Woman arrested for not returning video cassette

Kayla Finley failed to return a video cassette “Monster-In-Law” back in 2005 and there has been a warrant for her arrest ever since. Finley went to a police station in Pickens, SC to report a crime where she was then arrested herself for there being a warrant on her for “failure to return a rented video cassette.” We can all learn from this, return your Redbox on time, or literally go to jail over it.

The science of “the munchies”

It’s old news that THC in marijuana causes the munchies, but how? Turns out that THC, the active ingredient in Mary Jane, activates cannabinoid receptors called CB1s that live in your brain’s “olfactory bulb.” This is the part of the brain that helps you smell. Cannabinoid intoxication—i.e. getting high—boosts “odor detection,” amplifying your sense of smell and taste, which causes you to eat more.

Woman legally changes her first name from Sheila to Sexy

No, really. Sheila Crabtree says her husband and children approve of the change and a judge legally approved the request in Newark, Ohio. She says Sheila is “the ugliest name out there” and that changing her name to Sexy would “make [her] complete.” When asked why she chose Sexy, Crabtree said she’s fun and free-spirited.

Massive Sinkhole swallows Corvettes

A massive sinkhole opened up inside of the National Corvette Museum in Bowling Green, Ky. swallowing a total of 8 Corvettes. Two of them were on loan from General Motors while the others were owned by the Museum.

Special Operations Wounded Warrior offers many services to veterans

Guest Column By:
Jacquea Brown

This Charity was formed in August of 2012 for the sole purpose of providing outdoor experiences to a select group of both active duty and veteran U.S. Military Special Operations Forces, that have received wounds in battle, and that have received our Country’s prestigious Purple Heart Medal.

SOWW was founded by Brian Molaschi, the President, Joel Pellicci Jr., the Vice-President, Eddie Friend, the Treasurer, David W. Floyd, the Secretary, and Chad Moorman, the Sergeant at Arms, whom are all U.S. Military Special Forces Veterans, local businessmen, and avid outdoorsmen.

SOWW was started for the intent of offering thanks and fellowship to the men and women of our Special Operation Forces who have sacrificed so greatly for our own personal freedoms and safety.

These Special Operations Forces rarely gets the recognition they truly deserve because of the secretive nature of the missions they do for our Country. SOWW feels that there is not a more deserving group of individuals than our Special Operation Forces members that frequently stand in harm’s way for the protection of our freedoms, often with little or no recognition.

SOWW’s distinct purpose is to recognize their sacrifices, aid in their rehabilitation by mending the strains of their many sacrifices, and to provide strength and comfort, all with our sincerest expressions of gratitude. Warriors from all branches attend this event.

Last year Coastal Carolina Army ROTC attended the special operations wounded warrior hog hunt also known as ‘takin bacon’. We volunteered to help with directing people where to go and get soldiers what they needed if they required anything, but soon turned into more than that by the end of the experience. The weather both days was not the most favorable, but everyone braved the light cold rain to take part in the hunt and help out.

When we first got there we had just started by helping them get things ready to go out and help direct people who were showing up where to go. As the day went on and hunts went out and came back, more and more of us accompanied some of these hunts by the end of the day. While we were back at the cabin they started to clean some of the hogs and they taught those who were willing to learn how to do it.

While those who did not want to partake in that activity sat in the cabin and listened to the stories most of these warriors had.

It was amazing to hear the accounts of what they had experienced and the sacrifices most of them have made in the pursuit of something greater. They let us ride on their ATVs, look at their guns, let us talk to them about their experiences, and showed us a great time all around while we had our own experiences. After we ate, CCU ROTC presented them with a $500 donation to help with more functions like this in the future.

By the end of the event, and hearing all the stories and the experiences these patriots had, any amount of money, big or small, donated to this organization would go to great use by helping these warriors recover from injuries acquired in battle.

Spending the day with these men was a day well spent because of the first-hand accounts we might later put to use in our own military careers. There is nothing these men would not do or give for their country or to any one individual person if they needed it.

In the end what this organization is doing is a great service to these warriors and this country. This is a great organization and we hope to be a part of this hunt in the future to help give back for how these warriors had helped us.
After graduation plans; A look at the future

With the May 10th graduation ceremony rapidly approaching, Coastal Carolina University's graduating seniors are forced to decide what they want to do with the degree they have worked so hard to get.

In a recent survey conducted by the Cooperative Institutional Research Program at the University of California–Los Angeles, 85.9% of freshman college students said the number one reason they went to college was "to be able to get a better job."

Well, now that school is almost over, some students have to choose between higher education or getting a job.

Senior Jenifer Butler said, "I wanted to go to work, but I chose to apply to graduate school because I was told I would make more money."

Higher education is expensive, but for this reason students need to know how they can use their degree to make the most of their college investment.

When it comes to the University, one of the responsibilities of college educators is to help students understand that there are many opportunities and different paths they can take in order to open the door for more possibilities.

Essentially, professors not only teach, but also help prepare their students for success.

"There are some professors in my program that prepare students really well. It is almost as if they take you under their wing," said Butler.

Senior Parris Booker is fulfilling her dream of becoming a criminal defense attorney.

"Coastal has definitely prepared me for law school. I started out as a political science major and they have steered me in the right direction," said Booker.

Many students will hit the ground running after they graduate. Although she enjoyed her time at Coastal, Blaire Virden who co-owns her own clothing company, "Earth Travel," is moving after she graduates.

Virden feels the education and skills she received at Coastal can help her in many areas of her life, including her own business. She said, "My professors have taught me different approaches and ways I can express myself."

When asked if Coastal prepared her for life outside of school Virden said, "Absolutely. Everything I learned, even if it is something as little as how to write an email appropriately, has helped me.

Simple things that everyday students take for granted."

Taking the next step in ones life or career is difficult and exciting. However, it comes down to the process of figuring out what you want to do after graduation.

"Whatever you choose to do you should think about it early. I think you should address it junior year because by the time senior year comes around it is almost as if you blink and it is over," said Butler.

Feral Cats on campus to be vaccinated

By: Kelley McDonnell
Features Editor

If you’re like me, you’ve probably seen a few cats here and there around campus; maybe a few by the bridge behind the Smith Science Center, or near the Singleton building, or running for their lives in front of your car. Although no one is really sure how many there are on campus, odds are you have probably seen one.

For some, it may not bother to see these friendly animals in between classes.

“There was one sitting on top of my car parked at Wall, once I walked toward it, it jumped off and ran away,” said Phillip Todd, junior Business major.

Students have been wondering if these cats are stray, or if they belong to someone, and why they hang out around campus.

“Right now random people feed them but leave food overnight which is not healthy as it attracts other wildlife. We have volunteers who have signed up to assist as soon as we are able to catch and release them we will have volunteers assisting making sure food is put out for the cats and removed each day,” said Debbie Conner, Vice President of Student Affairs.

The university is planning to gather these “feral cats” and take them to get sprayed or neutered and vaccinated.

“I love cats but I would never pet them or anything because I have no idea where they come from,” said Conner.

So maybe wait for the OK, but eventually if you see these cats on campus, they are friendly as can be and it will be okay to pet them.

“I love cats but I would never pet them or anything because I have no idea where they come from,” said Delanie Sage, sophomore Marine Science major.

The university will be notified once these cats have been cleared and they will officially become “Coastal Cats.”

“I have worked here since 1994 and there have always been varying numbers of feral cats since I started working here,” said Conner.

The wrath of Snowmagedon

By: Samantha Bergold

Ice on ice on ice. Snowmagedon was back for round two at Coastal Carolina last week. The puddles were deep and the car windows frozen, and what was supposed to be a delayed day turned into another full day without classes.

A CCU Alert was sent out to students warning them of falling tree limbs. One such limb fell on the light at Chanticleer Drive causing inconvenience and danger to drivers. At the recycling center at the Gardens, tree limbs collapsed, causing it to break.

Temporary electric, cable and internet outages also occurred on main campus and University Place.

Andrew Hariland, a senior, said he thought the closing was a good idea so that nobody would get hurt. The shuttle drivers dropped off and picked up in front of Hicks Dining Hall to guarantee students safety.

A statement was released by the Office of the President saying that classes will be made up but a specific date was not released. The main concern of Coastal students is to not have a day removed from their Spring Break or Easter weekend.

Joe Nelson, a senior, said he agreed with the closing as long as it does not effect his spring break. This would be a concern considering some students have already made travel plans.

Students started using the hashtag on Twitter ‘CollegeSkip-Day’ to show that they will not be attending this day of made up classes, but what students do not realize is that they are losing money-lots of money.

For in-state students, each hour of class allocates to about $25 of tuition and about $57 of tuition for out-of-state students. For a full time student of fifteen credits, you lost about $181 for in-state and about $423 for out-of-state from the school cancellations two weeks ago. Information regarding making up these past days has not been stated.

Some students believe Coastal Carolina made the right move of canceling class from the extreme weather conditions, as it would have been too dangerous to have class due to the slippery pathways in both occasions.

However, Coastal Carolina still does not have a stated policy concerning make up days.
A surfer looks for waves during rough storm waters.

Moglia and company add 14 new recruits

By: Kyle Jordan
Sports Editor

Head CCU Football Coach, Joe Moglia, and his coaching staff recently announced the 2014 recruiting class.

This year’s class is composed of 14 players from all over the east coast with recruit’s hometowns ranging from Miami, FL., to Syracuse, NY. Out of the 14 players that were recruited by the Chanticleers, eight earned All-State honors during their high school careers, three were named All-Region, and five helped lead their high school teams to the post season. Six of the recruits play on the offensive side of the ball, five play on defense, and three are currently listed as athletes, meaning that they could be playing positions that are different from the ones they have previously played.

By recruiting class standards, the Chanticleer’s have brought in a relatively small class. Moglia attributes the size of this year’s recruiting class to the significantly large amount of recruits that were brought back in 2013.

“Last year, we brought in over 30 players from 12 different states,” Moglia said. “So by definition, we did not have as much room this year as we have had in the past.”

Coastal’s recruiting class is the second smallest in the Big South Conference. Liberty currently has the smallest class with 13 recruits and Kennesaw State’s 29 recruits are the most in the conference.

They may be small in numbers, but Moglia believes that the players who make up this year’s recruiting class are exactly who the Chanticleer’s need in order to continue their football success. Moglia said that he feels good about the quality of the class that he and his staff have brought in and he feels that they have addressed any team needs that were present prior to signing day.

Moglia is entering into his third season as the Chanticleer’s Head Coach and has a career record of 20-8 at Coastal.

Softball tournament recap

The Lady Chanticleer Softball hosted the Kickin Chicken Classic this past weekend. On Friday they played a double header against Purdue. In the first game they won 30 and Kiana Quolas pitched her first shutout. The Lady Chanticleers fell in the second game losing 115 in a hard fought battle.

Kory Hayden hit two home runs in each game against Purdue which is impressive to start of the season. On Saturday they got a 62 victory over towson. Kory Hayden continued to impress hitting her 5th homer of the year. For the second half of the day on Saturday they got a 91 win over Virginia. Overall for the Kickin Chicken Classic the Lady Chanticleers had a 31 series bringing their season to 51.

The Chanticleers will travel to Gainesville, Florida next weekend for the University of Florida tournament to try and continue their successful beginning of the season.
Baseball team falls in season opener

CCU Pitcher Ben Smith struck out 11 batters through four innings and Coastal had three players finish with two hits, but a series of errors led to the Chants’ demise as they fell 7-5 to Pittsburgh.

The Panthers delivered the first blows of the game and took a 2-0 lead at the top of the sixth inning, but the Chants were able to pull within one run in the bottom of the inning when G.K. Young’s RBI single brought Colin Hering home.

Pittsburgh increased their lead to 5-1 in the top of the seventh inning thanks to a CCU error and a two-run home run, but Coastal was able to cut the deficit down to three runs in the bottom of the seventh.

Tyler Chadwick got things started for Coastal in the seventh inning with his first career triple. Anthony Marks’ RBI groundout one batter later brought Chadwick home for the Chants’ second run of the game.

Coastal keeps the title “Road Warriors”

Coastal traveled up to Lexington, V.A. on Wednesday, February 10, to take on the Virginia Military Institute Cadets.

It was a slow start for the Chants as VMI took on an early 13-4 lead. VMI continued to dominate most of the first half, stretching their lead as high as 17.

Coastal was able to stay in the game thanks to Elijah Wilson’s 15 first half points, making 7 of 10 shots.

VMI took a 50-36 lead into halftime leaving Coastal with a huge gap to mind in the second half.

After the half, Coastal came out strong with a 10-3 run, decreasing the VMI lead to 7 less than three minutes into the half. This run featured a pair of Chanticleer 3-pointers, one by Badou Diagne and one from Josh Cameron.

Coastal made another quick run that cut the VMI lead to 2 points with 13:32 remaining.

Wilson was able to tie the game at 60 scoring a clutch 3-pointer with just under 12:00 remaining in the half, matching the score for the first time since the first few seconds of the game.

The game remained a back-and-forth fight for the next 10 minutes. With the game tied at 76, VMI’s QJ Peterson made a layup to put the Cadet’s ahead with a score of 78-76 with 1:37 left to play.

On Coastal’s next possession, Wilson made another 3-pointer with a Cadet hand in his face to give Coastal a 1-point lead with 1:16 remaining.

VMI’s Peterson was unable to match Wilson as he attempted a 3-pointer which fell out of bounds.

Coastal earned the possession again, but Diagne’s attempt at a step-back jumper did not fall in, giving the Cadet’s the ball with less than 37 seconds on the clock.

Cameron knocked down both free-throws giving the Chants an 81-78 lead over the Cadets.

VMI attempted a long pass which was stolen by Coastal’s Warren Gillis who was fouled immediately, sealing the deal for Coastal.

The final score was 83-78, giving the Chants a very important conference win.

This win put Coastal one game ahead of UNC Asheville for first place in the Big South South Division. This victory was very significant because the top two seeds in each division get a first round bye in the Visit Myrtle Beach Big South Tournament.

Coastal Carolina is now 5-1 in conference road games.
Strawberry Yum Yum
By: Kourtney Wade

What You’ll Need:
- 1 heart shaped baking pan equipped for a
- 2-layer cake mix
- 2 cups of Keebler Graham Cracker Crumbs
- 1 stick of butter
- 8 oz cream cheese
- 1 cup of confection sugar
- 2 3.4 oz packages of vanilla instant pudding
- 1 16 oz carton of strawberries
- 1 16 oz bag of strawberry glaze

Let’s Get Started:
Place whole stick of butter in a microwaveable bowl. Melt and stir. Add 2 cups of graham cracker crumbs to butter and mix together until well blended. Taking a handful of the crumbs at a time, create a bottom layer in the pan until completely covered.

Combine cream cheese, confection sugar, and Cool Whip and blend together in a mixer until smooth. Pour mixture over graham cracker bottom crust in the pan. Spread evenly and smoothly.

Next, take milk and both packages of vanilla instant pudding and mix together well, using either a fork or wire whisk. Continue to stir until the mixture hardens. Afterwards, place concoction in refrigerator to chill while you prepare the strawberries. Once the strawberries are complete, pour chilled combination over the other layers in the pan.

Wash and thinly slice the whole carton of strawberries. Dry strawberries thoroughly. Combine strawberry glaze with sliced strawberries. Spread as top layer covering all parts.

This enchanting and delicious dessert is just the thing to kick your Valentine’s Day celebration into gear. This sweet course is light, cheery, easy to make, and just as much fun to eat as it is to make. No matter who you decide to send your day of love with; boyfriend, girlfriend, best friends, or sadly mom and dad, if you serve this sweet treat everyone’s gloomy single’s heart will be instantly lifted. Dig in and Cheer Up!

Ariana Grande - Yours Truly

By: Staff writer

Her voice can be compared to Mariah Carey’s and her acting on Nickelodeon’s Sam and Cat reminds you of your quirky friend, but Ariana Grande is definitely making a lane of her own.

Her innocent sweetheart looks make you wonder how an amazing voice can come from such a soft spoken person. Her debut album, Yours Truly, released in August, but it didn’t gain the attention it deserves.

This album gives you all the emotions of love found and love lost. Its starts off with a soulful 1950’s sounding track “Honeymoon Avenue” that makes you reminisce on the best days of your relationship.

This song sets the mood for the album; her voice captures you from beginning to end with the highest of notes filled with lust, love and sometime sadness. The album features appearance from Big Sean, Nathan Sykes, MIKA, and of course Mac Miller.

“The Way” begins with easy-flowing words from Pittsburgh Indie rapper Mac Miller who opens the track for Ariana to blow through which has you mistakenly thinking you’re listening to a 90’s Mariah hit.

“Almost is Never Enough” makes you wonder what went wrong in the relationship and how you can make it right.

The album is full of its ups and down in the life of love, but it the end it all seems worth it. Ariana is on the up and up in her career and this is just the beginning for her.

The love will keep on coming from this American sweetheart.

Telling the story of the late Nelson Mandela’s wife Winnie Mandela, played by Jennifer Hudson, this biographical drama will leave you feeling empowered.

Leaving her rural area and venturing off to the city of Johannesburg to receive a higher education, she is approached by the charming Nelson Mandela, played by Terrance Howard, who is lawyer and boxer.

Getting married before Mandela has to face his multiple’s charges, they join hands in an enduring and testing love story in the times of apartheid in Africa.

Winnie Mandela will definitely leave you grateful and show an empowering woman who not only fought for herself, but fought for a whole country.

She fought for her husband’s dreams, her children’s love, and her African homeland.
