Amplified sound no longer allowed on Prince Lawn during class time

Samantha Bergold

When WCCU Radio Station Manager, William Clark, returned for the semester, he discovered that the station is unable to play music on Prince Lawn during class time.

"We are the radio station for the university and exposure is what we want for both the communication department and students within the organization," said Clark.

Clark said he is not happy about the decision, but does not think it was aimed at WCCU Radio.

"It will hurt for the most part because when we do events they usually are on Prince Lawn," said Clark. "We just have to find alternate ways to accumulate money."

Executive Vice President and Provost, Ralph Byington, said the majority of the primary sources of funding for the station came from the university budget and not contracted sources.

Byington explained that the issue was not one of the university’s decision, saying, “During regular class times, amplified sound above a certain level can impact class. It will hurt for the most part because when we do events they usually are on Prince Lawn," said Clark. "We just have to find alternate ways to accumulate money."

With it being my last semester here at Coastal, I was hoping to leave a great mark on the organization by hosting more events on Prince Lawn, with my great staff behind me," Clark said. "It will hurt for the most part because when we do events they usually are on Prince Lawn," said Clark. "We just have to find alternate ways to accumulate money."

Byington wanted the university to consider the location and time of the use of amplified sound.

"Prince Lawn is the location of three academic buildings and not contracted sources.

Byington said the university has a requirement that amplified sound needs to be approved prior to being used on campus.

This decision was made by Academic Affairs.

On Saturday morning, I woke up and Girl Meets World was on. The episode was talking about change and how to deal with it. It reminded me of one of my favorite episodes of Boy Meets World.

This episode of Boy Meets World highlights how Cory (the main character) deals with change. Cory hates change and wants everything to remain the same. He discovers that his best friend and girlfriend may not be going to the same university as him after high school. He tries to do everything in his power to make sure everything stays the same.

I used to laugh at Cory’s outrageous behavior, but now I find it relatable. I currently feel exactly how Cory did in that episode. With graduation right around the corner, everyone and their mother has been asking that one unfortunate question, what are you doing after graduation? In a couple months everything will be changing and what has been my life for the past four years, will not be anymore.

When things change, how do you deal with it? You can resist it, but it is bound to happen. Unfortunately, nothing can stay the same, but without change, you will not grow as a person.

In the episode, Erik (Cory’s Brother) explains to him that you need to accept change, that the changes are not what matter, but how you respond to it. In the end, Cory is finally able to accept the changes and learn to live with them.

During your college career, you will experience many changes. Whether you are a freshman or a senior, each year of college can be completely different from the last. My mother always described college as a rollercoaster ride and that is exactly what it is.

Each year seems to come with new responsibilities and problems. I like to believe these new problems are preparing you for your future. Instead of being upset about change, look at it as another opportunity to grow as a person.

"Before the patch material can be put into place, water needs to dry out and the potholes need to be washed out," said Mungo. "For a temporary fix of the roads on campus, crews try to patch the potholes when they can, but the rain has caused some delays."

"As much as I like talking about SGA, I really wanted to say we are here to represent the students," said Nichols. "I am talking about the CUB (Coastal Activities Board), the SGA, and student organization events to be posted high up and therefore making Coastal stand out."

"I can't allow myself to step away from other organizations or to not contribute as much as I can to other organizations," said Rountree. "I am definitely a people person and everyone can talk about sex and politics and things like that," said Nichols. "I have no problem doing that at all."

How to oppress stress

Kate Estabrook
ASSISTANT EDITOR | @katieestabrook

T he body and the mind cannot actually tell the difference between the sensation of danger that causes fear and the sensation of physical stress. According to the Director of the Domar Center for Mind/Body Health, Dr. Alice Domar, spoke at the sixth annual Women’s Leadership in Film and Celebration of Inspiring Women: "There is an average American experiences the fight-or-flight response 50 times a day."

Dr. Domar produces an increase in heart rate, muscle tension, and blood pressure. "Sometimes as simple as going for a drive can provoke a reaction of fight-or-flight within a person," she said.

Stress is affecting college students tremendously, as rates of stress and anxiety are at an all-time high. According to the Center for Collegiate Mental Health at Penn State, anxiety and depression are the most commonly diagnosed mental health ailments in college students.

This could be due to a variety of factors, such as the heightened competitive nature of today’s working world or that the fact that students now know more than ever are having to balance academic, full-time work, and family. Regardless of the reason, the issue of stress in college students is on the rise and it is prevalent.

As spring break quickly approaches, people are talking about vacation plans and all of the fun things they are planning to attend while some are even choosing to stay in North Myrtle Beach. But what is there to do right now in Myrtle Beach? Here are four things that make up most of the city.

A lot of us “locals” often write that the overexposure to social media apps to feelings of fear and the sensation of stress. "After long-term use of the techniques, the side effects of your anxiety will subside. That feeling will carry over to the next time you experience anxiety,” said Dr. Domar.

While limiting screen time is a great technique and starting point, it is not the only way to alleviate stress. Dr. Domar said that stress can be relieved by a variety of different relaxation techniques and practices. "Some of those techniques can work in the moment to relieve stress," said Dr. Domar.

Softball rallies wins in the Kickin’ Chicken Classic

Jessica Wester
REPORTER | @jessica_wetzler

The softball team started off the Kickin’ Chicken Classic by defeating Appalachian State 5-0. The team then followed to their second game against Seton Hall. By the bottom of the second, the two teams had tied 5-5. Morgan Node hit a two home run, leaving The Chanticleers with a 7-5 lead at the bottom of the fifth. Coastal fell short to Seton Hall, 9-7, after a late seventh inning rally. The team would return to the stadium on Saturday, February 20, to go against Towson. The Coastal Carolina vs Towson game was delayed, but did not show signs of worry for the ladies. With a tight game being played, the two teams tied 1-1 at the end of the fourth inning. In the end, The Chanticleers won 9-7 with Kelsey Domink pitching a complete game. After the Towson game, the softball team took on Cleveland State. Annie Robinson made a home run, leading The Chanticleers 8-0. At the end of the third inning, The Chanticleers led 6-0 after a three run home run by Annie Robinson and a two run home run by Alec Alvins. After the fifth, The Chanticleers were winning 9-0. On February 21, the softball team took on CSC and was tied 1-1 at the bottom of the third and the tie would continue to the fifth inning. After the seventh, the game was still tied. A walk off hit was made by Alexis Alvins to give The Chanticleers a 2-1 win over Cleveland State.

FROM BASEBALL

competition would be harder as each game progressed throughout the tournaments. In the first inning, NC State scored a home run, while The Chanticleers followed with a double run by Paez and a hit by GK Young. Zach Remillard hit a home run and the first inning ended at 3-1.

Tyler Chadbriick hit a solo home run to start the bottom of the second. A total of four home runs were made in the second inning by both teams. Billy Cooke scored off of Anthony Marks, making the score 3-2. Remillard scores his second home run of the day, tying the game at 5-5 in the fifth inning. Marks scored a run off of GK Young’s single, organizing the lead. NC State scored two runs in the sixth inning, leading the game at 8-3. Two more home runs would be followed by NC State, making the score 10-5 at the bottom of the eighth. By the final inning, NC State ended at 13 runs while Woody Woodhead makes his first collegiate career home run. The game ended at a defeat by NC State, 13-6.

Coastal Carolina rallied a 5-4 win against #4 ranked University of Virginia. On February 20, a record breaking 3,136 people took the stands to watch the game on Sunday. Defending champs, UVA, had already proven they were the team everybody would be watching as they make their first run in the first inning. The Chanticleers would follow with a walk and home run made by GE Young, making the score 2-1. The score remained 2-1 till the bottom of the fourth. UVA would take the lead with two home runs and follow with another run in the fifth inning. Paez made two single runs, Billy Cooke lines RBI to left field, and Dalton Ewing scored to make Coastal Carolina lead 5-4 in the eighth inning. Billy Cooke hit the game winning single against UVA.

The Chanticleers will return to Springs Brooks Stadium this following weekend, February 26th to the 29th to host the 17th Annual Caravelle Resort’s Baseball at the Beach. The field will include teams such as Marshall, Liberty, Duke, and Ohio State.

The Incredible True Story

The term ‘sophomore slump’ refers to an instance in which a sophomore’s efforts fail to live up to the standards of their first effort. To the humble, front-sprinting MC that hails from the city of Gaithersburg, Maryland, however, it seems that he has never even heard of this saying.

Coming off of a stellar first year campaign under Def Jam Records, Logic’s debut album, Under Pressure, has currently grossed 300,000 sales since its release in October of 2014. Since the release of his latest project, The Incredible True Story, in November of 2015, it has already amassed 140,000 sales, nearly half of Under Pressure’s total sales. This is just a small testimony to highlight how far the artist nicknamed, “Young Sinatra,” has come in such a short time.

Logic’s, Under Pressure, is a culmination of things. These range from his frequent battles with being a half black, half white rapper in an African-American dominated field, his label not wanting to accept him for who he is, and him finally being recognized as one of the rap game’s top MCs.

The main theme of Under Pressure is one that is relevant in that it outlines life on Earth ceasing to exist by factors such as global warming. As humans face into space every day, a new planet capable of being habitable for many years to come, our protagonists, Thomas, Lie, and Thalia, grapple through obstacles and explain what has happened since Earth’s downfall.

Young Sinatra throws his name back into the conversation for who is the top rapper of his era, and seemingly did so by himself, as he composed the entire production.

Logic can not and will not be ignored by the masses any longer.

The Peanuts Movie

The cartoon that defined your grandparents, your parents, and even your generation is no longer confined to a thirty minute television special that came around during the holiday season. Blue Sky Studios brought to life the stories and shenanigans of the late cartoonist’s Charles Schulz.

The Peanuts Movie is everything Peanuts fans could want. The characters and the highly recognizable single black striped yellow shirt that is Charlie Brown, Snoopy’s alliances and his secret identity as the Flying Ace, Lucy and her chauvinistic desk. Linus and his blanket. All the characters we all know and love make an appearance in this movie.

What makes a Peanuts movie you ask? A whole number of things. Sayings like “good grief,” “blackboard,” and the “wah-wah-,” the sound that is made every time an adult talks, all the way to the iconic Christmas scene where Snoopy takes Linus blanket and takes the entire Peanuts characters to a wild ride on the frozen lake.

Moviegoers who know the cartoons well will be delighted by the memories this movie brings back. But to mention the smile it will bring to a younger generation of viewers who are not familiar with the Peanuts storyline.

When a new girl moves to town, Charlie Brown is instantly smitten with her. However, in typical Charlie Brown fashion, he raises everyone’s hopes only to have it all fall through the winter. Charlie Brown’s holiday specials are universal, and the Peanuts Movie caters to all of the Peanuts fans.

The Peanuts Movie features some of the most endearing messages for anyone and everyone. These messages range from “good grief,” “blackboard,” and the “wah-wah-” to the life lessons of being kind. This movie is perfect for the whole family and you will not be saying “good grief” when you leave the theater.

Nacho Hippo

Nacho Hippo is an American-Mexican restaurant that serves up classic dishes with a twist. According to the restaurant’s history, the legend of the Nacho Hippo states that when a true lover of world class nachos gives up the search for them, will the famed Nacho Hippo appear.

The menu has all of your favorite Mexican fusion dishes, such as burritos and quesadillas. What really stands out are the unique names of different types of nachos.

The Macho Nachos is your traditional plate of chips, cheese, and meat. The Bloop Bloop Nachos, for the spicier customer, is topped with hot chicken and orange salsa. The Donald, for the seafood lover, is nachos topped with decadent lobster and shrimp.

Not a nacho fan? The Nacho Hippo also offers their “Hip Tacos.” These can be ordered individually for a smaller meal or grouped together for a delicious taco trio. The dishes are unique and delicious including Carolina pulled pork, slams, creamy tamopa lobster, honey mustard sauce, seared tuna, and wasabi mayo. For the Vegos, you can get it with hummus and veggies.

Nacho Hippo is located on the corner of Maryland, and is open from 11:30 a.m. to 1 a.m. or later on weekends and weeknights.

REVIEWS

1. The Tournaments
   Baseball games for an entire weekend? It is as if the game never ends and all your plans are instantly figured out.

2. The Weather
   There is really nothing better than watching America’s greatest pastime while it is sunny and 70 degrees without the humidity causing discomfort.

3. The Concession Stands
   Now that meal swipes are accepted at concessions, students can enjoy good old-fashioned cracker jacks while watching the game.

4. Beating USC and Clemson
   As if we did not need any more reasons to dislike University of South Carolina and Clemson...however, we can still hold it over them that we are better than them at baseball.

5. Omaha
   Getting to the College Baseball World Series is the equivalent to getting into the Super Bowl, but only better.
