Headless Horseman creeps onto Coastal stage

Joey Cason
REPORTER

The Coastal Carolina theatre department is playing The Legend of Sleepy Hollow. The play is historically horrid while being indescribably creepy and dark. The play is based on the original tale of The Legend of Sleepy Hollow by Washington Irving. It follows the story of Ichabod Crane as he is chased through the woods one dark night by the Headless Horseman.

Coastal student Michael Ouskar plays Ichabod Crane. With his grave build and sharp features, he is a captivating character throughout his whole performance. He is very much a love action cartoon with a delightfully undermined take on the high school teacher. He uses over the top movements and speech patterns.

Ouskar said the play is very different.

Sunny and mostly successful.
Sarah Davison's set, though minimal, is thoroughly used and crafted in an enchantingly concocted concept.
Sam Papp's costumes are purposeful and help to shape the character's individually especially with those seductive face stinks.
Ouskar said they are doing something completely different from any other show by adding insides to the performance.

"Every character has a mask for the entire show, which is very different from doing without a mask because you have to be more in your body," Ouskar said.

I feel like because your physical life is so much more important because it's all people really see because they don't see your facial expressions."

Uncovering Chaunceyce's birthday

Samantha Bergold
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

A new tradition has been started at Coastal Carolina. Chaunceyce's birthday will now be a celebration on campus.

Assistant Director of Scheduling and Space Management Lauren Korsten and Functional Administrator of Scheduling and Event Parking Karen Puskany organized Chaunceyce's birthday. Korsten said they were trying to figure out an event to test out on the new scheduling software.

"We didn't want it to be something necessarily that we think was a real event in this office," said Korsten. "We were like lets do something with Chaunceyce and Daniel von like lets do his birthday."

Hanks said it was the fun thing that everybody could relate to. "Then 6:00, what's the real date of Chaunceyce's birthday?" said Hanks. "It's the kind of event on the calendar."

As a part of Scheduling and Event Services, Porter Medley III then recommended that they try to discover Chaunceyce's real birth date. Hanks then called around with everyone he could think to find out the date. The first instance of The Chanticleer being documented on Coastal Carolina's campus was in The Chanticleer newspaper.

The first issue of The Chanticleer newspaper was on October 24, 1963. The name of the newspaper was changed from The Piddling to The Chanticleer on that day.

Medley said in Bert Talbot's book of Coastal Carolina University history there was a page showing the newspaper changing the name.

"Before that, people have used it in pasting, but it's not a word Coastal owned," said Hanks. Hanks said it was the first time anyone had reference to the name Chanticleer. "We couldn't really find any
How to ace the interview

We are all scared for the future. After four years at Coastal you will graduate and be out in the real world. Everyone wants a job. You may be competing with the best of the best for your dream job. You want to stand out among your competition, but you do not know how. Here are ways how you can get the dream job by using the interview.

Prepare for the interview

Look up background information on the company. Look into the views and mission statement of the company. If their views and mission statement do not align with your goals, then the company is not for you.

First impressions are everything. Make sure to dress professionally in wrinkle free business casual clothing. Bring copies of your resume with references, information needed to complete the job application (ID, Social Security, etc.), portfolio of work, and a pen with a notepad.

Prepare for their questions with responses. Look up the common interview questions and practice them. For example, one of the biggest questions asked is what is your biggest strength and weakness. Instead of saying I do not have any weaknesses, make your weaknesses sound like a positive.

Ace the interview

You have to think like a hiring manager at the interview. Hiring managers do not just look for qualifications, but also a connection to who they are interviewing. You are a product. Do not just sell what you can do, but who you are. Look around their office for a commonality, there is sure to be something you have in common with them.

A hiring manager may try to scare you answering nonstop, stand offish, and no emotions on their face. They are seeing how you react under pressure. It is all about how you react, fresh, sit up straight, and have your feet on the floor. If you are sitting offish, you will feel and be confident.

End the interview

You may think the hardest part of the interview is over, but it is not. The most important part of the interview is job shadowing. They will ask you if you have any questions for them. This is very important. If you do not ask any questions it will make you seem like you do not care and do not have passion for the job. Make sure to close out the interview with a strong handshake. Do not be afraid to reach out after saying thank you for the interview.

If you follow these tips and tricks, you will surely ace your next interview and get the job. Make sure to prepare, go in with confidence, and reach out to them after the interview. Best time you go into an interview, go in with confidence, preparation, and you will come out with a job.
October is known as breast cancer awareness month and the majority of businesses and sports teams, including Coastal Carolina University’s football team, are decked out in pink gear.

Most college students do not think they could ever be diagnosed with breast cancer at a young age. According to an Adolescent and Young Adult Oncology Progress review group, 75,000 people between the age of 15 and 39 are diagnosed with cancer every year. In those numbers, breast cancer is one of the most common cancers found in patients 15 to 39 years old.

Breast cancer can affect anyone, however, Lackey, a freshman at Coastal Carolina University, was in sixth grade when her grandmother passed away after fighting for the breast cancer for the third time.

Her grandmother’s battle was hard on her and she regretted not spending more time with her. She spoke about how important it is to talk to people you love about how much you care about their health.

“You really have to cherish the time you have with people because you never know when you’re going to see them again or if they’re going to be too busy to remember who you are,” Lackey said.

FRIDAY SHAW / PAGE ONE

my nature not wanting to talk, not wanting to share my feelings,” said Shaw. “But talking it out and speak, it helps me keep going.”

After her unfortunate ordeal at 16, Shaw was sent to 30 days in jail and 300 hours of community service. In that community service, Shaw felt as though she was swallowing her pride. She traveled around the state of South Carolina and gave speeches about why she had to stop testing and driving.

After 300 hours of community service was finished, Shaw had a chance to make his own decision. He could either remain in prison or he could continue to spend time at the prison and driving. He chose to keep talking.

“If I don’t speak, I get real depressed,” said Shaw. “Now now, nine years later, if I’m not helping others, it really helps me. Speaking helps me avoid that depression and helps me stay up.”

People question the adequacy of Shaw’s motivation for traveling across America to spread his words on the dangers of testing and driving. Some think he is wallowing in his mistake and others think he is doing it for the money.

“I wish that I could go out and help people and teach people without having to take someone’s life,” said Shaw.

This is what he wants to be known for. Shaw has been blessed with a lot of opportunities and is grateful for them.

Shaw did not choose this life to live. He would not get the degree to communicate; instead he traveled the country spreading this message. Instead of just being another case of testing and driving, Shaw wants to spread awareness on this topic.

“It’s not worth it,” said Shaw. “Any text message and phone call behind the wheel, I promise you it’s not worth it, doesn’t matter how important it is. One text means one phone call, you can regret that for the rest of your life. You don’t want to.”

Glow up the night with the Chauncey 5k

Jessica Wiltzer
REPORTER

Coastal Carolina will be hosting the third annual Chauncey 5k race on October 30, 2015.

The Chauncey 5k is an opportunity for student organizations and clubs to come together in an effort to raise money for a desired charity.

The race starts at 7:30 p.m., and will be a glow-in-the-dark night run allowing runners and volunteers to wear glow sticks.

The course begins and ends at Brooks Stadium and travels around the entire campus, allowing for some scenery during the run. The course is total 5.3 miles long.

The athletic department is partnering with sororities on campus. The organizations participating in the race will receive 25% of the profit made.

Runners who signed up early enough will receive a dri fit t-shirt and other items that will glow in the dark.

Runners are encouraged to bring additional glow items or run in their favorite glow in the dark gear to stand out in the crowd.

Assistant Athletic Director for Ticket Operations and Revenue Michael Jacobs is one of the staff members in charge of running the event.

Jacobs said the race’s course is styled differently this year.

Since the university approved to close off University Boulevard, the race will run along the boardwalk and through the horsebarn. It will then finish at Brooks Stadium.

“It is fun to go out with students with the same goal,” said Jacobs. “The environment is the same feeling as watching our fellow teams play on the big screen.”

Immediately following the 5k, runners can enjoy food and watch awards being handed out at Brooks Stadium. Keep in mind that the snacks are only available for runners.

The awards will be a Coastal Carolina-styled runners hat. Michael Jacobs said having something the participants can use many times would be a better reward and incentive than a heavy piece of medal that is won once.

For any individual who wants to sign up is outside of the Coastal Community, the price is $50 until race day. For Coastal Faculty/Staff, the price to sign up is $45 until race day.

For Coastal students, it is $30 to sign up until race day.

All ages and skill levels are welcome to sign up and run.

Michael Jacobs said the race provides a nice outlet for students.

Race packet pickup will be available for pickup on Thursday, October 22, from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. and Friday, October 30, from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the HTC center.

Students and faculty can sign up online through active.com. The link can be found on the Coastal Carolina webpage using the search word Chauncey 5k.

“We want to make it a tradition here at the university because we thought it was rather unique,” said Medley.

“We don’t know any other university that mascots celebrates their birthday.”

Hudie said they then talked to Dr. O’Dyer, who is the alumni director.

Dr. O’Dyer was the executive vice president. He retired on June 30, 2015.

“He had been here probably longer than any other person here at the university,” said Medley.

“He worked directly with Dr. DeCarne. We used him as a guide. His requirement was that the office of alumni relations and the Coastal athletic association buy it for him.”

Medley said they got permission through writing them.

“We don’t know any other university that mascots celebrates their birthday”

“We thought it was a great idea,” said Medley. “They brought it up to student affairs. They really liked the idea. They wanted to do the president and his comment was that Chauncey has a birthday.”

Students taking active responsibility

Kara Thomas
ASSISTANT EDITOR

Students Taking Active Responsibility, also known as S.T.A.R., is a volunteer organization on campus with 40 members. Within the organization, students can take winter and spring break trips to volunteer with Habitat for Humanity and Give Kids the World. The organization volunteers at Warcanaw Animal Rescue Mission, D.S.E. headquarters, soup kitchens, and S.C. Carus. Members also participate in beach sweeps at local state parks.

S.T.A.R. was founded in the early 2000's. Elana Glin is the advisor for the organization.

"S.T.A.R. members have participated in a wide range of service events," said Glin. "From Habitat for Humanity builds, to assisting with community clean up days, door sweeps, beach sweeps, participating in the Warcanaw Heart Walk and Alzheimer's Walk, volunteering at local hospices and animal shelters just to name a few."

One of the more recent volunteer events they did was the Warcanaw Heart Walk on Saturday, October 27.

"We had a group volunteer at the Warcanaw Heart Walk," said Glin. "The group helped set up signs and buttons prior to the event, run the booths and give away raffle tickets, and helped with the clean up of the event. We also had a group participate in the 2017 Walk to End Alzheimer's on the same day providing event support as well."

On October 22 members helped out with the American Red Cross Blood drive from 4:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. at Wall Circular. On October 27 the organization helped with the Horse Inn move drive in front of Holm and C20.

"If students are interested in service and desire to make impactful collaborative action, S.T.A.R. can help students connect to meaningful service experiences," said Glin. "S.T.A.R. also has great relationships with approximately 35 community partners across the area and is happy to connect students to agencies that align with a student's interest in different social issues."

Glin has a passion for community service and enjoys being the advisor. "My favorite part about advising S.T.A.R. is connecting with students who have a desire and a heart for service," said Glin.

In S.T.A.R, there is always something to volunteer for and members strive to make an impact on the community.

The best feature of this show was the incredible use of sound, which was designed by Preston Kemrick. Almost all of the sound effects were live, made both on and off stage by the actors themselves during the entire show. Whether it was the ridulous singing methods or the odd inditing whispers and shrieks, the use of sound was pure effective in all the right ways.

Oonfero encourages that it's a show to not pass up the chance of seeing. "People should look forward to it, because it's a fun show," said Oonfero. "It's not Shakespeare, nothing too deep or difficult to comprehend so it's fun. I feel like the audience is going to have fun when they watch it. There's a lot of funny moments, but we also aren't afraid to go to those dark moments either. You get a lot of both. You laugh, you cry, and there are some sad moments too. You get scared. You get thoroughly entertained."

The play will be performed from Oct. 29 - 31 at the Edwards Black Box Theater. There is a simple message to take away from the show. "Face your fears," said Oonfero. "Always face your fears, cause you'll never get anywhere if you run away from them."
Big South letdown: No more madness

Ian Brunkhoum and Jessica Wetzler

For the past three years, one week in early March has brought some of the best memories to students and faculty of Coastal Carolina. Since 2013, Coastal Carolina University has hosted the Big South basketball tournament at the HTC Center. The tournament brought so much to campus than the back to back titles for the Chanticleers. The tournament games were broadcast through ESPN, with the championship game being shown on ESPN.

Local businesses and restaurants in Conway and the Myrtle Beach area profited off the many traveling fans that came to support their college teams. On September 1, 2015, Coastal Carolina announced that it will be joining the Sun Belt Conference for the 2016-2017 athletic season, except football, which will stay in the Big South. While the move to the Sun Belt conference will benefit our school in the future, it may have cost us something in the present.

Big South Commissioner Eddie B. Killings announced on October 13 that the 2016 Big South basketball, football, and outdoor track and field championships will be moved from Coastal Carolina University. The Sun Belt conference does not allow the Big South to host outdoor track and field championships in 2016. The host of the 2016 Big South basketball tournament will be announced later in the fall.

Former Coastal Carolina head basketball coach Jon carpenter said he would do it again.

Halloween is right around the corner, and that means it is time to prepare for the spooky day. Looking on lovely and picking out the season’s best costume, we have the tradition of watching a favorite horror film that truly makes it feel like Halloween.

Everyone loves a film they can watch that will make them feel like a kid again. "Hocus Pocus" is one of the greatest Halloween films of all time, even more, in this case, in your own words.

After moving to Salem, Massachusetts, a rebel young sorceress named Winnie Sanderson returns to a abandoned house with her sister Dina and their new friend Allison. Winnie is not exactly whole, and the film begins with her drunken Odysseus-like adventure, chasing a young man named Jack Sanderson.

After becoming a young adult, Alison falls in love with Jack and working on a spell to make him love her. She is aided by a group of people who make a great Halloween film. Everyone loves a film that truly makes it feel like Halloween.

Who does not love candy corn? They are great by themselves or in a mix with other sweet Halloween treats. You can even use them as a decoration to add a little Halloween spice by displaying them in a dish on the coffee table.

Treats to binge on this Halloween season

Pillsbury offers their trademark sugar cookies for each holiday. For Halloween, they will be decorated with pumpkins. They are perfect to serve at any Halloween party or to eat a whole batch by yourself because they are just that good. Go ahead, no one will judge you.

You know winter is coming when everyone is drinking a Pumpkin Spice Latte. Starbucks offers this delectable treat starting the beginning of September so you have plenty of time to get your PSL fix before the season ends in December.

They are sticky, sweet, and somewhat healthy. They are a favorite at pumpkin patches, Halloween hayrides, and fall festivals. Many schedules mean no time for these full favorites, but do not worry Amazon sells an Apple Digger for $8 and it even comes with three trays to hold your favorite toppings.
