Cordaro Faux News: The state is alright

With this lucky coincidence, Joe Smith is now running the state of South Carolina. “This just doesn’t sit well with my moral compass” comments South Carolina’s ex-governor Nikki Haley. Haley lost elections this November when a record 45% of South Carolina residents bought and read their first newspaper in ten years. Though many were worried that their votes actually made a difference, Joe Smith’s control has been looking bright for South Carolina. Out of all of this, one problem still remains: this guy Joe Smith hasn’t even showed up yet.

“This figurative imaginary person is now in charge, and frankly I couldn’t be happier” admits working-class mother of two Anna Ranold. With nobody passing laws that put corporations and privatizes before the needs of the people, poverty and unemployment rates have dropped by 50% within just one week. Within the next few weeks, it is speculated that equal marriage rights, a law to keep people from discriminating against Muslims, and a law that finally stops the Citizens United amendment that was also legally awarded all of his winnings due to an amendment to allow write-ins was present. Thinking whoever was written in would not possibly win, 75% of voters nominated an ambiguous ‘Joe Smith’ for every position on this year’s ballot. Without realizing it, their ‘Joe Smith’ actually won every position up for grabs.

This mysterious ‘Joe Smith’ has been South Carolina is now on record as being the most favored state by the rest of the world for its new liberal-progressive agenda. The European states of Denmark, Sweden, and Finland have even sent South Carolina a formal invitation to “come hang out with [Scandinavia] some time maybe this weekend or next Tuesday.” Time will tell if Joe Smith ever shows up, but in the meantime all is fine on the Carolina Front.

This is Dylan for Faux News, keep it classy, Coastal.

After polls closed this November from mid-term elections, residents of South Carolina were excited to see great changes in state authority and representation. This was especially because nearly all voters wrote in their own nominations when the option for write-ins was present. Thinking whoever was written in would not possibly win, 75% of voters nominated an ambiguous ‘Joe Smith’ for every position this year’s ballot. Without realizing it, their ‘Joe Smith’ actually won every position up for grabs.

This mysterious ‘Joe Smith’ has been legally awarded all of his winnings due to an amendment that was also voted on the same day. While important issues like discrimination against gay marriage, corporate tax fraud, blinded politicians, and education reform are threatening the unborn generations, South Carolina voted on an amendment to allow one candidate to hold multiple positions and they could move into those positions effective immediately.

ON THE COVER: Coastal Football by Chanticleer Pride
Opinion by Miss CCU

What happens when you take a girl from Phoenix, Arizona and move her 2,209 miles across the country? Well, I can tell you the answer—she finds the school of her dreams and encounters the opportunity of a lifetime.

I arrived here at Coastal in August of 2012 and knew that I had made the right choice in where to continue my education. Everyone was friendly, the Marine Science program was out of this world, and I just felt right at home. But I wanted to challenge myself, so when I saw a sign for the Miss Coastal Carolina University pageant, I figured hey why not? I had no pageant experience whatsoever, and the thought of walking around on stage, in a bikini, in front of hundreds of my peers was a little nerve wracking to say the least! But I did it. Little did I know that two years later, I would have the pleasure of holding that position on campus, and as my reign came to an end, I would also have the opportunity to train and mentor the 14 young women who would compete for the crown during this year’s Homecoming festivities.

Being able to represent Coastal as Miss CCU is an honor. This is a school that is constantly growing and providing new experiences and opportunities for its students. Day by day, we are accomplishing new things in classrooms, on sports fields, and in the many other areas of the professional world, where the phrase “Coastal Carolina Chanticleer” is becoming more and more established (and pronounceable!). This is our home away from home, filled with familiar faces and friendly smiles, where we bleed teal and bronze with Chanticleer Pride. There is no place like it, and for me to be able to wear my crown and sash at events on and off campus is truly a humbling experience.

Since my time as Miss CCU has come to an end, I would like to say thank you, Coastal Carolina University, for letting me be a part of our ever growing history, to have experienced what I have experienced, and to have met all the wonderful, encouraging people along my way. To be able to represent Coastal is one of the greatest roles I have ever had, and I know that I will cherish it forever. It is my pleasure to hand over this title to Natalie Francis-Harris, whom I know will do a wonderful job representing Coastal in the year to come, as she has a personality and love for CCU that outshines many others. But for now, just remember-Coastal Is Number One.

Sincerely,
Shannon Kelahan-Pierson

Dear Chauncey

Need advice on how to handle your daily struggle? Ask Chauncey! You can submit questions anonymously on our ask.fm/TheChanticleer page and your questions could be answered in the next issue. Advice will be given by your fellow peers anonymously.

Dear Chauncey, my mom is coming around Ingle a lot lately. She lives in Conway, too and I just can’t take it! What can I do?

Parents sometime have a hard time letting go when their children go away to college. Your mom could be suffering from ‘empty nest’ syndrome. Your mother might have all this extra time without you and misses the time you guys had together. Your mother could be checking up on you because she is worried or does not know if you can handle the college life.

If you are getting annoyed with her showing up, do not lash out. This will only make matters worse. Keep in mind, she is your mother and possibly paying for your college education. You need to keep the peace and understand where she is coming from.

Talk to your mother about her and your concerns. See what is bothering her. If she is worried your not doing okay, show her how well you are doing. Schedule time every week, when you two can hang out. If she has a scheduled visit with you, she might be less likely to show up unannounced. You can also schedule time to visit. Maybe sleep over there. She will miss you less if you are visiting her more often.

Dear Chauncey, I went out ONCE. I went to a party that my friend hosted. I got drunk and I swear something bad happened. I want to get “checked out” you know? “Down there.” What can I do?

Talk to the professionals at health services. They will be able to help you. You may want to go to counseling services as well. Talking about what may have happened will help you feel better and decide what steps should be taken next.

Just because you are away at college does not mean you need to change who you are. If you are someone who does not like to go out and drink, thats fine. Be who you are. Going away to college does not mean you have to lose yourself. If you feel that the people around you are peer pressuring you, you may want to find new friends. True friends will not make you be someone you’re not. There are many students at Coastal who do not need to go out and drink to have a good time. Find people who accept who you are and do not put you in unsafe situations.

Diana Farfan “Bread and Circus”

BY: SAMANTHA RILEY
FEATURES EDITOR

From now until November 24th Diana Farfan’s “Bread and Circus” art exhibit will be on display in the Rebecca Randall Bryan Art Gallery in the Edwards Building.

Farfan was born in Bogotá, Colombia but has split her schooling between Colombia and the United States. After receiving her BFA at the National University of Colombia she found herself in South Carolina, getting her MFA in Ceramics at the University of South Carolina.

Many pieces from Farfan’s 2D and 3D collection have been viewed and awarded in places such as Columbia, the United States and Taiwan. Amongst all her works she is most known for her surrealistic ceramic toys, marionettes, puppets and dolls.

Like much of her other work, “Bread and Circus” is Farfan’s way of expressing her experiences between Colombia and the United States. The moving limbs and exaggerated features are meant to represent the complexities to our seemingly mechanical, industrial and materialistic lives.

Farafan says, “I play with clay in order to live, to create, to build, and also to give life to my own dreams and the dreams of others. My transition from Colombia to the United States and my encounter with a different culture is the journey that has allowed me to believe that it’s possible to create and live in a world of magical realism.”

The ceramic sculptures and marionettes in Farafan’s exhibit tend to follow some major particular themes including the human condition and the human body itself. The pieces from her “Bread and Circus” collection exemplify the human condition as being vulnerable, fragile, vulnerable, isolated and manipulated. She missed classic and contemporary elements in order to give what she believes to be an accurate description of the human condition.

Farafan explains that “Bread and Circus” is her way of expressing “the relationships of nation and identity; of passion and intimacy; of imagination and conflict; and most importantly of citizenship and consumerism.”

While there is no direct explanation with each work of art defining these issues, Farafan designed these specifically so that each piece is eye opening and allows for one’s own personal interpretation.

Through her surrealist style as well as her figurative and symbolic pieces, Farafan is able to communicate the deeper meaning behind her art.

You can find her other pieces at aHandOfLove.com. This event is free and open to the public.
Tatum brings magic to Myrtle Beach

BY: SAMANTHA BERGOLD

On election day, many Coastal students chose to vote, while others decided to get ahead on their coursework. A select few Coastal students decided to take advantage of the day and go on an adventure; an adventure to meet strippers.

Their adventure started at 7am, waiting in line to see if they could be an extra in the filming of the final scenes of Magic Mike XXL. The select few chosen proceeded to work all day filming in their Fourth of July attire.

The Cash Grocery at 6th Avenue and Ocean Blvd. was a location used for filming extras. The film crew used an arcade on the Boardwalk decorated with Fourth of July decorations to set the scene.

The Boardwalk Beach Resort had 'Welcome Stripper Con Happy 4th.' The plot of the sequel is a road trip from Tampa to Myrtle for a stripper convention.

Those not chosen decided to wait around the boardwalk to see if they could catch a glimpse of Channing Tatum in person.

Taylor Long, Coastal Carolina junior and Sigma Kappa president, was one of the few who saw the actors in action.

"The atmosphere was crazy," said Long. "Everyone was screaming, hustling to take pictures, and the cops were making sure that everyone kept moving. It was overwhelming when it was going on. When it was over, it was almost unbelievable that it happened."

All over the Boardwalk and Pier 14 were the filming crews. Dressed in all black, wearing their filming passes and Ray Bans. People all over would approach them looking for the information they were dying to hear, where is Channing Tatum?

Long heard where Tatum would be from her friend applying to be an extra.

"All of them were sitting in a Rolls Royce so it was tough to see, but still really awesome," said Long.

Tatum was not the only actor around Myrtle Beach for the filming. He was also accompanied with Matthew Bomer and Joe Manganiello.

Paparazzi was all over the Boardwalk as well, trying to get the perfect shot of all the actors driving around in the iconic, Rolls Royce.

In the afternoon, Papa's Dining catered lunch for the filming crew. Security said Tatum may have had his morning coffee from the Starbucks adjacent to Papa's.

Breakers resort was rented out for the two days of filming and as a location for the crew to stay.

Long said it was an experience she will never forget.

"It was an experience that I was happy to be a part of," said Long. "This may have been the only time that I get to see them in person and I'm really glad that I went. I will definitely be pointing out the scene in the movie theater."
Coastal Humanists was founded in the fall of 2013 and has received mostly positive reviews from students and faculty. This is the first secular organization on campus and is here to represent an alternative to other faith-based organizations. While you've heard of humanism from history class, modern organizations empowered by humanism connect it with non-religious or secular attitudes.

According to a Pew Research poll in 2012, “one in five Americans do not identify with a religion.” Younger generations are especially less “religiously affiliated” having been raised in more modern, diverse societies. As of late, there are 367 organizations sponsored by Secular Student Alliance, a national organization that sponsors high school and college groups. Coastal Humanists became affiliated with SSA in 2013 and has connected with several other organizations around the area.

Coastal Humanists not only serves the secular demographic at Coastal. They encourage everyone and anyone to be involved whether or not a member is Christian, Jewish, Muslim, Buddhist, Agnostic, etc. They welcome curiosity, inquiry, and critical thinking during meetings where they invite professors to speak about certain issues and ideas. Along with guest speakers and group discussions, the Humanists host game nights and kayak with other local humanists.

Besides interacting with each other, the members want to reach out to the rest of campus and to their local communities. They’ve found allies in PRIIDE, the Women’s and Genders Studies Program, the Inspiration Movement, and MOGA.

“It's not humanism if you aren’t interacting with other humans” says one philosophy professor also close with the organization. “This area definitely speaks out a lot more about religion and Christianity to the point where it sometimes becomes unacceptable to talk about not being religious or a Christian” says founder and President Dylan Cordaro. The main goal of Coastal Humanists is split into two parts, says Cordaro. The first part is to increase the visibility of the nonreligious on campus. The second: to change the stigma against the nonreligious and show others that this alternative to faith is also a positive thing.

With just one bake sale earlier this semester, the Humanists raised $115 dollars. They plan on fundraising more for the India-based Responsible Charity and also for the club’s intended trip to a convention later this Spring. For more information on the Humanists, you can visit their many social media outlets including Facebook, Twitter (@CHumanists), and Weebly.
The CCU Music Department offers three courses that do just that for ALL majors!

SYMPHONIC BAND (MUS124A)
CONCERT CHOIR (MUS 125)
JAZZ BAND (MUS 134)

Talk to your advisor in order to fulfill the creative expression requirements. These courses will meet twice per week.

Feel the music while satisfying your core credits

BY: SAMANTHA BERGOLD
ASSISTANT EDITOR

The music department will now offer classes for general education credits.

The courses that will be offered as general education credits are Music Appreciation, Symphonic Band, Jazz Band, Concert Choir, American Popular Music and Jazz & the American Experience.

Dr. James Tully, director of bands and professor of music, said the decision was made after a faculty vote.

“We wanted to provide an opportunity for students of all majors to take music while satisfying credits toward their degrees,” said Dr. Tully.

Dr. Frances Sinclair, director of choral activities and professor of music, said she believes offering these courses will encourage more non-music majors to enroll in the course.

“My hope is that once the word gets out about students being able to be part of a music ensemble for 3 semesters to fulfill Core Goal 8, there will be a mad rush of talented non-music majors enrolling in these courses,” said Dr. Sinclair.

Dr. Sinclair said students will have a more balanced core curriculum from participating in these courses.

“We believe non-music majors can benefit greatly from participating in a music course or ensemble,” said Dr. Sinclair. “It can provide them with a creative outlet/experience that is unique among all other courses.”

“We totally understand that not all great musicians go on to become music majors and we want to be able to reach out to them to be a part of things here at Coastal,” said Dr. Tully.

An audition will not be required for students to enter some of the courses. If an audition is required for a course, then a special permission form will be needed. Dr. Sinclair said the department hopes an audition for certain courses will not prevent students from participating.

Dr. Tully said an audition can further benefit students in the class.

“I can only speak for my course, Symphonic Band, but the audition is not a requirement to enroll in the class, but is for part assignments,” said Dr. Tully. “For example, if you play clarinet, your audition would let us know on which part you would be the most successful based on your abilities, interests, and the time you would be able to devote to your homework, which is practicing on your part.”

Dr. Tully said students can better connect to one another during the music making process in his class.

“Just like in athletics, it takes teamwork to make music and you can’t be a team unless you feel the presence and understand the motivations of those on the team,” said Dr. Tully.

“‘I know that there are students in other majors who would enjoy the opportunity to sing in a choir or play in a band as part of their college experience,’” said Dr. Sinclair.

“There are so many opportunities for us to be isolated with social media, cell phones, tablets, iPods, etc.,” said Dr. Tully. “My goal is to get us to ‘unfreeze’ our emotions and reactions, and connect to each other (and the audience) through the making of LIVE music.”

Dr. Tully said students can better connect to one another during the music making process in his class.

“Just like in athletics, it takes teamwork to make music and you can’t be a team unless you feel the presence and understand the motivations of those on the team,” said Dr. Tully.

CCU takes over Yik Yak

BY: WYATT DAVIES
STAFF WRITER

In contrast to other universities who have tried to distance themselves or block it from campus, CCU has welcomed the nation’s hottest social media app, Yik Yak, to campus. CCU Hosted a Yik Yak takeover from 8am to 5pm on Thursday, October 30th where students were encouraged to submit positive posts or yaks.

Yik Yak is an anonymous social media app created by Furman University graduates Tyler Droll and Brooks Buffington, in which posts can be created and read by users near the poster’s location. Posts can be either up voted or down voted, with highly up voted posts displayed on the “hot” page as well as on the list of recent posts. The app also allows users to “peek” at yaks from colleges and universities across the United States. The app’s target audience is college students.

Throughout the day, CCU’s Yik Yak feed was a mix of positive and negative messages about the university and the takeover in general. Many of the negative posts appeared to be a response to the takeover. Students who positively yakked at the social media table from 10am to 2pm on Prince Lawn had the chance to win a shirt or promotional item.

Coastal Carolina University’s Social Media and Online Marketing Coordinator, Brent Resser said that overall, he thought the takeover was a success.

“The positivity definitely outweighed the negativity”, said Resser. “There was some pushback, and I think the students that provided the pushback..."
came well-armed. They made their presence felt.

Though many of the negative yaks were general complaints, some turned into personal attacks directed toward university faculty.

"The positivity definitely outweighed the negativity",

"I understand why some students were upset with the takeover," said Resser. "I can definitely see their vantage point. I just think the personal attacks were unnecessary."

Freshman Ethan Pease participated in the takeover and believes it was successful, but not in the way the university thought it would be.

"Some kids find happiness out of people saying nice things, but some kids just don’t care," said Pease. "For the one kid, it does help, that one person is what matters. It was a success to [the university] because it helped that one person, and one person is a success."

Pease didn’t go to the table on Prince Lawn to get a prize for participating because he said that he believes giving an extrinsic motivation decreased the authenticity of the yaks.

“You’re only doing it for the incentive,” said Pease. But I believe it makes [CCU] look better because more kids did it. Maybe that incentive is what caused that one kid to read their Yik Yak and brighten their day.”

At this month’s Social Media Committee meeting, the takeover will be reviewed and committee will discuss if the university should do it again. Resser said the app can be utilized as a marketing tool, but the university wishes to respect Yik Yak and not flood it with ads. Resser added marketing messages and positive yaks will continue to be posted on a daily basis.
Shuttle tracking app is just one of the many changes in store for CCU Transportation Services

The Coastal Carolina University SGA Cabinet and Vice President of Student Affairs, Debbie Conner, have confirmed that the University will be offering the Transloc transit-tracking app to students starting next semester. Students will be able to download Transloc for free to their smartphones. With the app, they will be able to see where the shuttle buses are and get estimated arrival times sent to their phones.

Connor says she hopes this will ease some of the frustration that students have with Coastal’s transportation services.

“I think one of the biggest problems people have with the shuttles, is that there is no way of knowing when exactly they will arrive,” said Conner. “I think Transloc will help put some of that frustration to rest.”

Coastal Carolina’s Transportation Services will also be making changes to their travel routes next semester. Starting in the spring, the Coastal Band Hall will no longer be a routine stop for the shuttles when they take students to the Science Center across Highway 501. However, rides to and from the Band Hall will still be available for students who need them.

“The loop (to the Band Hall) makes the Science Center route much longer than it needs to be,” said Conner. “So starting next semester, the shuttles will only be stopping there if they get a request.”

SGA’s Vice President of Public Relations, Karly Southall, says that there will be a convenient way students can signal a bus to pick them up from the Band Hall.

“There will be a black button by the shuttle station near the Band Hall,” said Southall. “If students press the button, a shuttle will come pick them up. If nobody presses the button, the shuttles will go from the Science Center back to Main Campus.”

The University will also be adding two more shuttles that will be ready for service in the spring. The addition of the two extra shuttles raises the total from nine buses to 11. Both of the new shuttles will service University Place.
Men's soccer faced two opponents this week; High Point and Longwood - one ending in the draw the other in a landslide victory.

Coastal Carolina settled with a draw Wednesday night against the High Point Panthers with a final score of 1-1. This was the first draw CCU saw since knotting Bowling Green in 2012.

The first 20 minutes of the game was controlled mainly by Coastal, but the Panthers strategically played its pressure to set up a counter attack. High Point's offense split the Coastal defense and was able to chip the ball past the goalkeeper for the game first goal in the 21st minute of play.

The Chanticleers almost found the net in the 31st minute of play when Coastal's Martin Melchor connected on a corner kick by Eli Bjornsson, but was quickly saved by a Panther.

In the opening of the second half Coastal started on the offense and quickly found space to work within the Panther's 18-yard box. Louis Dargent quickly found the goal, but was blocked within the first minute of the half. The Chanticleers then earned a corner that allowed Melchor free on the left side of the box, but was taken down inside the box giving Melchor a penalty kick. Melchor's penalty attempt was unfortunately saved keeping the score 1-0 in Panthers favor.

At the 51-minute mark, Coastal's Shawn McLaws made the Panther's pay for another foul inside the box. McLaws was able to take advantage of the penalty shot and hammered it into the back of the net, making the score 1-1.

The Chanticleers dominated the last 40 minutes as High Point played defenders behind the ball and try to play for the counter attack.

The two overtime sessions played much like regulation play with Coastal behind the ball trying to move forward, but High Point kept Coastal off the scoreboard.

By virtue of the league point standings, both Coastal and High Point secured a home match in the quarterfinal round in the upcoming Big South Tournament.

The Chanticleers bounced back quickly from the draw against High Point with a landslide win against Longwood, 7-0.

Ricky Garbanzo made sure his senior day game was a memorable one as he tallied a first half hat trick to lead Coastal to victory.

Tommy Gudmundsson, Kevin Le Bras, Louis Dargent and Bryce Follensbee also counted goals, along with senior defender Ridge Robinson who finished the contest with three assists.

Coastal gained an early lead when Garbanzo took advantage of a penalty kick in the 11th minute of the game making the score 1-0. In the 25th minute the Rock Hill native converted a highlight worthy goal following a rebound from a Robinson shot. Garbanzo collected the loose ball with his back turned to the goal. He then flicked the ball into the air and bicycled kicked the ball in to create a goal making the score 2-0.

In the second half the Chanticleers tacked on four additional goals, each of them coming in the final 17 minutes of play.

Coastal concluded the game with a 28-6 shot advantage and 12-4 corner advantage.

This win pushed The Chants to 12-5-1 on the season and 7-1-1 in the Big South. This also means that the Chanticleers will be the number two seed in the Big South Tournament and will host the to be determined seventh seed Tuesday night at home.

The women’s soccer team faced a devastating, yet valiant loss in double overtime against High Point on Friday evening. The score finished at 2-1 in High Point’s favor.

With only 2:32 to spare in the second overtime, Jacky Kessler converted the penalty kick that gave the Panthers the win. This defeat over CCU placed the Chants in a tie for second in regular season play.

In the first half, Kessler gave the Panthers a 1-0 lead. Rylie Johnson responded for the Chants with a goal in the second-half with an assist from teammate Amber Adams. Both teams then ran the clock, proving no threat offensively.

High Point was finally able to apply pressure on the Chanticleer’s defense, but could not find the net throughout the first overtime.

During the second overtime, High Point controlled the possession again. A Panther attack player ran to a pass and was tackled by a Coastal defender in the box. The Panthers were awarded a penalty kick and leading scorer Kessler was able to send the ball sailing into the top of the net.

This wrapped up the contest at 2-1 as Coastal could not respond to Kessler’s goal. This defeat marks Coastal’s first loss in a record of six overtime games this season, a program record.

Five seniors finished their collegiate careers Friday night including Kacey Kelley, Rylie Johnson, Christina Stern, Maddie Phillips and Shelby Evans. These five women contributed to a total of 31 victories throughout the past three years.
Anti Pick-Up Lines

BY: AMY MOODY
STAFF WRITER

Ever gone out and been treated to a bunch of horrible, tasteless pick-up lines? Here’s some ways to talk back to those who still think pick-up lines are a good way to talk to someone.

1. “Did it hurt when you fell from heaven?”
   “Actually I crawled up from hell.”

2. “Will you go out with me this Saturday? I know you want to.”
   “Sorry, I can’t go out with you because of my bad back; I can’t stoop that low.”

3. “Haven’t I seen you some place before?”
   “Yes, that’s why I don’t go there anymore.”

4. “I can tell that you want me…”
   “Yeah, I want you to leave.”

5. And of course, if anyone undesirable starts hitting you, just say: “Are you the sun? Cause I want you to stay 92,960,000 miles away from me.”

Restaurant Review

Hoskins

BY: SAMANTHA BERGOLD

Location: 405 Main St, North Myrtle Beach, SC

Hoskins is a family restaurant that has been located in North Myrtle Beach for sixty-six years. Hoskins motto is “we grew up on good taste.” Good food and friendly service is what you will be delighted with the moment you walk in. Hoskins offers home cooked meals for breakfast, lunch, and dinner.

I went to Hoskins with my mother for dinner. She heard about Hoskins from the restaurant being a ‘locals’ favorite. There was a wait when we arrived. It was a Friday night and the restaurant was packed. The hostess got us to a table in less than 5 minutes. The whole restaurant has a family feeling from the booths to the pictures on the wall.

A server came up to take our drink orders right when we sat down. The menu has items ranging from fried chicken to oysters. The restaurant has all the food you would expect for southern home cooking. We both decided to get the grilled chicken sandwich. I got fries, while my mother got sweet potato fries. After placing our order, the food was on our table within 15 minutes. The waitress did not forget any side we requested, as well.

For a chicken sandwich and fries for under 7 dollars, you would expect it to be an average size meal. The whole chicken sandwich was as big as both my hands. The amount of food we were given for the price was unbelievable. You can easily save half the dinner for your lunch the next day. The fries were extremely crispy. The chicken was delectable and moist. Even the lettuce and tomato were extremely fresh.

We then indulged in some chocolate cream pie. It was incredible to the say least. We felt stuffed, but it was so worth it. It was truly the best meal to end your day with.

If you are missing your mommas home cooking, head to Hoskins! You may end up enjoying their home cooking more than your mommas. The restaurant offers generous portions for the price, with the best service around.

The cover may be mistaken for a romantic, cheesy, girly, love story, but like they say, don’t judge a book by its cover. “One Day” by David Nicholls is the story of Dexter and Emma who meet on their graduation day, and although it doesn’t seem like there is much of a connection, the two can’t stop thinking of each other. Over twenty years, snapshots of that relationship are revealed on the same day—July 15th—of each year. The story is defiantly a love story, but has wit, heartache, and humor that any reader would enjoy. The book is one that you just can’t put down, and the ending will leave you speechless. The book was made into a movie back in 2011, starring Anne Hathaway. The movie is now available on Netflix as well; but grab a copy of the book first, this is defiantly a situation where the book is better than the movie! Happy reading!

Silver Linings Playbook came out back in 2012 and was a huge hit, as it still is today. The movie stars Bradley Cooper, and Jennifer Lawrence, two great actors who are just even better together.

Cooper plays Pat, who was institutionalized after catching his wife cheating on him; and Lawrence plays Tiffany, a woman recovering from her husband’s tragic death. The two have a witty, strange, and hilarious; but beautiful relationship, which develops over the course of the movie. You see the two handle their losses and mental illnesses with the help of each other and dance.

Robert DeNiro plays Pat Sr. (Pats father) who will have you laughing and crying throughout the movie. The themes of intricate relationships, the idea of overcoming struggle and moving on, and family all make for an absolutely fantastic, dramatic comedy.

Did I mention it’s also on Netflix? So grab the popcorn and some friends, this movie will not disappoint!

Do you need to know what a song is about to enjoy it? Well, maybe. Even though German rock band Jupiter Jones sings in German, they are enjoyable to listen to since you would swear that you know what they were saying by the way that they said it.

Jupiter Jones formed in 2002 and they have self-released three fantastic albums. As a band, they began with a strong-punk sound as they toured Germany and took whatever venues they could get their hands on. After signing onto a major record label, they adopted more of a rock/indie-rock sound. Their self-titled 2011 release carried very passionate and emotionally-driven lyrics while the instrumentals were heavy and fast-paced.

Their most recent album Das Gegenteil von Allem which directly translates to The Opposite of Everything plays on the themes of reflection, love, and the loss of innocence. Their song “Zuckerwasser” on the album touches on the Mark Twain characters of Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn while mixing in the theme of growing older and reflecting on the past. Though it is unfortunate that I myself cannot understand what they are saying without translating, I love this band for their sound, their personality, and their emotion. Check out their albums and music videos which can easily be found online. I do not think that you will regret it!
