Tuesday night both candidates made a startling impact on the polls. A wide range of topics were discussed including equal pay for woman, energy and gas prices and the handling of the terrorist attack on the US embassy in Libya.

The town hall style debate allowed undecided voters to ask questions they themselves wrote to the candidates. The first question of the night was asked by Jeremy Epstein, a 20-year-old college student, that reflects the frustration and anxiety of what was an excited block of voter only four years ago.

"Mr. President, Governor Romney: as a 20-year-old college student all I hear from professors, neighbors and others is that when I graduate, I will have little chance to get employment.

"That can you say to reassure me, but more importantly my parents that I will be able to sufficiently support myself after I graduate?" said Epstein.

According to a poll conducted by Generation Opportunity, an organization dedicated to getting young people involved in America’s democratic process, 89% of young people ages 18-29 said the current state of the economy is directly impacting their day-to-day lives.

"We found that, as a candidate, the more content and detail you share, the more respect you get," said president of Generation Opportunity Paul Conway.

The most recent poll conducted by the Harvard Institute of Politics shows the President leading Gov. Romney with 48 percent of the youth vote to 26 with 22 percent still undecided.

However, both candidates agree that in order to ensure a brighter future for college graduates, more jobs must be available and college has to be more affordable. The manner in which this is achieved is another story.

In 2008, 66 percent of 18-29 year-olds voted for Obama over McCain according to exit polls. According to more recent polls, only 48 percent of 18-29 year-olds will be voting for Obama.

This is largest drop in supporters in any voting block for a president running for reelection in history. After the Great Recession, employment, homeownership and marriage seem like distant dreams to many American youths, and a large percentage of them are likely to not vote at all. This paints a dismal picture for the future of American voters.

"It’s so important to get Millennials to go out and vote,” said Conway. “By 2020, 38% of the electorate will be millennials.”

The first ever Coastal Carolina University Climbing Wall Competition took place on Oct. 10 in the HTC Center. There were 15 participants in the competition, including both Men and Women Divisions.

Tim McDonald won the Men’s Division by climbing all seven routes with a combined time of 5:02. Stephanie Bunch won the Women’s Division by climbing four of the seven routes.

"Climbing the wall is challenging because it is something that most people are not used to doing," said Max Mello, Club Sports Coordinator and Climbing Wall Director. "You must have balance, strength and endurance in order to be a good climber."

The Climbing Wall is open for all students, faculty and staff free of charge. Campus Recreation provides all necessary equipment, and willingly offers advice to climbers of all skill levels. There are sections that accommodate novice climbers, so people of all abilities are able to climb. Some routes are more challenging than others to give experienced climbers variety.

"I just started climbing this year and I didn’t realize how many new muscles I’ve gained" said Tim McDonald. "It's a full body workout, and every time I climb I try to beat my last time."

Mello explains most people think climbing is all about upper body strength, but it really is good form and footwork that will allow someone to climb more difficult routes. Climbers who want to climb more difficult routes are encouraged to attend a belay clinic. According to Mello, climbers will learn necessary skills to belay a partner and get more in-depth training on climbing. The clinic costs $10 and it is good for the 2012-2013 academic year.

Cancer and Fashion

Elizabeth O’Day, a biochemist from Quincy, Massachusetts spends most of her time in a lab looking at cells under a microscope “studying the genes and pathways that lead to cancer initiation, progression and metastasis.”

“When I was 6 my older my brother was diagnosed with cancer and for two years he fought and thankfully defeated it. Seeing this at such a young age influenced my desire to be a cancer researcher” O’Day said.

Graduating from Boston College in 2006, University of Cambridge in 2007 and currently working on her PhD at Harvard, the biochemist was able to find a way to connect cancer with fashion in a way that is beneficial to cancer research. “Lizzard Fashion” is a clothing line created by O’Day that is aimed at making science fashionable while contributing to medical advances in cancer research. Clothing ranges for adults and babies and has a “geeky” logo, having to do with SCIence.

“I like the idea that it is represented in the clothing,” said Allison Shelley, a sophomore biology major at Coastal Carolina.

“I think anything that benefits cancer research is great,” said Ashley Sprague, a junior nursing major. “A lot of the apparel is adorable, I even picked out some things I would buy.”

O’Day has teamed up with the American Association for Cancer Research in administering her “Dare To Know” scholarship. Proceeds made from the clothing line go towards the scholarship, which allows young researchers college, PhD or post docs to attend the AACR annual meeting, the largest cancer conference in the world.

“Attending conferences and sharing ideas is a major component of being a scientist. When people come together and discuss their work, sparks fly. New ideas, new perspectives, new theories- it’s a major way science moves forward,” O’Day said.

Fall Festival

Wednesday afternoon the ladies of Sigma Sigma Sigma hosted the Fall Festival in Spadoni Park and invited children from the community to play games with the members of the Greek community.

Sigma Sigma Sigma invited children from Myrtle Beach Elementary, Palmetto Springs, The Boys and Girls Club, and Fostering Hope out to Spadoni Park yesterday for carnival games and other activities.

“It was fun,” said Paul Rezuke, a brother of FIJI. “We did the candle game. We put a candle in a carved pumpkin and the kids had to shoot the flame out. It was good until the kids got carried away with the water guns and turned on us.”

The games were put on by fellow Greek organizations at Coastal. Some of the activities were the three legged race, bobbing for apples, balloon darts, face painting, pumpkin and cookie decorating and a pie eating contest.

This was the first year the Sigmas did the Fall Festival.

“It was very successful, we had a great turn out,” said Laura Donato, community service coordinator for Sigma Sigma Sigma. “We would love to say thanks to everyone who came out to help us and participated in the Festival. It really showed the community that the Greeks at Coastal care about the community and want to give back.”

CCU’s Theatre Department presents “The Rocky Horror Show,” leaving audiences “shivering with anticipation…”

Just in time for the Halloween season, CCU’s theatre department presented “The Rocky Horror Show” directed by professor Robin Russell. For this production, additional 11 p.m. performances were added for audience members to participate and interact with the performers during the show.

“The Rocky Horror Show” is a piece I dreamt of directing for many, many years now,” says director Russell. “So when the show was brought up last year in a meeting as a possible season choice, I wasted no time and jumped right on it.”

“The Rocky Horror Show” took audiences on a journey beginning with the new engagement of Janet Weiss, played by Junior BFA Musical Theatre major Hannah Zilber, and Brad Majors, played by Junior BFA Musical Theatre major Michael Lawrence. With love in their eyes, the couple began to drive away; however, they found themselves lost in front of a mysterious mansion. Janet and Brad entered and discovered they were in the company of alien transsexuals from the planet Transylvania.

The show is narrated by voice faculty member David Bankston. They met Dr. Frank-N-Furter, played by Sophomore BFA Musical Theatre major Taylor Wright, and his three minions: Magenta, played by Junior BFA Musical Theatre major Alexa Doggett, Riff Raff, played by Junior BFA Musical Theatre major Charlie Tingen, and Columbia, Junior BFA Musical Theatre major Lexie Wohlfort. Frank-N-Furter was in the process of completing an experiment when Janet and Brad arrive. They were soon introduced to his creation, Rocky, played by Sophomore BFA Musical Theatre major Aaron Burr. Rocky was designed to be the perfect man for Frank with his blonde hair and muscular body. Janet and Brad were forced to get in touch with their sexual side, and ended up cheating on each other with Frank. Through a wild series of events, Magenta and Riff Raff turn against Frank, kill him and Columbia, who dies trying to save Frank, and return to their home planet of transsexual Transylvania.

For the interactive shows, audience members were able to purchase a kit filled with the appropriate props and items to throw around and mock the characters. In addition, viewers were invited to “call” to the performers with snide remarks throughout the show.

“The show was a crazy blessing,” says Wright. “I loved the amalgam of ideas and choices that Robin did a fantastic job of cultivating.” Consistently, cast members shared their joy and growth throughout the rehearsal process of “Rocky.” For every performance, audiences were taken through various emotions and experiences, ending in a standing ovation.

“Two thumbs way up,” says Jessica Bryant, Sophomore BFA Physical Theatre major. “The Rocky Horror Show” was performed at 79th Avenue North on October 11 through 13 and 17 through 20 at 7:30 p.m. and October 13 and 19 at 11 p.m.

Although the show premiered almost 40 years ago, “…we are still producing this piece, and its timeless themes have not died,” shares Russell. “‘Rocky’ speaks not only for the youth, but for unbinding human freedom as a whole. ‘Rocky’ speaks for the underdog, for acceptance, for tolerance, and for community.”

Kiosks promoting safe sex, love for your torso and even free hugs highlighted the sixth annual Love Your Body Day celebration, which took place on the CINO Grille deck Tuesday, Oct. 17. Students filtered in and out during the four-hour event, which featured Zumba demonstrations designed to get attendees active and participating and free healthy snacks. Other activities included a hula hoop contest and trivia questions, where students had the opportunity to win prizes, ranging from free t-shirts and drinking cups, to a Kindle Fire.

Booths at the event included Healthy Eating on A Budget, What not to put in Your Body and Free Hugs. One of the kiosks set up concerned body image, both good and bad. CCU sophomore Savannah Murray and junior Emily Munn created the booth for their Women’s and Gender Studies class. “Our project is meant to show how advertising and our peers are effecting perceptions of body image,” Murray said.

The duo also created a survey that Munn described as “designed to get an idea on how CCU students feel about body image, and how the views differ between women and men.” The I Love My Tummy booth displayed exercises that target the abdominal muscles, as well as methods of controlling body fat. The No Glove No Love booth, ran by volunteers of the Women’s Resource Center, featured pamphlets with facts and figures concerning STD’s and pregnancy and free condoms to those in need.

“This needs to be taken advantage of,” said sophomore volunteer Jalesa Kelly. “CCU has one of the highest STD rates in the state.”

Love Your Body Day was sponsored by CCU’s Women’s Resource Center. The team consisted of faculty members Chris Donevant-Haines, Seleah Crossland, John Glass and Sean Pierce.

Chants take on Keydets

Coastal Football got a much needed win Saturday evening with a 34-7 blowout in Lexington, Virginia against Big South foe VMI.

Both teams remained scoreless for a majority of the first quarter, but once the Chants offense got going they never slowed down.

The running game would prove to be a critical factor in the first quarter. Coastal scored its first touchdown on a 19 yard run by running back Jeremy Height with 7:39 left in the first quarter.

Height would finish the game with 97 yards rushing on his 12 carries. Coastal would go on to score once more in the first quarter on a 16 yard Lorenzo Taliaferro touchdown run, giving Coastal a 14-0 lead.

Coastal scored the only points of the second quarter with 9 minutes to go when Quarterback Arami Hillary connected with Demario Bennett for a 10 yard touchdown pass. Coastal led 21-0 at halftime.

VMI got the ball to start the second half but Coastal’s stingy defense held them to four and out and the Keydets were forced to punt.

Coastal’s defense came through on the punt as it had done all game long. Walk-on linebacker Tyler Watkins overpowered the VMI line and blocked the punt which allowed defensive back Lorenzo Boyles to scoop up the ball at the four yard line and carry it in to the end-zone to give the Chants a 28-0 lead at the end of the third quarter.

Coastal was able to score two more times in the fourth quarter on two field goals. One from 30 yards by Alex Catron and the other from 29 yards by Grant Clayton to give the Chants a 34-0 lead.

The Keydets found the end zone for their first and last time with 32 seconds left in the game when quarterback A.J. Augustine connected for Philip Pickens on a 2 yard touchdown pass.

The win puts Coastal one game away from .500 for the season and puts Coastal a 1-1 in conference play. The Chants will be back in action this weekend as they host the Liberty Flames in the annual Homecoming game at 3:30pm.

The University of South Carolina paid a rare visit to the Conway this past week to take on the Chanticleers volleyball team at the HTC Center. Coming into the game, Coastal had their heads held high, ranked first in the Big South Conference, and ready for what would be a tough home matchup with the Gamecocks.

The Chants started off strong in the first set, however after a brief time out, the Gamecocks came out fighting and pulled away with the win. Following the first set, the Gamecocks eased their way through the next two sets to win the series 3-0.

Coastal Carolina was led by freshmen Eszter Nagy, who had 9 kills, 1 dig, and 2 block assists. Also adding to the stats was junior Kindra Bailey, who recorded 6 kills, 2 service aces, and 2 block assists. Lauren Alejo led the team in assists with 27 while Sam Skryd led the team in digs with 13.

Besides the game itself, the community and the students came out to support the in-state rivalry. Hundreds of fans came out to support the first place Chants in hopes of taking down the Gamecocks, and provided an electrifying atmosphere. Coastal now looks to finish the season strong with only conference games left remaining on the schedule.

Camera - My favorite camera is the 4x5 large format field camera that I bought from Tim Hodge. That camera is a little bit of amazing. It also talks to me and whispers sweet nothings.

When you are not teaching what are you doing?

Unlike Brad Williams I am probably sleeping. When I am not sleeping I am most likely out photographing, working on photography, or scheming.

What is your favorite mythological beast and why?
The Winged Unicorn. Once and only once have I come into contact with this creature. I ran in fear from the majestic beast. Actually it was mostly confusion. To be completely honest I didn't understand why I it was there in the first place. Quite an experience. Live on mighty Winged Unicorn.

What has been your weirdest/most outlandish job?
Selling snake oil to the unfortunate and working at a roofing plant while in college. Sometimes I wish I could go back to the snake oil.

Words of wisdom for students:
Chances are your teachers know when you are full of lies and B.S. Just saying.

Top 5

Inescapable YouTube Sensations

1. PSY “Gangnam Style”
The South Korean rapper has brought the world to the dance floor with this surprising hit single. The video recently set the Guinness World Record for the most likes ever on YouTube with over 480 million views. The song has become a pop culture phenomenon and is played regularly on radio stations and in clubs around the world. As much as the critics would like to move on, the fans of PSY are continuing to do his signature horse dance every time they hear it.

2. Antoine Dodson “Bed Intruder Song”
Dodson had everyone saying the infamous line “Hide yo kids, hide yo wife” after an interview about an attempted house intrusion in his neighborhood made him an overnight celebrity. The video caught attention because of Dodson’s tempered and flamboyant style of delivery in street vernacular directly to the camera. The song has been viewed over 105 million times on YouTube and even won a Comedy Award for Best Viral Original. Now run and tell that!

3. Sweet Brown “ Ain’t Nobody Got Time For That”
The distressed Oklahoma City resident just wanted a cold pop and some bbq, but received a lot more when she became an Internet sensation after depicting her experience from escaping an apartment fire in a TV station interview. Sweet Brown’s animated and catchy remarks about dealing with bronchitis during the fire were enough to garner her over 6 million views on YouTube.

4. Keenan Cahil: Various Videos
Cahil’s lip-synching of popular songs on YouTube has made him an instant Internet celebrity. He’s covered songs by Katy Perry, Maroon 5, 50 Cent and many others. He suffers from a form dwarfism called Maroteaux-Lamy Syndrome, but he doesn’t let it deprive him of entertaining his millions of followers.

5. Sophia Grace Brownlee and Rosie McClelland
The pint-sized British girls found instant fame with an impressive rendition of “Super Bass” by Nicki Minaj and have since done many covers and appeared on various U.S. talk shows. At the ages of 5 and 9, these girls prove they have serious swag with their lyrical talent.

Music Review

Barefoot Blue Jean Night by Jake Owen

Barefoot Blue Jean Night is Jake Owen’s third album, it was released during Summer 2011 debuting his first number one single, “Barefoot Blue Jean Night”. The country singer has had a fast rising career since the album and is currently on tour with bands Love and Theft & Florida Georgia Line. He will be coming to North Myrtle Beach to perform at the House of Blues on November 8 as he finishes up his “Summer Never Ends” tour.

Along with his number one single from the album, Owen is also known for the singles, “Alone With You” and “The One That Got Away”. His laid back appearance and go with the flow attitude makes for a perfect album that will always bring back warm summer memories.

Entertainment

The television show “Revenge” debuted in 2011 on ABC. Main character Emily Thorne (Emily VanCamp) moves in next door to the Hampton’s socialites, the Grayson’s, for the summer. In reality, Emily is actually Amanda Clarke, her father was framed for a crime he did not commit by the people of the Hampton’s. After her father’s death in prison, Amanda “Emily” has returned to the Hampton’s with a new identity for revenge.

Emily tries to navigate her way through the upper class society with the hopes of destroying the people who betrayed her father. The more Emily’s emotions get tangled through the web of lies she has created, the more she is motivated to restore her father’s legacy. The curve balls that are thrown at Emily seem irrational and frightening but with vivid flashbacks and fond memories Emily overcomes every obstacle she is faced with.

The first season of Revenge can be found on Netflix, the second season has begun and airs every Sunday night on ABC at 10 p.m.

Horoscope

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) -- Make a mental game out of any difficulties that you might have to contend with. Your capacity for achievement will be greatly enhanced if you don’t take anything too seriously.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) -- Although you’re likely to be extremely enterprising, you won’t necessarily be working for personal gain. It’s more apt to be the needs and wants of those you love that will motivate you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) -- As long as you act on your ideas, your probabilities for success look to be extremely encouraging. Two of your greatest assets are your imagination and initiative.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) -- This could be a materially rewarding day for you, but, surprisingly, not necessarily due to your own efforts. All the good that befalls you might be derived from an indirect source.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) -- You’ll perform twice as efficiently working with persons who know exactly where they are going rather than with those who are more carefree. Choose wisely.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) -- Don’t look for problems, but don’t run away from them either. This is a day when you should be able to respond unusually well to challenging situations.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) -- Regardless of your circumstances and/or problems, think positive -- whether you realize it or not, this is an excellent day for fulfilling your hopes and desires.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) -- It’s perfectly OK to be bold when striving to achieve your purposes, but not to the point of foolhardiness. If bravado is required in certain cases, use it sparingly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) -- The answers that you’ve been searching for can be found by discussing your concerns with someone who knows how to listen and has advised you correctly in the past.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) -- If you spot a development that shows possibilities of being financially meaningful, go ahead and exploit it, but do so carefully. It might be more complex than it initially appears.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) -- Someone with whom you’re involved could presently be on a lucky roll that could include you if you don’t get cold feet. Instead of running away, snuggle up even closer.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) -- You’re in a better-than-usual cycle for achieving more meaningful objectives, especially those that are related to your personal ambitions and material security. Go after things with gusto.
